3 Officials Quit NLRB After Millis Is Appointed

President's Refusal To Rename Madden Brings Resignation of Witt, Emerson, Hawes

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The resignations of three of the most important officials of the National Labor Relations Board immediately followed President Roosevelt's appointment yesterday of Dr. Harry A. Millis as a member of the board succeeding Chairman J. Warren Madden.

Nathan Witt, board secretary; Thomas Emerson, associate general counsel, and Alexander B. Hawes, chief administrative examiner, all resigned in protest against the President's failure to reappoint the one-time chairman.

At the same time he forwarded the Millis nomination to the Senate, President Roosevelt named Madden to be judge of the Court of Claims—at a salary $2,500 above the $10,000 he received as head of the Labor Board.

Leiserson Hails Choice

The appointment of Dr. Millis—who is slated for chairmanship of the Board as soon as he is confirmed by the Senate—and the resignation of Secretary Witt were said by competent observers yesterday to represent a victory for the conservatives in the battle that has been raging around the board since its establishment.

Dr. William M. Leiserson, board member, who has frequently found himself at odds with both Madden and the third member, Edwin S. Smith, declared yesterday that the Millis nomination was "splendid."

"I don't know of a man better qualified," he said.

A bitter critic of Witt, Dr. Leiserson vainly attempted soon after his own appointment last year to oust the secretary, but he was overruled by Madden and Smith.

Lewis Backed Madden

It was noted that President Roosevelt's decision to choose Dr. Millis in preference to Madden was made public just as the annual conventions of both A. F. L. and C. I. O. are beginning. The former

U.S. Acts to End Vultee Strike

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Determined to end quickly the Vultee Aircraft strike, Defense Commission officials last night were considering calling company and labor representatives here for negotiations.

Should Government efforts to have the dispute arbitrated fail, a Defense Commission source said that Commissioner Sidney Hillman might insist that Vultee and C. I. O. officials fly to Washington for a round-table discussion.

The first strike at a plant producing military planes since the national defense emergency started, yesterday's walkout at Downey, Calif., stopped work on American warplane orders totaling $39,000,000 and another $11,000,000 in contracts for foreign countries, mostly Britain.

Hope for Meeting Soon

The Labor Department conciliation service, in an effort to end the wage dispute, sent another representative to the scene of the strike, and reported that the conciliator now there had reported that he

Myrna, Husband End Marriage

MYRNA LOY, screen actress, said yesterday through her attorney that she and her producer husband, Arthur Hornblow, were estranged. "It is with great reluctance that we admit that we are ending our marriage," her statement said. The attorney said she would file suit for divorce at "an early date"

26% of Goal Now Pledged In Chest Drive

B. R. Allen Addresses 400 Volunteers At Report Luncheon

The Community Chest is a bulwark against need and suffering in the National Capital, Bruce R. Allen, publicity chairman of the Chest drive, yesterday told 800 volunteer solicitors.

Recalling the Biblical story of the rebuilding of Jerusalem, because "the people had a mind to work," he said he was confident of success in the $2,000,000 campaign.

Reports totaled by Herbert L. Willett, jr., Chest director, revealed 24,986 pledges for approximately $533,575 or 26.6 per cent of the goal.

One hundred per cent employe pledges toward the goal were reported by Frank R. Jelleff, Inc., Edgar Morris Sales Co. and the Multigraph Sales Agency.

Unit reports gave the Government 18,516 pledges of $152,240, or 17.91 per cent; Group Solicitation, 4,089 pledges of $215,070, or 32.1 per cent, and Metropolitan, 2,253 pledges of $163,275, or 38.08 per cent.

Quota percentages turned in by team chairman of the Metropolitan Unit were Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, 43; Mrs. Frederick B. Altemus, 34; Miss Bertha A. Gay, 27; Mrs. C. J. Riggall, 32; Mrs. G. Howland Chase, 30; Mrs. Maurice D. Rosenberg, 33; Julius O. Cardin, 24; Millard F. West, jr., 25; Richard K. Lyon, 30; Carlile Bolton-Smith, 23; Merritt A. Birch, 70; Dr. Maurice A. Goldberg, 25, and Robert G. Wilson, 23.

Freezing Weather Is Forecast Today For District

Freezing temperatures, dropping to a minimum of 28 degrees, were forecast for today by the Weather Bureau, which indicated, however, that no rain or snow would accompany the fall.

Washington has received comparatively good weather in comparison to other parts of the country, even the deep South. A 20-degree minimum was reported by Atlanta, Ga., weather station, and heavy snowstorms continued to sweep the Middle West.

A maximum temperature of 40 was forecast for the District and vicinity today, compared to a 45-degree high at 2 p. m. yesterday. Lowest temperature recorded locally yesterday was 36, at 10 p. m.

Preconvention Conference Brings Accord to Preserve Unity of the C. I. O.

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 15. John L. Lewis and Sidney Hillman, leaders of two factions of the Congress of Industrial Organizations which have been sniping at each other here for days, have worked out a friendly deal that will preserve unity in the C. I. O., it was learned tonight.

The president of the C. I. O., who supported Wendell Willkie in the recent election, and the president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who is President Roosevelt's closest labor adviser, met by chance on the boardwalk after dinner, chatted on a bench and adjourned to Hillman's room in the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

After one hour and a half both emerged smiling.

Fireworks Likely to Fizzle

The result is that there will be no split in the C. I. O., sources close to Hillman and Lewis confidently predict.

Further, the fireworks that were promised for the third annual C. I. O. convention that opens here Monday will be strictly in the family, if they go off at all.

The two union leaders, who had not spoken to each other for months, have agreed to sink their major differences in order to hold the C. I. O. together.

In the late afternoon and early evening union leaders who were supposedly in the Hillman column began shifting their support to the forces led by Lewis.

Bolt to Lewis

Top officials of the department store workers, the textile workers and the rubber workers, who had been considered opposed to Lewis in the expected fight for control of the C. I. O. began to bolt to the man who founded the C. I. O. five years ago.

The private conversation between the two leading figures clinched the matter, it is understood.

Concessions were made by both sides: Concessions on the attitude to be taken toward Communists,

Richard S. Nestlerode, 26, yesterday was sentenced to serve 15 years to life in prison for killing two persons in a drunken, 65-mile-an-hour automobile flight through traffic last June 22.

Justice James W. Morris sentenced Nestlerode for the second-degree murder of Joseph Nappo, 57. For killing Mrs. Edna Mitchell, 34, colored, Nestlerode was ordered to serve 5 to 15 years in prison, but Justice Morris directed that the sentences be served concurrently.

Before pronouncing sentence, Justice Morris heard and overruled a motion for a new trial for Nestlerode, advanced by Attorneys Levi H. David and Benjamin Simmons.

New Axis Stroke Seen as German And Italian Army Chiefs Confer; Koritza Reported Cut Off by Greeks

Athens Announces Enemy Is Retreating Deeper Into Albania Along Entire Front

By C. L. Sulzberger.
Copyright by New York Times

Athens, Nov. 15.—Slashing its way further into Albania, the Greek army completed its second day of full-fledged offensive action tonight by capturing 700 more Italian soldiers and driving enemy units back into retreat on at least two sectors.

Major encounters are obviously occurring, and once again the military communique refers to intensive infantry, artillery and aerial action. Three Italian planes were shot down and two Greek aircraft failed to return to their bases.

[The United Press reported early last night from Sofia, Bulgaria, that Greek troops had completely surrounded the Italian army base of Koritza. In a latter dispatch from Athens, the United Press said the Greeks were heavily shelling the Italian-held Albanian mountain town of Koritza.

Italians Retreating

[A Greek government spokesman was quoted by the United Press as saying that the Greek army "has now taken the initiative, is pushing ahead on all fronts and the enemy is retreating."]

The Greek drive is aimed in two directions. The forces on the Epirus and the Pindus fronts are seeking to cut off Italian troops in southern Albania. These were heavily concentrated between Porto Edda and Konispol, where the war started and where the Italians launched the original attack.

Having cleaned up the Pindus sector and eliminated the remaining Italian outposts around Smolikas, the Greek army is pushing down the Albanian side of the Grammos Mountain, north of Konitza, and fighting through Albania westward in the direction of Porto Edda. This action is supported by another push from the region of Kalpaki and the march north by the units stationed near the Kalamas River.

Shell Coastal Road

Shells are being dropped on the coastal road leading from Konispol to Porto Edda, along which Italian troops are retreating to avoid being cut off by the flanking move from the east.

The other main battle seems to be around Koritza, the important Italian base south of Lake Presba and Lake Ochrid, legendary home of

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 15.—The press today openly accuses the British secret service of having murdered the Egyptian premier, Hassan Sabry Pasha, who died in Cairo yesterday.

The Lavoro Fascista says the premier's death took place a few days after Secretary of State for War Anthony Eden's visit to Cairo.

"We shall limit ourself to saying," it writes, "that it is a strong coincidence, and that one knows how murder is an everyday expedient of the British policy."

War of Demolition

R.A.F. Batters Hamburg, Berlin; Nazis Hit Back Hard at London

By J. Norman Lodge.
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), Nov. 16.—More than 100 Nazi warplanes dropped explosives and fire bombs on London early today, starting scores of fires, leveling apartment buildings and homes, and burying more civilians following the devastating assault on Coventry Thursday night in which 1,000 were killed or injured.

One whole block of apartments caved in. Casualties were believed heavy.

Rescuers toiled in ruins amid falling antiaircraft shrapnel and bomb explosions.

"Sand," went the cry from firemen working their bucket brigades in central London.

"This is the worst night yet—at least in numbers," one air raid warden said. "I just counted 80 heavy bombers flying low in formation."

Most of the fires in central London were extinguished quickly.

19 Attackers Shot Down

At least 18 Nazi planes were shot down during the day and another early last night to make a total bag of 19, the British said.

Low-hanging rain clouds which had curtained the city drifted away about midnight and the roar of explosives increased. Motorized ground crews sped through bomb blasts and the hail of antiaircraft shrapnel to dig in the ruins and control fires.

Still raging fires at Coventry served as beacons to guide other raiders back to the Midlands, and a southwest sector also was under attack.

A south coast town had its longest air raid of the war. Three hundred persons were moved from damaged or threatened homes there, but so far as could be learned, there was only a single casualty—a 4-year-old child.

Several towns in the Midlands were bombed. In one, 24 houses were smashed and a bomb dropped upon a school shelter filled with people.

It was disclosed meanwhile that explosives fell twice recently on the grounds of bomb-scarred Buckingham Palace and that the famed

Army Examines First Selectives

(Details on Page 17)

The first of 200 young men classified for immediate military service by the City's 25 local boards last night began the routine of physical examination.

As rapidly as possible the men were checked at Providence, Emergency, Garfield and Freedmen's Hospitals. Specimens for serological tests were taken and were rushed in four National Guard trucks to the District Health Department laboratories in the District Building. There these were to be examined under direction of Dr. J. E. Noble, laboratory chief.

From the men examined last night 51 will be chosen to enter a year's training November 27 and 28. They will go first to Camp George G. Meade, Md., where they will be given aptitude tests and assigned to units for which they are suited.

The local induction station for young men called from Washington, four Maryland counties and 19 counties in Virginia will be open November 27 at 458 Indiana Avenue Northwest.

Old Coventry Ruined, 1,000 Hurt or Dead

By Alfred E. Wall
Associated Press Staff Writer

Coventry, England, Nov. 15.—Coventry, chosen by the German high command for the most concentrated aerial bombardment of the Battle of Britain, emerged today from that scourge with at least 1,000 dead and wounded, not counting the unknown numbers trapped in the smoking wreckage.

Berlin dispatches, quoting the high command, represented the assault as vengeance for the British bombardment of Munich, birthplace of Nazism. The British raided Munich November 8 when Adolf Hitler was addressing a party rally.

City's Heart Razed

Last night it was Coventry's turn and German bombing planes, busy from dusk to dawn, smashed the heart out of this industrially important city in Britain's smoky Midlands.

The British Press Association declared, however, that the Germans "failed lamentably" to hit military targets.

Coventry, with a normal population of 190,000, now is known more for her place in Midland industry than for her legendary past.

But it was streets through which Lady Godiva rode nearly 900 years ago that were churned by incendiary and high-explosive bombs during last night.

It was here that men strove in a thundering hell against growing piles of stone and smoking timbers to bring out the dead and injured.

Coventry became a proving ground of men against bombs.

Stories of heroism, of rescue workers dying in the debris they were trying to move, of first aid workers killed while trying to save

Swiss Fascists Demand Right To Propagandize

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 15 (AP).—A Swiss totalitarian group delivered today what some newspapers called an "ultimatum" to the government, demanding the right to disseminate party propaganda and the "rehabilitation of persecuted and imprisoned" colleagues.

The group is known as the "Swiss National Movement." It is not strong numerically, but neutral foreign observers considered its demands important in view of Switzerland's position, sandwiched as she is between the Axis powers.

"Herr Pilet (Dr. Marcel Pilet-Golaz, president of the Swiss Federation) has assured us that our demands will be most carefully considered," said a manifesto issued by the group.

Keitel, Badoglio Meet Unexpectedly In Austria to Talk Over Conduct of War

By Louis P. Lochner.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The highest officers of the German and Italian military commands held a sudden and unexpected conference today and everywhere the supposition arose that some new military stroke of the greatest importance was afoot.

They met—Marshal Gen. Keitel, chief of the German high command; Marshal Badoglio, of Italy, and their respective staffs—at the old Austrian town of Innsbruck near the Italian frontier, and of course they had nothing to say as to what decisions had been taken.

But the official German news agency said that they had had "military discussions about the joint conduct of the war," and another authoritative commentator by plain implication tied the Innsbruck conference directly into recent Axis political discussions. Hitler had met in recent weeks with Gen. Franco of Spain, among others.

Emphasis on Military

The meeting, said the Dienst aus Deutschland News Service, showed clearly that "military planning by the Axis powers does not lag behind political activity. . . . Once again demonstrates that prime emphasis is being laid on the military efforts of the Axis in the fight against England."

Almost coincidentally, it was officially announced here that Ramon Serrano Suner, the Spanish foreign minister, would arrive in Germany shortly on the invitation of German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

This coming visit was seen here as one more step in a plan of power politics which, along with military force, is intended to change the map of Europe, Africa and Asia.

[While Serrano Suner's trip was not directly discussed in the Spanish press, the newspaper A. B. C. reiterated what has now become a familiar phrase: That the Axis was preparing to "clean out" the Mediterranean.

Spain May Enter War

[There has been continuous speculation that Spain is preparing to take the plunge into the war, perhaps allowing Axis forces to go through her territory in an attack on the British fortress of Gibraltar, which might coincide with an all-out Italian offensive against the British in North Africa.]

Authorized persons in Berlin did not deny that the military situation in Greece—now under Italian invasion—was discussed in the Keitel-Badoglio conference. Nevertheless, they remarked that there had been no change in German-Greek relations.

Yugoslavs Fire On Air Raiders

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 15.—Three unidentified bombers crossed the Yugoslav frontier tonight and bombed the City of Bitolj (Monastir) at 10:05 p. m., dropping six large bombs about 150 yards from the railroad station. Yugoslav guns fought back, for the first time.

It was the fourth bombing of that south Macedonian city of 45,000, the first being staged on November 5, when three Fiat-type bombers—still officially unidentified—rained bombs on the city on a market day, killing 19 and wounding 33.

Tonight's bombers struck by full moonlight but conducted their bombardment by the aid of parachute flares.

Air raid sirens screamed warning when frontier posts telephoned that the bombers were en route at a great height from the southwest. Antiaircraft batteries opened fire as the attackers droned overhead.

Yugoslav fighter planes were taking off from the Bitolj airdrome even as the bombers glided in to drop their bombs. The bomb explosions were almost smothered by the storm of bursting antiaircraft shells in the moonlit sky.

No casualties were reported.

lives, of narrow escapes and sudden, wholesale death piled one on another in an overpowering array.

Cases of bomb shock were reported in which the victims, otherwise unscathed, were found stricken dumb and powerless to help themselves after the night of terror.

"The city suffered very seriously and the people bore their ordeal with great courage," commented a London communique.

Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, here on a tour of the Midlands, found in Coventry an example for his urging, earlier in Birmingham, that industrial workers under bombardment "must not be shocked off the jobb." That, he said, would be "a major disaster."

When Morrison and his wife drove into the city this afternoon their limousine was confronted by a caravan of white-faced people seeking safety in the country. He prevailed upon them to go back.

They returned to a city which had undergone the worst continuous attack experienced by any in Britain — including London — since the air siege of Britain began.

500 Planes in Raid

According to the German version, Coventry was attacked by more than 500 planes which dropped 30,000 incendiary bombs and more than 1,000,000 pounds of explosives. As home of the Morris, Bristol and Rover and Napier motor works as well as the General Electric plant, Coventry is regarded by the Germans as a prime military target.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the clock in the main spire of St. Michael's Cathedral struck the hour for the first time since a bomb smashed into the building last night.

And in Hertford Street, the statue popularly believed to represent Peeping Tom, the fellow who peeped at Lady Godiva, still stood as a reminder of this city's yesterdays. (Some authorities believe the statue to be an image of St. George, England's patron saint.)

The fourteenth century brownstone cathedral, save for its 303-foot spire, was a jumble of stone and dusty mortar.

Aside from the cathedral and countless homes, these places were damaged by raiders: Two hospitals, two churches, public baths, two clubs, a school, a hotel, four public shelters, movie theaters, the police station, the postoffice and two first-aid posts.

In a dash into the still burning sector early tonight this correspondent had to scramble over great piles of brick and broken stone.

Fires ringed the night sky around us. The smell of explosives was still in the air. Gaunt pillars of stone rose in the midst of confusion, pointing subbornly at the sky.

The German air armada, I was told, set the town alight shortly after sunset yesterday.

Antiaircraft Swamped

The same opening thrust had been made before. Raiders and bombs were not new to industrial Coventry. But the 12 hours that followed were like nothing before, here or in all England.

Not until nearly daylight had the relays of planes emptied their bomb racks. They came in numbers which virtually nullified Coventry's antiaircraft defenses.

The sky flowered with flares. Amid the cannonading of Coventry's antiaircraft batteries could be heard the rattle of rifles and machine guns in the hands of men trying to shoot down the illumination flares.

Before the moon set the sky was so thick with smoke that it could not be seen. It had shone brilliantly in the early hours of the bombardment.

Morrison toured the most heavily damaged parts of Coventry and said he was strongly impressed by the courage and cheerfulness with which the townspeople took the ordeal. He conferred with the mayor, the chairman of the emergency committee, the controller and other officials.

Store after store had been damaged but authorities said supplies were not materially affected and there would be no food shortage.

Whole blocks of dwellings and business establishments had been leveled. Police and military forces from surrounding towns were brought in to help restore order. Coventry is 95 miles northwest of London.

Many Flee to Country

Despite efforts to keep the townspeople from flight, traffic on roads leading from the town was in disorder. They were jammed much like the highways of the Low Countries must have been last May.

A great corps of physicians and nurses worked throughout the night and day. Many were from nearby towns. At the changing of shifts in the local factories men from the work benches turned rescue workers, relieving the crews that had been on duty through the night and the day. Many of the men dropped from exhaustion where their colleagues had fallen under explosions the night before.

Firemen reeling with weariness played streams upon the smouldering fires consuming the last bits of timber in the rubble that remained of some of Britain's finest examples of Tudor architecture.

Men and women shuffled along the littered streets, their faces white and pinched, always looking for someone, or, with dumb stares, looking for nothing at all.

Four persons, already set down officially as "missing," were found in an air-raid shelter. So shocked were they by the night of pounding concussion from bombs that they refused to come above ground. They listened mutely to assurances that all was well but refused to budge.

Many of the rescue workers had their own homes to work on. They clawed into the debris, using bare hands in lack of tools, crying out the names of their wives, parents or children and shouting, "We're coming . . . we're coming!"

One young man tunneled through debris with his bare hands, although they were cut and bleeding, to drag out the body of his wife.

Twelve incendiary bombs were said to have hit the Coventry Cathedral early in the raid. The provost and a party on duty there attempted to smother them with sand only to have another shower of incendiaries and high explosives drive them from their task.

"The cathedral will rise again," said the provost. "It will be rebuilt and will be as great a pride to future generations as it has been to the past."

Big Guns Duel

Supplementing their aerial forays, the Germans opened up with their big guns on the Frnech coast early this morning and for two hours pounded the southeast British coast, drawing a heavy counter-barrage from Britain's coastal batteries before they finally called it a day.

Summing up the R. A. F.'s advantage in aerial battles of the past week the air ministry said:

"This ends a period of seven days in which the enemy's losses in the air have been increasing and ours have been remarkably small, although the Germans and Italians have stuck by day to convoy attacks and high-flying Messerschmitt raids.

"During these seven days fighter command pilots have destroyed 67 enemy raiders. Only eight of our fighters and three pilots have been lost."

[This statement was issued as the day's losses stood at 16 Axis planes downed. A subsequent communique made the total 17, bringing the German losses for the week to 68.]

over the Straits of Dover yesterday forenoon, when British and German long-range gunners had a hot argument, a southwesterly gale, unwelcome to the German strategists who may be still clinging to plans for an invasion of Britain, sprang up last night. Heavy rainclouds scudded across the sky while the wind churned up a rough sea.

The cross-Channel shelling began just before daybreak and lasted for several hours. So far as the English side of the straits was concerned there was comparatively small damage and no casualties, despite the fierceness of the barrage.

The British raiders who flew to Berlin during Thursday night and early yesterday had the advantage of a full moon and perfect flying weather, according to the air ministry. The first wave reached the Nazi capital two hours after dark and was followed by other waves.

The reason for bombing Berlin's various large railroad terminals and extensive freight yards, it was pointed out here, is that Berlin is the most important focal point for railroads in central Europe and whatever damage is done them would affect not only Germany itself but also her transport with the countries she has conquered.

Targets in Berlin included the Stettinger Station, the Schlesischer Station, the Anhalter Station, the Nordenbahn - Templehof railroad yards and the freight yards between the Potsdamer and Anhalter Stations. Other Berlin objectives were the power station in the Charlottenburg district and the Wilmersdorf power station in the heart of the German capital.

One pilot who took part in the Berlin raid said he witnessed a terrific explosion which momentarily silenced the city's gun batteries. He related seeing a big building go "sky high" and various fires break out.

Shipping and docks at Ostend, Le Havre and Lorient were also raided during the early hours of this morning as well as late last night.

Nover Discusses Monroe Doctrine At Charlottesville

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15.—The common front presented by American nations at the Havana conference and the lease by Great Britain of eight naval bases to the United States represent fruition of the English and American forces which have kept this hemisphere free of foreign domination for a century and a quarter, Barnet Nover, editorial writer for The Washington Post, said here tonight.

His address was prepared for delivery before the convention of International Relations Clubs of Virginia.

The editor said dictatorships in Europe bid fair to shatter permanently the old balance of power which inhibited aggressive action against American nations. "Should the dictators succeed in destroying or immobilizing or capturing the British fleet, the Atlantic will again become more highway than barrier."

Coventry's Plane Plants Hit, Nazis Say

British Output Will Be Seriously Affected, Germans Assert

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 15.—A fiery shower of 30,000 incendiary bombs and more than 500 tons of high explosives delivered in a "monster" raid by 500 planes on the Midland city of Coventry has dealt Britain's airplane industry a tremendous blow, German military sources reported today.

Relays of bombers left behind "an ocean of flames" that bathed every one of the city's airplane motor and airplane accessory plants, both large and small, informed Germans declared of their Thursday night attack.

At the same time, the British were admitted to have aimed at Berlin one of their greatest raids of the war, but it was reported mostly smothered in an antiaircraft barrage.

The high command described as "especially fierce" the Coventry raid which, it was said, was intended as "retaliation" for the British stroke at Munich last week when Adolf Hitler was addressing a Nazi Party anniversary rally.

The importance of Coventry as a military objective in German eyes was highlighted in the high command's explanation that the Morris, Bristol, Rover and Napier motor works and a General Electric plant are there.

The fires that flared from motor factories, airplane accessory plants and huge stores of raw materials and finished products were visible as far as the English Channel coast, about 120 miles, the high command declared.

[The British government said about 1,000 casualties resulted, but the British press association said the Germans "failed lamentably" to hit military objectives.]

The attack spread to surrounding areas of the Midlands, it was declared, and a gas works and huge aviation supply dump were hit with "visible effect."

In other actions, dive bombers attacking Dover were said to have planted three big bombs on the radio station and buildings, and others to have sunk three ships and damaged two more.

Three Ships Sunk

The three ships were sunk west of Ireland, in the North Sea and off the Scottish coast, and totaled 12,000 tons, while another was damaged off Scotland and a destroyer attacked near Great Yarmouth, these reports sadi.

In a bomber attack on another convoy of 20 ships some 500 miles west of Ireland, German sources said tonight, a 9,30X-ton merchantman and a 1,600-vessel were set afire and believed sunk.

While the British were acknowledged to have sent "stronger units" than heretofore against Berlin, the Nazis said that a barrage of unprecedented proportions permitted only 10 or 15 raiders to penetrate the capital's defenses and that 6 were shot down inside or just outside the city.

Six others were sent crashing as soon as they crossed the coast, Germans said, and all told the British lost 20 planes to 5 German aircraft in yesterday's raids and battles.

Amsterdam was reported to have had its longest air-raid alarm in weeks, with antiaircraft almost constantly in action, and "a few bombs" were admitted to have fallen in Hamburg and Bremen.

Although several buildings were hit in Berlin, the damage was described by the high command as "immaterial."

Maj. E. B. Lee Slated for Seat In Md. House

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, for more than two decades an outstanding figure in Maryland politics, last night was recommended to Gov. O'Conor for appointment as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates by the Democratic State Central Committee of Montgomery County, Md.

Maj. Lee will fill the unexpired term of Joseph D. Buscher, who resigned Thursday to accept appointment as clerk to the Montgomery County commissioners for the Eastern Suburban District at Silver Spring. Buscher replaced Blair Lee 3d, who resigned earlier in the week to begin a journey through Mexico and Central America to write a thesis on educational institutions of those countries.

The selection of Maj. Lee was announced last night after a meeting of the central committee by Lacy Shaw, chairman.

Justice Frankfurter, 58, Works on Birthday

Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter celebrated his fifty-eighth birthday yesterday with a full day's work on the bench.

Justice Frankfurter was born in Vienna in 1882 and came to this country at the age of 12. He was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1906, and taught there from 1914 to January, 1939, when he was appointed to the Supreme Court. His home is at 1511 Thirtieth Street Northwest.

Reich Border Army Worries Yugoslavia

Meeting of Keitel And Badoglio Also Disturbs Belgrade

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 15.—The continued evacuation of German nationals from Greece, additional reports of German troop concentrations on the Yugoslav Voivodina frontier in Rumania and the present meeting of the German and Italian army chiefs, Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel and Marshal Rodolfo Badoglio, at Innsbruck, heightened apprehension tonight in the Yugoslav capital.

The trickle of German vacuees which started when the Italian minister left Athens has swelled to a steady flow. One hundred and seventy Germans passed through Belgrade today, and major hotels here are filled with Germans from Athens and Salonika.

German troop concentrations at Timisoara create real uneasiness despite German assurances that the troops are not there in extraordinary numbers. One German source explained that the earthquake might have been responsible for forcing Germany army authorities to seek new quarters for the German occupation troops in Rumania.

Official sources are of the opinion that Germany might be preparing to send troops through Yugoslavia against Greece, but add the declaration that no such request has yet been made and would be rejected if submitted.

Revolt Reported

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Nov. 15.—The Hungarian press displayed today under large headlines reports of a revolt in the ranks of Rumanian Iron Guardists in which one person was said to have been killed and seven injured at Bucharest.

The reports, filtering through strict Rumanian censorship, followed publication of an announcement from Bucharest that three high ranking members of the Iron Guard had been expelled.

The revolt was said to have been directed against the Iron Guard leader, Horia Sima.

The revolt, the reports said, grew partly out of a severe economic crisis in Rumania, failure of many Iron Guardists to get government posts and the entrance of German army units into the country despite the stern nationalistic precepts of the founder, the late Corneliu Codreanu.

Dissatisfied factions reportedly attempted the putsch at Guardist headquarters Tuesday night, claiming that Sima, who also is vice premier, must be ousted because he had departed from Guardist principles to become Premier Ion Antonescu's "servant."

An armed group, accompanied by Ion Codreanu, aged father of the executed founder, appeared at the Iron Guard's "Green House" headquarters, the reports said, but only Codreanu was admitted.

Shots were fired, the reports continued, killing one policeman and critically wounding another, after which the putsch group retreated with its own casualties.

Mass explosions were said to have followed and tension was reported still high in the Rumanian capital.

Rites Monday For T. D. Walton, U. S. Employe

Funeral services for Thomas De-Motte Walton, 50, an attorney with the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be held Monday at 10 a. m. at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

DR. WALTON

Mr. Walton died Thursday at his home, 3000 Connecticut Avenue, following a long illness.

He was born in Manson, Iowa, and attended the University of Utah for four years. In 1915 he was admitted to the Utah bar, and practiced law in Salt Lake City until 1926 when he came to Washington to join the Interstate Commerce Commission.

With the commission he performed work for the Valuation, Finance and Accounting Bureaus, and later served as an attorney in the Bureau of Motor Carriers. Mr. Walton was a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity and of a Masonic lodge in Salt Lake City. In 1937 he received the A. B. degree from National University.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fay C. Walton; three sons, Thomas S., William U. and John F. Walton; a daughter, Miss Fay Charlotte Walton, all of Washington; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Walton, of Salt Lake City, and three sisters, Mrs. Edna M. Shiells, of Pasadena, Calif.; Mrs. Beth Nelson Jerrell, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Amy L. Baron, of Los Angeles.

Evzones Will Defend Athens To Last Man, D. C. Greek Says

Brother of Bakery Salesman Is Serving With Famed Troop

"Aera."

Which is a word the famous Greek Evzones are using in condensing such meanings as "Get out of the way," "We want a clear front," "Get the——back where you came from."

The eyes of Assimakis D. Sioris, salesmanager of the Sunrise Bakery here, flash with pride as he says:

"My brother Tom—his name is longer in Greek—just say Tom—is standing with them or he is dead.

"If they take Athens you will read that the Evzones all are dead. They will reach the city only over their bodies."

Assimakis has not seen Tom in about 20 years. He, once a Greek officer, while Tom is a corporal, had parted with his family at the termination of the Balkan wars that raged intermittently between 1912 and 1920. But he has seen the Evzones fight in their ballet skirts, cotton underpants and tight coats and knows that Tom is writing deeply cut letters with his bayonet tip on this most recent page of Evzone history.

No one stays in that outfit unless he is hard-boiled, Sioris said. He must be tough. The Greek army picks the flower of mountain men for the service and expects them to take only one order, "Forward."

They won't retreat and don't fight in trenches, he recalled. In coldest weather—he reminded that snow is on the mountains there now—they march without overcoats, have no gloves, and don't mind it.

Their equipment consists of a bayonet—"in which they specialize"—a small flask of water and their rifles. They're good in-fighters and sometimes use grenades. When they get above the age of 30 they're put to doing something else.

Tom is 25.

"I have seen them take artillery apart and lift it up mountainsides where a goat couldn't climb. And I have heard them yell 'Aera,' meaning get out of the way for we are coming. To anyone who has seen it! It cannot be described."

They wear a make of mocassin with spikes in the soles. Their skirts are designed to afford a maximum leg movement in mountainous terrain and their schooling for their work, which they enter as a career, requires majoring in the bayonet and mountain climbing.

While Assimakis Sioris never wore the fustanella, he fought long as a second lieutenant in the mountain artillery and saw the Evzones at work. He has not heard how Tom is faring. But he will know, he believes, should Athens fall.

"Over their dead bodies," Sioris said.

Koritza Reported Cut Off by Greeks

the god Pan. Here the Greeks have occupied the mountain known as Ivantrak, which rises more than 4,000 feet, and was an important Italian battery site. Ten cannon were captured. The low peaks on the range between Grammos and Morava were also taken, and the road between Koritza and Herseg is being heavily shelled.

Italian Column Strafed

Greek planes bombed Koritza again and machine-gunned a column of Alpini advancing to reinforce the defending army. They were supported by British aerial action, and this morning the Royal Air Force successfully bombed and machine-gunned an Italian motor transport column on the move in the area north of that town, according to an R. A. F. communique published here tonight.

It is stated that great damage and many casualties were inflicted, and that a farmhouse used as army headquarters was demolished. A bridge over which reinforcements were moving is said to have been destroyed and casualties among the troops were heavy.

According to one of the pilots who participated in the attacks, the bombers dived from an altitude of 20,000 feet and released their explosives dead over the column. He said:

"I saw one bomb burst right in the center of a big lorry. The Italians were running like hares. Then we hit a bridge fair and square, completely wrecking it. Italian reinforcements, who had been using it, suffered heavily."

Leaving Dodecanese

The newspaper Asyrnasos today published an article stating that the Italians were withdrawing from ten of the Dodecanese Islands to the fortified bases of Leros and Rhodes because they anticipate an imminent offensive. At Dodecanese a voluntary corps is being formed there. The newspaper also predicts another "happy event" for Greece in the eastern Mediterranean.

Italian prisoners arriving here and in Salonika, mostly peasants from the south, complain of the hostile attitude of the Albanians to the Duce's troops. All efforts to encourage this tendency are being made, and pamphlets have been dropped in Albania, saying, "The war you are waging is a war of conquest. It is, therefore, devoid of all moral justification. Accordingly, we are forced to fight for our women and their well-being. For that reason we are striking hard against the invader. It is your duty to put down your arms and rally to our side."

Pat Harrison Urged To Succeed Pittman

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, outranked in Senate service by only three Democrats, yesterday was proposed for President Pro Tem of the Senate by Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina.

Byrnes, himself assured of strong support and probable Administration backing for the high office, emphatically removed his own name from consideration.

He wired Harrison at his Gulfport (Miss.) home that he favored him for the office. Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the most influential single force in the Senate on fiscal policy, has never announced he was a candidate.

Reports linking Byrnes' name with a new Democratic National Committee post to be created at Washington headquarters, meanwhile, were ridiculed by the South Carolinian who floor-managed the President's third-term nomination and assisted him in the campaign.

Making clear that he would not accept such an offer were it made, he said: "I'm not job hunting. All of my time is taken up here in the Senate."

Byrnes, who turned down an offer of the national chairmanship following James A. Farley's retirement, and who likewise declined to run for Vice President, is one of the President's chief Congressional contacts.

His name was one of several that had been mentioned to guide the national headquarters' staff in the absence of Chairman Edward J. Flynn in New York.

An Honorary Post

The post of President pro tem of the Senate, vacated since the death of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, is primarily an honorary office conferred by the party in power on one of its members as a mark of distinction.

Long service and a good working knowledge of the Senate rules have usually gone with the choice, as the Senator chosen must preside over the Senate in the absence of the Vice President. Present plans call for selection of a successor to Pittman at a Senate Democratic caucus following the return of Congress in January.

Friends of at least four other Senators were already active in their behalf, the latest name to be advanced being Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, who has been in the Senate longer than Harrison. Only Senators Sheppard, of Texas, and Smith, of South Carolina, will outrank McKellar in the next Senate.

Many Support Clark

Having strong support also was Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, probably the ablest parliamentarian in the Senate. Clark, son of the late Speaker Champ Clark and a former House parliamentarian, will have the backing of a powerful Senate conservative bloc. Other names expected to be advanced include Tom Connally, of Texas, and Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma.

Vice President-Elect Henry Wallace, who will be the Senate's regular presiding officer and probably stick closer to the rostrum than his predecessors, has been a frequent Capitol visitor since the election, "just getting acquainted."

Wallace, who is reported already working for closer cooperation between executive and legislative arms, conferred late yesterday with Senator Byrnes. Last week he called on Speaker Rayburn and made the rounds of the offices of Senate officials.

Record Budget To Ask at Least 15 Billions

Roosevelt's Request Includes 8 Billions For Defense Program

By Cecil B. Dickson
International News Service Staff Writer

The budget being prepared for President Roosevelt's submission to the new Congress in January points to an initial record-breaking request for $15,000,000,000 in cash, of which $8,000,000,000 is slated for national defense.

This is exclusive of about $2,000,000,000 for interest on the public debt, social security and other trust funds, which automatically comes out of the Treasury's cash-on-hand, thus making a grand total of at least $17,000,000,000 that the Government figures it will need in the next fiscal year.

Budget Director Harold D. Smith disclosed yesterday that all of the estimates for the 1942 fiscal year budget have yet to be submitted, particularly those of the War Department. The War Department is trying to figure out how much money it will need for its 2,000,000-man army, its growing air force and equipment requirements.

Army, Navy Contracts

In addition to regular and new defense demands, the new Congress will have to supply cash for most of the $4,000,000,000 in contracts it authorized for the Army and Navy this year, Smith said.

Large sums will have to be allotted to the Navy for construction of the two-ocean Navy, and it was unofficially estimated that probably $1,000,000,000 might be asked later for establishment of air and naval bases on eight British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Wile the present Congress voted about $15,000,000,000 for defense in cash and authorizations, it was pointed out that much of this money would not be expended until the 1942 fiscal year and that many items, such as building barracks, would not recurr.

Offsetting this, however, will be new costs for equipment, clothing, food, transportation and increased pay for the larger armed forces.

Smith suggested that developments in Europe's war may necessitate supplemental requests for funds during the next Congress that might boost the outlays to an unforeseeable amount.

President Roosevelt's original budget last January called for only $8,424,000,000, exclusive of interest on the debt and trust funds, but the defense and regular Government needs, including relief, brought the total to $18,311,795,000, plus $4,059,000,000 in contract authorizations for a grand total of more than $22,000,000,000.

Relief Funds Needed

In addition, it was learned, President Roosevelt would ask $350,000,000 more for relief for the current fiscal year. The $975,000,000 provided for WPA is now being exhausted at the rate of $11,000,000 a month.

All civil departments were ordered by the President to pare their estimates where possible, in order that the defense needs could be better met. They are to be held to a total of $7,000,000,000.

The President plans in his budget message to indorse Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's request for an increase in the public debt to $65,000,000,000 and an additional $1,000,000,000 tax bill, to meet the increased costs of defense, it was said.

The Political Arena

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 15 (AP).—Here it is ten days after the election and no one knows whether Republican Gov. Payne Ratner or W. H. Burke, Democrat, was elected Governor of Kansas. It may be ten days more before the riddle is solved.

RATNER

The result hinges on 7,100 absentee ballots in the secretary of State's office. Each party has watchers watching the vaults and watchers watching the watchers.

Right now, on the basis of official totals from 104 of the 105 counties, Burke has a 1,738 lead.

Ratner and Burke have been kept chewing their nails along with hundreds of State employes and would-be employes.

Kansas election laws permit Kansans out of the State to cast absentee ballots and allow ten days for the votes to reach Topeka. That period ends today. Then the counting starts.

In 1930 Harry Woodring, a Democrat, who later became Secretary of War, was elected by 241 votes.

In 1912 Arthur Capper, now United States Senator, lost to George H. Hodges, Democrat, by 29 votes.

Court Fight Likely In Washington Vote

Seattle, Nov. 15 (AP).—A State-wide movement by supporters of Democratic former Senator C. C. Dill to challenge Democrats' votes for his Republican gubernatorial opponent, Arthur B. Langlie, started today as a canvass of absentee votes lengthened Langlie's unofficial lead to nearly 5,000 votes.

Joseph P. Adams, Dill's campaign manager, threatened court action to throw out as irregular ballots marked for Langlie and the straight Democratic Party.

State Attorney General Smith Troy, Democrat, and election officials here said it had been the practice for 40 years to count such votes as marked.

The official vote canvass, which may be complete before next Tuesday, today gave Langlie 388,697 to Dill's 383,784.

Candidate Has Proof That He's Been Robbed

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 15 (INS).—Here's a political candidate who claims irrefutable proof that he's been robbed.

He is "Doc" Bowen, who insists he voted for himself in the recent election and it was not even counted. "Doc" claims he did the voting in the Twenty-sixth New York Congressional District—the home bailiwick of President Roosevelt.

Tonight "Doc" was convinced that something should be done about it, but, so far no one has appeared to contest the reelection of Representative Hamilton Fish, successful Republican candidate.

Donnell Wins by 3,504 Votes in Missouri

St. Louis, Nov. 15 (AP).—Republican Forrest C. Donnell was elected Governor of Missouri by a margin of 3,504 votes over Lawrence McDaniel, Democrat, on the basis of complete, official reports from every precinct in the State, making him the lone Republican in a State administration that otherwise is solidly Democratic.

The vote was Donnell, 911,408; McDaniel, 907,904.

Mrs. Hendrick, 84, Dies; Funeral Set for Monday

Mrs. Pattie Warfield Hendrick, 84, widow of David Stewart Hendrick, died at 2:15 p. m. yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Royal T. McKenna, 82 Kalorama Circle.

Mrs. Hendrick came to Washington with her husband 47 years ago from Nashville, Tenn. For many years Mr. Hendrick was a prominent Washington businessman. Mrs. Hendrick was an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and also belonged to the Church of the Covenant for 47 years.

She is survived by two sons, John Thilman Hendrick and David Stewart Hendrick 2d, both of Washington; three daughters, Mrs. Edgar D. Edmonston, of Baltimore; Mrs. McKenna, and Lady Lillian Pascoe Rutter, of London, England.

Funeral services will be at 11:30 a. m. Monday in the home of John Thilman Hendrick, 2443 Kalorama Road. The Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, D. D., pastor of First-Covenant Church, will officiate.

James C. Waters' Funeral Services Set for Monday

Funeral services for James C. Waters, jr., will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. at McGuire's Chapel. The Rev. J. C. Beckett, pastor of Metropolitan Church, will officiate. Mr. Waters died yesterday at his home, 1604 Vermont Avenue, after a long illness.

A native of Jacksonville, Fla., Mr. Waters was, for more than 30 years a member of the bar of the District and of the United States Supreme Court. He was, for half of that time, professor of law at Howard University, instructing classes in quasi-contracts and bailments, and serving also as secretary and librarian of the law school.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence B. Waters; two brothers, George Waters, of Hyattsville, Md., and Wallace Waters, of Savannah, Ga.; and a sister, Mrs. Rose W. Holly, of Amarillo, Tex. Interment will be in Lincoln Cemetery.

Navy authorities identified the men as Ensign Stephen M. Frost, U. S. Navy Reserve, if Pittsburg, Calif., and N. A. Oliver, aviation machinist's mate, of Hilton, Tex.

Hoover Urges U. S. to Feed Beaten Nations

Calls for Action to Save 5 Democracies From 'Possible Famine'

By the Associated Press

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Former President Herbert Hoover appealed tonight for a reopening of negotiations with warring European nations for guarantees of safe shipment and distribution of food supplies to "five little democracies."

In a speech prepared for the faculty and students of Vassar College and broadcast nationally (C. B. S.), Hoover declared the people of the United States "should be given an opportunity to try to save" the people of Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and central Poland.

Asserting that millions of men, women and children in those countries faced "the stark fact of oncoming famine," the former President said "I will suggest that their lives and infinite suffering can be saved. And I will suggest that we have a moral responsibility."

Eliminates France

The "only hope" of saving the people of those nations from starvation, Hoover said, "lies in restoration and protection of their domestic food by the occupying army and in the import of food from overseas through the British and the German blockades under full safeguards."

He said that France, too, was in need of aid but that he specifically eliminated that nation from his proposals.

Asserting that all five countries had liquid resources outside their own borders with which they could pay for food and provide their own ships for transportation, Hoover declared that "I am asking for no gifts, no Government appropriations, no use of American ships."

He said that he deliberately withheld discussion of participation in a move to feed the starving countries until after the recent national election because he did not want the subject "stained with any color of partisanship."

Hoover recalled the success of the Belgian Relief Commission which he headed during the World War and declared that a similar set-up could be worked out for the present situation.

The former President, citing the history of nations in which starvation had been allowed to exist, said that disease followed in the path of starvation, and asserted that neither the warring nations nor the neutral nations wanted a world-wide epidemic to spring from the "cesspool" that would be created by famine in five countries of Europe.

"I simply refuse to believe, and I am going to continue to disbelieve," he declared, "that American public opinion, when it understands, is going to condemn 15,000,000 people to die, upon flimsy arguments and informal polls."

"Most Inhuman War"

He said that "there would be only a small stock of food supplies on hand in the occupied area at any one time," and added:

"This stock would not exceed 120,000 to 140,000 tons. The German nation consumes about 1,400,000 tons a month. If they seized it all, they would be getting only a three days' food supply. That would not prolong the war very much. In any event, under any such violation the whole work would have to stop as hopeless."

Hoover characterized the current conflict as "the most inhuman war of history" with noncombatants the chief sufferers and added:

"In the last war only one little democracy was invaded.

"Today there are all these others. Truly the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse—War, Death, Famine and Pestilence—have come to them in a terrible host."

Opposes Hoover Plan

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP).—Former United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott, one of Herbert Hoover's aides in relief work during the World War, said today that it would be "stupid and cruel" for the United States to ask England to relax her blockade so that food and supplies could be sent to western Europe.

Such relief, he contended, would afford a "certain amount of comfort to Germany and tend to prolong the war."

The Gallup Poll

New York-Ohio-Maryland Combination Still Is Best 'Barometer' for Elections

By Dr. George Gallup.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 15.—As the Nation's political experts scan the official election returns during the next few weeks, they will find that the three States, New York, Ohio and Maryland—when taken together—still provide the best "barometer" of national sentiment of any States in the Union.

President Roosevelt received an average of 54.4 per cent in these three States on election day.

Roosevelt's national percentage was 54.7—or only a fraction of a per cent more than the division in New York, Ohio and Maryland.

Just why New York, Ohio and Maryland should prove to be such an unfailingly good index of the national political temper, year after year, is something which still provides a puzzle.

The Explanation

The best available explanation is that New York reflects the industrial East, while Ohio and Maryland give balancing tinges of the Midwest and South respectively.

But, whatever the reasons for the astonishing value of these States as national indicators, political history shows that they have been—on the average—only 1½ points away from the Nation's vote over the last 16 Presidential elections.

On September 8, two months before the election, the American Institute of Public Opinion said: "If between 1884 and 1936 a political observer had known how these three States would go, he could have predicted the Nation's vote with an average error of only 1 2/5 percentage points."

Other Barometers Fail

Interestingly enough, the 1940 election has seen other famous "barometer" areas go crashing down. Through the years, one of the best barometers of all has been Erie County, Ohio, a farming and industrial county of just over 40,000 population on the edge of Lake Erie, containing a relatively large number of voters of German origin. In election after election since 1888 Erie County has invariably cast a majority for the winning Presidential candidate, and it has averaged only 1½ per cent off.

This year, however, Erie County went for Wendell Wilkie. It cast only 45.1 per cent of its vote for President Roosevelt, for a deviation of 9½ points from the national figure, the greatest deviation in its history.

"Favorite Son" Factor

Back of this sudden break in its barometer record, political observers see several factors including the effect of the war issue on Erie County's farmers and small businessmen. In this respect Erie County was far more representative of the Midwest farming States—several of which went to Willkie—than the country as a whole.

Another barometer county which reversed a 50-year record was Allen County, Ind., which centers about the city of Fort Wayne. Here, probably, the county's long record as a national indicator was upset by the fact that Wendell Willkie was a native son of Indiana.

Roosevelt, however, received only 42½ per cent of the vote in Allen County, as against 54.7 for the whole country—or a deviation of 12 points, by far the greatest in its history.

One of the few barometer counties which kept its record reasonably clear was Sheridan County, Wyo., which cast 53.7 per cent of its vote for President Roosevelt, only 1 point less than the national average.

Witt, Emerson, Hawes Quit Labor Board

Resign in Protest At President's Refusal To Reappoint Madden

chairman of the NLRB had been strongly backed for reappointment by John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., but had been heartily condemned by William Green, president of the A. F. L.

When he learned of the Millis appointment yesterday, Witt wrote Madden, whose term expired last August 27, that the former chairman and Smith had won esteem of "liberals, impartial students and millions of American workmen." Omitting any mention of Leiserson, Witt told Madden and Smith that "loyalty to superiors is common enough, but such brave loyalty to subordinates as you have shown is rare indeed."

No Slap to Millis

Witt explained to Madden that he was resigning "since the President has seen fit not to nominate you for another term." He made it clear that his action was in no sense a slap at Millis, with whom he had worked on the old Labor Board.

Emerson and Hawes both informed the board that they did not wish to remain with it in view of the failure of the President to renominate Madden. The three resignations followed by only a few weeks the dismissal of Dr. David Saposs, head of the board's division of economic research, which was abolished under Congressional pressure.

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, chairman of the committee that conducted a lengthy investigation of the board, said: "I believe these resignations from the board will be very helpful in clearing up the situation."

Dr. Millis, who is expected to tend toward Leiserson's side in the various controversies that have split the membership of the board, has been professor of economics at the University of Chicago since 1916. He is at present serving as grievance umpire for the General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.).

Will Have 5-Year Term

Sixty-seven years old, Dr. Millis has been chairman of the arbitration board in the men's clothing industry in Chicago, has worked on the old Labor Board, and was often called on to serve as referee while Leiserson was chairman of the Railway Mediation Board. His term in his new position is five years.

When informed of the Millis appointment, A. F. L. President Green said it was "perfectly acceptable."

Green yesterday wrote every member of the Senate Labor Committee that the committee had taken an "indefensible" position in failing to act on House-approved amendments to the Wagner Act.

Labor Board Accused

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Accusing the National Labor Relations Board of "brazenly and contemptuously" abusing its authority, Fred Brenckman, Washington representative of the National Grange, tonight urged speedy amendment of the Labor Relations Act. The charges were contained in his report to the seventy-fourth annual convention of the organization.

He accused the NLRB, "by hair-splitting definitions and usurpation of power," of ignoring exemptions he said applied to agricultural labor.

Brenckman's report was delivered after Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard had appealed to the Grange for cooperation in Federal farm programs.

Wickard said these programs, based on county planning and soil conservation districts, formed a democratic way of bolstering agricultural income, and contended:

"Democracy, if it is to be strong and unassailable, must give continuous attention to bettering the lot of the low income groups in agriculture as well as industry."

Brenckman maintained the Grange was supporting two bills "now pigeonholed in the Senate committees to which they were referred."

These he identified as the Walter-Logan bill, providing for review of rules issued by administrative agencies, and the Smith bill amending the Labor Relations Act.

Naval Architects Elect Adm. Land Their President

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, was elected president of the Society of Naval Architects at the final session of the forty-eighth annual meeting held in New York yesterday.

ADM. LAND

He has been a member of the society since 1908, a council member since 1927 and vice president since 1932.

Capt. Claud A. Jones, United States Navy, was elected vice president, succeeding Admiral Land. Council members elected include Frederick D. Herbert, Harold F. Norton, Commander Henry E. Rossell, Rear Amiral John E. Tawresey, Walter E. Thau, Capt. Henry Williams and Commander H. L. Vickery.

Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Engineering, United States Navy, was designated an honorary member of the organization.

Funeral Services Planned Today For E. S. Walker

Funeral services for Edward Spedden Walker, 86, prominent Prince Georges County tobacco and dairy farmer who died Thursday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his Mitchellville, Md., home.

Born in Washington during the Civil War, Mr. Walker attended public schools in the District and was graduated from the Maryland University Agricultural College where, in 1937, he was feted as the oldest living alumnus.

In 1877 he married the former Sophronia Duckett, who died in 1898, and in 1900 he married the former Ordella Harmon, who survives him.

He also leaves seven daughters, Mrs. Arthur Waesche, Mrs. Bert Bouie, Mrs. Harold Slingluff, Mrs. James Hamilton, Miss Hilda Walker, Miss Anne Walker and Miss Naomi Walker, and four sons, Bernard, Benson, Raymond and Desmond Walker.

The funeral will be held at Mount Oak Methodist Church, where Mr. Walker was a regular attendant. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Educators Argue Over Federal Aid

Millikan, Wilbur Ask Check on Spending; Graham Upholds It

Controversy over Federal school aid involving some of the biggest names in American education and an attack by an Administration leader on the "sterile" intellectualism of the Nation's universities yesterday enlivened the forty-second annual conference of the Association of American Universities.

Ranged on one side of the controversy were such figures as Robert A. Millikan, physicist of the California Institute of Technology, and Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, former Secretary of the Interior. Leading spokesman for the opposition was Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

In an executive session of the association at Catholic University Millikan, supported by Wilbur, criticized proposed legislation which would provide nearly $200,000,000 for primary and high school education in the States as a step in the direction of national socialism.

Asks Check on Spending

Though Millikan declined to discuss for publication a paper on the subject delivered to a conference symposium on "centralizing tendencies in American education," it was learned that the scientist aligned himself with heads of the Nation's great endowed universities in fighting for an immediate "check" on Federal spending for education.

A few hours later, at a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, to which reporters also were barred, Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle, jr., attacked the Nation's scholars and teachers for, he said, emphasizing "coldly neutral" search for knowledge at the neglect of a "body of thought and of knowledge . . . which tends to guide men in the choice of values on which they will build their lives."

"Actually, in the field of physical, mechanical and scientific research," Berle declared, "the results have been so coldly neutral that a world has seized and used the best product of the best scientific minds—and has therewith succeeded in creating, overseas at least, the closest replica of hell which perhaps this planet has yet experienced.

"No wonder that a European generation has cried out against the 'sterile intellectuals,' the men whose thought contributed everything to power and nothing to choice of values, or use in building life."

The association, established more than four decades ago by the heads of Harvard, Columbia, Johns Hopkins, Chicago and California Universities, now has a membership of 33 of the leading institutions of higher education in the country. The heads of several universities, including President Alexander G. Ruthven, of the University of Michigan, and Chancellor Deane W. Malott, of the University of Kansas, attended sessions of yesterday's conference.

Conference leaders insisted that none of its proceedings could be made public until the stenographic reports are prepared for publication. However, it was learned that the burden of the argument of the opponents of Federal aid was this:

Further granting of Federal funds to education is almost certain to lead to extension of Federal control over the Nation's educational centers. Federal control means political control and may very well mean use of schools for the promulgation of alien political ideologies.

One spokesman for this group in a controversy which has split wide open not only the association, but educators in the Nation at large, declared:

"We believe that funds for education, which comprise the largest items on our governmental budgets, should be spent in the areas in which they are collected. This Nation grew great as a Nation of local self-governments. If it is to remain great, it must solve local problems solely in the communities concerned.

"If the practice of granting education Federal funds ever becomes firmly established, those institutions which will prosper will be those from communities with the ablest political lobbyists.

"Education is the last doorway to freedom in this country. If it ever is closed the next step is totalitarianism."

Graham Gives His Side

Dr. Graham, for years a leading exponent of Federal aid, when asked for a statement on the other side of the controversy, pointed out that the proposed Federal aid bill would provide funds only for grade and high schools. He declared:

"Failure to provide Federal aid now for the elementary and secondary schools is a failure of the American system to follow through for the most basic of all our American institutions. It is failure to carry forward the democratic idea of more educational opportunity for all American children."

Speaking of the manner in which the bill would function, he added:

"The main support of public education will continue to be by the States and localities. It is proposed merely to supplement the $2,000,000,000 now provided by the States and localities with Federal appropriations which, in the sixth year for all purposes, will total $199,000,000."

Pointing out that in some States expenditures of all funds available from taxation would be insufficient to provide children with adequate instruction, Dr. Graham cited a provision of the bill to grant the bulk of Federal funds to rural committees and low-income States.

the stand to take on manufacturers held to be violating the Wagner Act, the stand to take on "methods short of war."

Murray to Succeed Lewis

According to well-informed union leaders, President Roosevelt had urged Hillman firmly not to take any action that might split the C. I. O.

Before Hillman and Lewis met, it had been generally known at the Chelsea Hotel headquarters of the C. I. O. here that there would be no fight over who is to head the C. I. O. for the coming year. The understanding was and is that Lewis will retire as president to be succeeded by Philip Murray, vice president of the C. I. O. and of the United Mine Workers.

The only possibility of serious dissension that remained was over resolutions on policy and a serious split on these matters is now conceded to be out of the question.

Earlier in the day Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers had served notice that they will introduce three powder-charged resolutions at the convention Monday.

The resolutions, which immediately touched off heavy cannonading along the boardwalk between Hillman and Lewis supporters, provide:

1. Expulsion of all Communists, Nazis and Fascists from paid office in the C. I. O.

2. Immediate resumption of labor peace talks with the American Federation of Labor.

3. Curbing of the power of the C. I. O. president, making his appointments and other acts subject to the approval of the executive committee.

The first resolution, striking at foreign "isms," was calculated by the Hillman forces to embarrass some of the unions that have been supporting the political views of Lewis. Some leading personalities in the unions around Lewis have been accused by the House Committee on un-American Activities and others of having Communist leanings.

Has Roosevelt Backing

The Hillman resolution urging immediate peace talks with the A. F. of L. is said here to have the sponsorship of President Roosevelt, with whom Hillman, as labor member of the defense commission, is in close contact.

Adherents of Lewis admit that the summons to resume labor peace talks would be a difficult one for them to oppose. The general feeling in the Lewis camp appears to be that the C. I. O. president has no objection to peace talks with William Green's parent organization, provided the talks do not involve sacrifice of the principle of industrial unionism, the issue that brought about the original Lewis-Green split five years ago.

These differences sputtered ominously today when Lewis, at a press conference, revealed the personnel of the potentially important credentials committee that will seat delegates to the convention.

Chairman of the committee is Allen S. Haywood, organizing director of the C. I. O. Secretary is Grant W. Oakes, of the Farm Equipment Workers organizing committee. These two officers and the committee's five other members are conceded by both sides to be followers of the leadership of John L. Lewis.

Quarrel Over Credentials

A credentials quarrel has, in fact, already entered the picture. The C. I. O. executive board this afternoon considered a dispute between Hillman-led and Lewis-led factions of the New York State Industrial Union Council. When the Lewis faction walked out of the I. U. C.'s Rochester, N. Y., convention last month after a credentials dispute, Lewis declared that the remaining convention constituted an "illegal convention."

Gustave Strebel, president of the New York I. U. C., who presided over the latter convention, which supports Sidney Hillman in his cooperation with President Roosevelt, appeared before the executive board here to answer charges of conducting an "illegal convention."

The board appointed a subcommittee of three members to meet with both sides and attempt to reach a solution. Members of the subcommittee are Phil Murray, Reid Robinson, a C. I. O. vice president and president of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, and George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the Auto Workers. Both Murray and Robinson are loyal Lewis adherents.

The board also instructed that a similar dispute in the Washington State I. U. C. be considered by the same committee.

The C. I. O. Maritime Committee, also meeting here, approved a statement demanding legislation to put into force recommendations submitted to President Roosevelt and Congress on March 1 by the Maritime Labor Board.

The recommendations would fortify the right of seamen to strike, guarantee them collective bargaining, penalize ship operators that violate the Wagner Act and set up machinery for voluntary mediation of marine labor disputes.

Green Predicts C. I. O. Rift

New Orleans, Nov. 15 (AP).—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today predicted a possible split of the C. I. O. into two factions, one of which "may be Communist-controlled under John L. Lewis."

Dismissing any notion that in itself Lewis' promised resignation as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations would help toward labor peace, Green said Lewis would still control the C. I. O.

"The differences between the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. can easily be washed out, but it is a question of men," Green said.

Sharply watching reports of a serious break looming in the C. I. O. and spearheaded by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Green said in an interview:

"I don't think there will be any third national group. I think developments may show some C. I. O. unions may withdraw from that parent body and remain independent or turn to the open door of the A. F. of L."

Explaining why he believed it "would mean nothing" if Lewis kept his preelection promise to resign the C. I. O. presidency if Wendell Willkie were not elected President, Green said:

"Lewis would still remain as president of the United Mine Workers, which pays the revenue of the C. I. O., and thus Lewis would be in a position to tell the C. I. O. 'unless you do as I want, I'll withdraw my financial support.'

"After all, Lewis draws his $25,000 salary as president of the U. M. W. and not as president of the C. I. O."

Green closely guarded what plans he may have for labor peace until his opening address to the convention Monday, but he told a meeting of the A. F. L.'s building and trades department today:

"We are now at a point where we can bring about a united labor movement in the United States."

Woll Reelected

Matthew Woll was reelected president of the Union Label Trades Department of the federation.

Unopposed and reelected included: Joseph Obergfell, Cincinnati, president of the Brewery Workers Union, first vice president; A. A. Yrup, Chicago, Bakery Workers Union, second vice president.

John P. Coyne, president, and all officers were reelected at the closing session of the building and construction trades department.

Draft-Lewis Vote Close

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Wisconsin C. I. O. today adopted, 155-157, a resolution calling on all ment to "draft" John L. Lewis as C. I. O. unions to support a movenational president of the C. I. O. The roll call was interrupted by many challenges and counterchallenges.

3 U. S. Judges to Hear Railway Workers' Case

Whether railroads must provide for their workers for a period after the suspension of railway service will be argued November 25, before three Federal judges in the District Court here.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat yesterday ordered that three judges hear the issue, which was raised by the Railway Labor Executives Association. The association sued to suspend an Interstate Commerce Commission order authorizing the Pacific Railway Co. to abandon lines in California.

Turkish Press Calm on Berlin Conversations

Nazi Difficulties Not Aims Behind Talks, Istanbul Feels

By G. E. R. Gedye.
Copyright by New York Times

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 15.—Following a secret explanation by the foreign minister to members of the Popular Party, the only one in Turkey, the press continues to take a calm view of the Berlin conversations.

Husrev Guerede, Turkish Ambassador to Berlin, who saw Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, after the principal conversations with Soviet Premier Vyacheslaff M. Molotoff, is returning to Ankara on, it is said, a holiday.

There was a cabinet council in Ankara today mainly concerned with the Berlin talks. The feeling is growing that Germany's difficulties rather than Germany's ambitions, provided the prime motives for the meeting, although the latter naturally played their part.

At Loggerheads in Balkans

Reports that the Danube conference continues at a standstill since its first meeting because Germany opposes Russia's demands for sole control of the Danube between Braila and Sulina, and the statements attributed to certain Soviet diplomats in the Balkans that Russia had interests in Bulgaria just as important as Germany's, are considered symptomatic.

The newspaper Aksham's editorial on the Berlin meeting considers that Russia accepted the invitation to Berlin largely for the sake of appearances, but insists that neither Italy nor Japan was represented, thus confining the discussions to purely Soviet-German problems. No agreement which may have been reached, he thinks, is likely to show much advance on that of August of last year, and it seems clear that Russia is not going to vary her neutrality or be drawn into any adventures with Germany.

Other papers write along similar lines. Vatan considers this an opportune moment to reconsider the works of "the Apostle of Leibenstraum," Paul Rohrbach, who was the first to demand for Germany the Ukraine, control of the Black Sea and the Dardanelles. These ideas, he said, can be traced through all important Nazi writings, as well as Rohrbach's thesis that Russia must one day be destroyed by Germany after she has reached an understanding with Great Britain.

Shelters to Be Inspected

Further air preparations are announced for Istanbul. Air raid shelters which have been constructed by all hospitals are to be inspected for their efficiency. It is recommended that all shelters install telephones, although some have already done so.

The Red Crescent—Turkish equivalent of the Red Cross—has received 24 ambulances, presented by the Anglo-Turkish committee. Half of them will be placed at the disposal of the air defense authorities.

The consul general of Albania in Istanbul has called on all Albanians resident in Turkey to report to him for instructions concerning the formation of an Albanian legion on Greek soil to fight under the Albanian flag for liberation from the Italian invader.

hoped to have a conference of company and union officials arranged very shortly.

Spokesmen for department and the defense commission's labor division declared they had been "keeping the wires hot" between here and Downey all day. Hillman, who is in Atlantic City, has also been in communication with the West Coast, it was said.

Officials here were surprised that the strike had been called, as they had understood on Thursday that the controversy had been virtually settled. From the conflicting statements issued by both sides, it appeared that there might have been a misunderstanding which could be adjusted.

Plant Closed Down

Downey, Calif., Nov. 15 (AP).—The West Coast's fourth largest airplane factory was closed by a strike today, the first one called against a plant with aerial defense contracts.

Union employes of the Vultee Aircraft Co., which has on hand $50,000,000 in orders for military aircraft, walked out at 5 a. m. in support of a demand for a wage increase.

Two hours later the company announced shutdown of the huge plant, in which scores of airplanes are in all stages of production. The company said the suspension also affected "more than 20" airplanes ready for delivery tomorrow.

5,200 on Pay Roll

Vultee has a pay roll of 5,200 employes, 3,700 of them in the production department. The C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union, which claims 3,000 of the latter as members, demands that the minimum wage scale be increased from 50 to 75 cents an hour.

Officials of Vultee, in a statement charging that "the local conciliator has been unable to get the union leaders to meet with the committee from the management," asserted:

"It is apparent that we have been elected by the C. I. O. as the guinea pig for organizing the entire aircraft industry in Southern California. The company has offered several times to arbitrate and each time the arbitration has been refused by the union."

Union Restored Demand

L. H. Michener, regional director of the union, said the company was 2½ hours late yesterday in filing an answer to union demands with a Federal conciliator.

Since it did not meet the union demands, Michener added, the company's proposal would not have forestalled a strike order any way.

Michiner said the union had receded from its original demand for a 75-cent minimum to a 65-cent offer, but when the company offered only "a slight wage increase" at the end of three months and another "slight increase" three months later, the 75-cent demand was restored.

Crucible Strike Called Off

Midland, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP).—A strike which threw 4,300 men idle this week in the Crucible Steel Co.'s mill here working on defense orders, was called off tonight.

John Giles, president of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committe local, announced the strikers had voted "approximately 52 to 48 per cent" in favor of resuming work pending conferences with the company regarding their grievances. These included a demand from one department for a wage boost of 12½ cents an hour.

Army Signs Order Easing Guard Rules

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

In an order greatly modifying physical requirements for National Guard officers inducted into Federal service, the War Department yesterday removed another cause of apprehension among guardsmen facing a year of training.

The order follows another which recently removed obstacles in the way of promotion of Guard officers. Both were in accord with recommendations made by the annual conference of the National Guard Association of the United States here in mid-October.

2 Changes Made

Under yesterday's order, two improtant changes were made in the regulations for induction of Guard officers into service:

Should two physical examinations be made upon induction, the recommendations of the second board will affect the officer's status only insofar as it includes tests not made in the first examination. Much dissatisfaction was felt within the Guard because officers, having been accepted by a medical board at home, were discharged on the basis of a second examination after several weeks in camp. Most of these officers, it was pointed out, had given up jobs or closed businesses in the expectation of serving a year in the Army.

Reviewing officials are authorized to waive physical defects which would not "interfere with the satisfactory performance of field duties appropriate to the grade and assignment of the individual concerned" and if the defect is not likely to be aggravated by active service. Guard officers requesting waivers will be required to acknowledge existence of such physical defects prior to entry into service.

Indicates Fairness

The latter change was one specifically and urgently requested in a resolution of the conference.

"The order," said Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Twenty-ninth Division and chairman of the Guard Association's resolutions committee, last night, "is undoubtedly the result of the action taken at the conference and will be received with satisfaction throughout the Guard. It also constitutes another instance of the desire of Gen. Marshall (chief of staff) to build up the new United States Army in the fairest and most equable manner.

"It meets one of the most pressing needs of the Guard at the moment and constitutes a long step in the right direction. There is only one thing remaining, one condition which is not satisfactory from our standpoint, and I feel sure its correction is coming.

"That is the matter of giving physical examinations to Guard officers at least 60 days prior to induction. In that way, those who are to be eliminated by physical defects will know about it in time to avoid making drastic and irreparable changes in their civilian status."

Order Pleases Officers

Guard officers contacted in Washington were universally pleased by the order, many contending it would result in preservation of the National Guard as a component of the Army. There had been considerable fear the Guard, as such, would not survive the present emergency as a semi-independent State force.

The Navy Department yesterday announced award of a contract for airplanes totaling $29,139,793.20 to the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y.

Two Navy contracts were awarded to Washington firms. They were a $34,378 order for electric fans to Stone Heating & Ventilating Co., and a contract for extension of a steam main at Bellevue Research Laboratory, at a cost of $13,980, to National Heating Co.

U.S. Reminds Spain Of Tangier Rights

Franco Government Puts Ban on News to America

Fresh irritations in relations between Spain and the United States were disclosed yesterday as this country made representations to protect its rights in the International Zone of Tangier and Spain warned of a ban on American news correspondents' stories out of her territory.

Other actions affecting America's foreign relations included these:

President Roosevelt formally recognized that a state of war exists between Italy and Greece and by proclamation extended provisions of the Neutrality Act to that conflict.

Mexico invited a number of Cabinet members and other officials to accompany Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace to the inauguration of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho as president of Mexico.

U. S. Envoy in Madrid Acts

The representations to the Spanish government were prompted by Spanish military authorities taking over control of the International Zone at Tangier last week.

Great Britain already has made representations and stated that she would not permit fortification of Tangier, which might threaten control of the Straits of Gibraltar.

"Upon instructions of the Department of State," the State Department announcement yesterday said, "the American Ambassador at Madrid has made certain representations to the Spanish government concerning the recent action of the Spanish military authorities at Tangier, Morrocco. Although the United States has not adhered to the convention of December 18, 1923, revised on July 25, 1928, regarding the organization of the statute of the Tangier zone, it possesses certain treaty rights in Morocco, including the International Zone of Tangier, on which the representations of this government have been based."

Shortly after the statement was issued, word came from Madrid that all American correspondents in Spain had been forbidden to send out news dispatches beginning next Monday.

The reason given was that the United States Government had refused entrance visas for correspondents of the Spanish official agency E. F. E. which the agency had planned to send to America and that E. F. E. had been refused permission to set up an office in the United States.

No Applications Received

State Department officials promptly declared the department had not refused visas for E. F. E. correspondents and insisted that the agency had not been denied permission to operate in the United States.

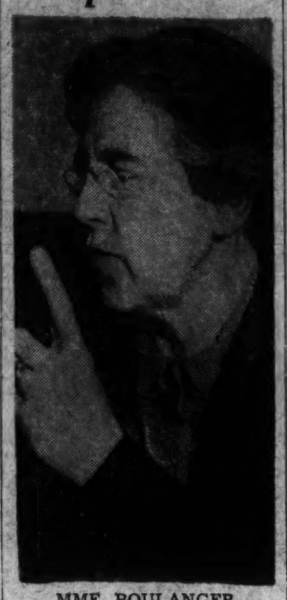
An official of the department said that no applications had been received here for visas for correspondents of this agency or for permission for it to operate.

The official said the department was telegraphing the American Embassy in Madrid for full information on the action of the Spanish government.

Mexico's inauguration invitations went to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce and Federal loan administrator; Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York and chairman of the United States-Canadian Defense Commission; Sidney Hillman, of the National Defense Commission; Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, and Adolf Berle, Assistant Secretary of State.

Others invited were Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, Vice Presidential candidate in the recent election; Representative Martin (Republican), Massachusetts, Republican national chairman and minority leader in the House; Maury Maverick, Mayor of San Antonio, Tex.; Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York; Senator Downey (Democrat), California; Chairman Bloom (Democrat), New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; Lawrence Duggan, political adviser to the Secretary of State; Senator Norris (Independent), Nebraska, and Col. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War in the Hoover Administration.

Art to Survive In Europe, Says Composer



MME. BOULANGER

War 'Cannot Touch The Mind,' Declares Nadia Boulanger

By Scott Hart.

Nadia Boulanger, French composer and conductor, possessor of enough animation of face and hand to lead a half-dozen orchestras simultaneously, has no despair for art.

Here, visiting, shying from talk of French politics but talking enthusiastically of "the human spirit," she believes the war won't arrest the strides of art in Europe.

"Houses may be knocked down and people killed but it cannot touch the mind." She confessed, however, that the upheavals may make expression difficult but not impossible.

Winner of the Second Prix de Rome in 1908, former teacher of composition at the Conservatoire, the Ecole Normale de Musique and the American Conservatory of Fontainebleau, and guest conductor in 1939 of the Boston and other symphony orchestras, Miss Boulanger said the question of whether American orchestras are good is not worth asking. She thinks they are great and have even greater possibilties—for Miss Boulanger is an idealist.

It became apparent when she stopped the interview, in the mansion, Dumbarton Oaks, to get her mind straightened out on the American way of seeing a picture in a newspaper. She kept her own views.

Pleasantly, the argument was with the photographer, who had kept his camera aimed for a minute in hopes of getting the most telling of Miss Boulanger's gesticulations.

Her point, simply put, was this: Only a person in some mental and spiritual repose is the subject for a photograph; to catch the subject with hands uplifted, and lips moving in speech is to get only a part of the picture. The action is not important, she insisted, the result is what counts.

The action technique of American photographers, she insisted, gives the preparation and not the climax; the fulfillment. Only a movie camera can tell the whole story to its finish. And besides, Miss Boulanger contended, who would want to show in his home a picure of himself with hands gesticulating and lips talking? All the great masters showed faces describing the result of great thought, the end of great action, she said.

Told that Americans demand action, Miss Boulanger said that possibly her limited (but indeed it is excellent) English possibly did not permit her to make clear her viewpoint.

Miss Boulanger, who expects to remain in this country several years as a teacher, is interested in the new orchestras, particularly the youth musical organizations and said she hopes to speak before them and help them as she can.

Nazi-Italian Mediterranean Push Expected

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 15.—A big offensive in the Mediterranean and new impetus for Italy's campaign in Greece were expected in foreign circles tonight to result from the conference of the chiefs of the German and Italian high commands.

The meeting between German Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel and Italian Marshal Pietro Badoglio today at Innsbruck was described officially in a communique as "military conversations on joint conduct of the war." (This paralleled a similar, cryptic announcement in Berlin.)

Some usually well-informed sources predicted that pressure would be made on Turkey to allow German troops to spread their occupation from Rumania to the Dardanelles in a drive against the British at Suez and, beyond, in the oil-rich Near East.

Others said German troops might aid the Italians against Greece through Yugoslavia or Bulgaria or both.

Little progress has been reported here from Italy's newest front and observers agree that the high command is anxious to speed up operations.

It has not been the policy of the Axis powers to let an offensive lag. The Innsbruck staff talks would be useful, in the view of foreign observers, if the Italian command had decided to accept an offer of help from Germany.

It was pointed out, however, that the Greek campaign is only one phase of the Axis war plan and observers said a showdown on Turkey's position may be imminent.

Newspapers indicated that the Soviet Union probably would help put pressure on Turkey to prevent her opposing German plans.

It was considered significant that the military conference came on the heels of talks in Berlin between Soviet Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff and Adolf Hitler and those here between Rumanian Premier General Ion Antonescu and Premier Mussolini.

The Italian high command, summing up Thursday's operations, reported 13 Greek warplanes shot down in violent air action on the Greek battlefront.

It also claimed to have verified the torpedoing of a 33,500-ton battleship of the Ramillies class a week ago off Sicily. A communique said the commander of the submarine Capponi "verified by direct vision from the emerged submarine the explosion of three torpedoes against the hull of the enemy ship." The battleship was reported to have been escorting the aircraft carrier Illustrious.

[The British formally denied the sinking of such a battleship.]

Italian air bombardments were reported on scattered points behind the Greek lines, and on British-held towns in East Africa and on the Alexandria naval base. One Italian plane was reported missing.

New Altar To Be Given To Foundry

Dedication Rites To Be Continued At D. C. Edifice

Continuing the month's chancel setting dedicatory exercises, begun last Sunday, the congregation of Foundry Methodist Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. will dedicate the new altar and carved reredos, the latter a gift of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Davenport. The occasion also will be the sixteenth anniversary of the local pastorate of Dr. Frederick Brown Harris.

The Indiana limestone altar will be presented to the church in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ward, long-time Foundry members, by their sons, George, a Foundry lay official; Philip H., Philadelphia, Pa.; Ralph P., of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William K. Ward, of Detroit, Mich.

The morning preacher will be the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D. D., LL. D., dean of Drew University, Madison, N. J.

At the evening service the sermon will be preached by the Rev Harold Paul Sloan, D. D., the editor of the New York Christian Advocate. The choir of Hamline Methodist Church, under the leadership of John H. Marville, will sing.

The service will begin at 7:30 p. m. with a recital on the new organ by Lyman S. McCrary, organist of Hemline.

Eldbrooke. "Go to Church Sunday" will be observed tomorrow. Dr. Walter M. Michael will preach at 11 o'clock on "Matched for This Hour" and at 8 o'clock on "A Good Time to Trust God."

Waugh. A Thanksgiving service will be held tomorrow morning with the Rev. Clarkson R. Banes preaching on "When Christians Give Thanks." At 8 p. m. the young people will present a dramatization "Making Ends Meet."

Francis Asbury. Dr. Robin Gould will preach at 11 o'clock on "Unsung Heroes" and at 8 o'clock on "Uncoerced Goodness."

McKendree. At 11 a. m. the Rev. Samuel E. Rose will give the first of a series of morning sermons on "Meeting Mysteries," the topic being "The Mystery of Life."

Wesley. The Rev. J. Luther Neff will preach at the 11 o'clock service on "The Lighted Pathway."

Trinity. "To Comfort and to Restore" will be the topic of the Rev. Daniel W. Justice at 11 a. m. and "The Door to Life," at 8 p. m.

Petworth. Dr. Frank Steelman will have for his subject tomorrow morning, "Thank God and Take Courage." The choir will render Christiansen's "Beautiful Saviour" with Mrs. Lewis singing the solo part. A woman's chorus will sing "Ora Pro Nobis" by Gwynn Williams.

At 5:30 p. m. the junior high group will conduct the primary department in a study of the church symbolism and conclude with a worship service.

Calvary. Dr. Orris Gravenor Robinson will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow on "Relentless God." The junior choir will sing at this service under the direction of Louis A. Potter, organist and director of music. At the 8 o'clock evening forum the subject will be "Panama." Dr. R. J. Alfaro, former president of Panama, will be the guest speaker. This is the sixth forum presentation in a series of talks on "Better Relations Between the Americas."

Brookland. The service at 8 p. m. will be the first of a series of special musical services, composed almost entirely of music by the choir. Numbers to be rendered include "Softly the Silent Night," by Neidlinger; "Praise the Lord," by Maunder; "Be Still My Soul," by Sibelius; "Thou Hast Loved Us, Love Us Still," by Roberts, and "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte-Deis.

Dr. S. Paul Schilling will preach at 11 a. m. on "Is There a Return to Religion?"

Emory. The Rev. Horace Cromer will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "For the Living of This Hour" and at 8 p. m. the young people will assist in the service.

Lewis Memorial. The church will observe Men and Missions Sunday, the Rev. John A. Trader preaching on "Go and Tell."

The evening hour will feature a short song service, led by Mrs. Joseph Stimson and the sermon topic will be "The Everlasting Arms."

Hamline. "In the Workshop of God" will be the sermon subject of Dr. H. W. Burgen tomorrow at 11 a. m. A group of new members will be received.

Douglas. Joash Day will be observed tomorrow throughout the entire church. The Rev. William F. Wright, pastor, will occupy the pulpit at the morning service. His sermon topic will be "Joash Day."

St. Paul's. The congregation will observe "Go to Church Sunday."

The Rev. Charles F. Phillips, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "Rethinking the Church".

He will address the evening service on "Metheuselah the Meager."

Harvey Goddard, seventy-fifth anniversary committee chairman; William P. Benson, Mrs. Stockdale, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, toastmaster; Stockdale, Dr. Anderson, First Church pastor; Mrs. Hugh A. Thrift. At near side of table (from left) are Mrs. Paul Yinger, Mrs. Frederick J. Bishop, the Rev. Mr. Yinger, Mrs. Goddard, William Gilbert, J. U. Craig, Mrs. Craig, Mr. Thrift, Mrs. Buschmeyer and the Rev. Mr. Bishop

Dr. Anderson Will Preach At 1st Church

First. "For the Discouraged and Disappointed," will be the subject of the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson's sermon tomorrow at 11 a. m. Mr. Anderson will continue his book interpretations in an evening service at 8 p. m., instead of at the 5 o'clock hour. Lloyd Douglas' most recent book, "Invitation to Live," will be the topic discussed. This book, continuing the characters of "Green Light" and the wise Dean Harcourt of Trinity Cathedral, embodies the legend of Pygmalian and Galatea in the plot. The a capella choir and William Groff, tenor, will sing.

Ingram. "The Sacrifice of Thanksgiving" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Frederick J. Bishop tomorrow at 11 a. m. The annual Thanksgiving custom of filling two or more barrels with apples and potatoes, for use by the Central Union Mission, will be observed.

Lincoln Road. The Rev. W. D. Keene will preach at 11 a. m. on "The National Call to Remember." The Rev. C. M. Wright will preach at 8 p. m.

Chevy Chase. Joash Chest Day will be observed tomorrow. At the 11 a. m. service the Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch will preach on "Let the Church Be the Church."

Christian Science Topic on 'Mortals'

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the church services including the Wednesday evening services at 8 o'clock.

The Golden Text is from John 12:25. "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ" (Romans, viii:16, 17).

Church of the Week

New Pastor of St. Stephens' Ardently Busy in Youth Work

By Robert Tate Allan

An ardent supporter of youth work is the Rev. George K. Bowers, new pastor of St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1611 Brentwood Road Northwest.

MR. BOWERS

Although he came to the local pulpit only a month ago, Mr. Bowers already has undertaken an extensive program for the Luther Leagues, and on Tuesday launched a week-day Luther League Night with 93 young people on hand.

While that special program will be held once a month for the present, it will eventually take place once a week, according to Mr. Bowers, who expects to expand the regular Sunday night Luther League activities. He also hopes to have his young people more actively associated with city-wide youth work.

The attraction for the December 18 Luther League Night will be Bert Takaake Kobayashi, Christian Japanese youth of Honolulu, and Mr. Bowers' former classmate at Gettysburg College, who will give a demonstration of jiu jitsu. He is now a Harvard law student. Miss Jean Donaldson supervises the work of the Junior and Senior Luther Leagues of St. Stephen's.

Mr. Bowers has had a wide background of youth work, for during his seminary days he was superintendent of interdenominational young people's work in Adams County, and director of the united youth movement under the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association.

When attending the youth conference of the International Council of Religious Education at Columbus, Ohio, in 1938, he was selected as a delegate to the International Youth Conference in Amsterdam in 1939, but illness prevented his participation. He also has worked in collaboration with Miss Mary B. Amo in the China relief work under the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. While attending Trinity Lutheran Church in Bedford, Pa., he was secretary of the Bedford District Luther Leagues.

Mr. Bowers was graduated from Gettysburg College as valedictorian in 1937, and was given the Leander M. Zimmerman Memorial Award for being the class' outstanding member for four years. As new St. Stephen's pastor, he succeeds the Rev. Sam H. Kornmann, who is now doing Lutheran inner mission work in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Bowers will be ordained to the ministry in May, 1941, and then formally installed as pastor. He will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Greatest Enemy of Gratitude." The Sunday School will meet at 9:45 a. m. and the Luther Leagues at 7 p. m.

Ethiopian to Give National City Church Program

Larnardo Ackerr, an Ethiopian and a member of the Coptic Church, and an accomplished musician-speaker, will present a program tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. in the Vermont Avenue Social Hall of National City Christian Church, 1308 Vermont Avenue Northwest. Dr. Raphael H. Miller will preach at the church services at 11 a. m. on "The Church Is a Going Concern."

Columbia Heights. The Month of Evangelism at the church continues. The subject for tomorrow morning will be "A Gospel to Be Proud of." In the evening the Rev. A. P. Wilson will preach the second sermon on "Fundamental Beliefs of the Disciples," the topic being "The Disciples' Plea for Christian Union."

Ninth Street. "We Can Still Be Thankful" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. Clifford H. Jope at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow.

Third. The Rev. C. N. Williams will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "For What Is the World Safe"?

Churches Plan Thanksgiving Services

Special Observances Of Season Also Listed for Tomorrow

Thousands of Washingtonians will kneel in sanctuaries on Thursday morning to give thanks for freedom of worship and other blessings, as Thanksgiving Day is celebrated. Many churches have arranged special services for tomorrow.

Highspot of Thursday's services will be community programs in various churches.

Diplomatic, governmental, ecclesiastical and other leaders will attend the annual Pan American solemn pontificial mass on Thanksgiving morning at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will pontificate; the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Washington and Baltimore, will preside, and the Right Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, of Catholic University, preach.

Eight congregations located near the upper Sixteenth Street and Mount Pleasant area will unite in the fifteenth annual Union Thanksgiving Service at 11 a. m. Thursday, at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road, with Bishop Edgar B. Brossard presiding, the Rev. Seth R. Brooks preaching, and music supplied by the Washington Chapel Choir, under the direction of D. Sterling Wheelwright.

Participating Clergymen

Participating clergymen and their congregations will include Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, All Souls' Unitarian, the Rev. Paul Yinger, Cleveland Park Congregational; the Rev. A. P. Wilson, Columbia Heights Christian; Dr. Robin Gould, Francis Asbury Methodist; Dr. Edgar B. Brossard, Washington Ward, L. D. S.; Dr. Fred Buschmeyer, Mount Pleasant Congregational; Dr. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist National Memorial, and the Friends' Meeting.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will occupy the pulpit on Thanksgiving Day at the Washington Cathedral at 11 a. m. Special music will be sung by the cathedral choir of men and boys under the direction of Paul Callaway, organist and choirmaster.

Neighborhood Services

Other neighborhood services on Thanksgiving Day will be centered at the Memorial United Brethren Church, North Capitol and R Streets Northwest; McKendree Methodist, Woodbridge; Takoma Park Presbyterian, First Congregational, Tenth and G Streets Northwest; Chevy Chase Presbyterian, and other churches.

Young people of Waugh Methodist Church will hold their annual Thanksgiving watch service on Thursday at 6:30 a. m., with Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, Methodist resident prelate, preaching. Breakfast will be served at 7:30 a. m.

'Night Club' Night at St. Paul's

D. C. Church Press To Open First Contest Monday

The Washington Church Press Association will open its first church publication contest Monday at 8 p. m. at the Washington Federation of Churches' Building, 1749-51 N Street Northwest. It also will be the monthly meeting of the organization.

The contest, which will run from 8 to 10 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will feature two classes of church publications and congregational papers, such as young people's and Bible class periodicals and church bulletins. Other material will be on exhibition.

The public is invited to vote on the two classes, on the basis of excellence of layout, quality of material and editorial composition. First, second and third prize ribbons will be given in each class. The material will be displayed in the library room of the Federation Building. William J. Egbert, of Mount Rainier Christian Church, is chief scribe of the association, which is composed of church publicity workers.

Bishop Freeman Will Address Mission Session

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will speak tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral at the annual local observance of Men and Missions Sunday.

Many local Protestant congregations will participate in the interdenominational service, at which Dr. H. W. Burgan, pastor of Hamline Methodist Church, and Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will assist.

Sermon Topics As Scheduled For Tomorrow

First and Calvary Baptist Church tomorrow at 8 p. m. will unite in union service with New York Avenue Presbyterian Church at the latter place, with Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, First Church pastor and Washington Federation of Churches' president, preaching on "It Isn't As Simple As That." Massed choirs will sing.

Chevy Chase. A Harvest Home service will feature services tomorrow morning. The Rev. Edward O. Clark will give a Thanksgiving sermon on the theme "Thank God for Democracy!" The service will also observe the anniversary of the building fund, and an effort will be made to increase building fund contributions in view of the recent decision to proceed with the new building project in the near future.

Metropolitan. "Thanksgiving de Luxe" will be the theme of Dr. John Compton Ball tomorrow morning. The Senior B. Y. P. U. will decorate the platform to represent a harvest field. Donations of groceries, canned goods, etc., will be received for the benefit of the Home for Aged Ladies.

Calvary. Dr. W. S. Abernethy will preach tomorrow morning on the subject "The Great Commission Still Stands." The children's story sermon topic will be "The Man Who Wouldn't Give Up."

Takoma. In observance of "Men and Missions Sunday" the men of the congregation have been asked by the Men's Bible Class to attend the service tomorrow morning and sit in a body. The Rev. Walter O. Lewis, D. D., general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, will preach the sermon.

Brookland. "A Christian Hope for the World," will be the sermon topic of the Rev. M. C. Stith tomorrow at 11 a. m. Special recognition of young people who have recently taken a Training Union Study Course will be made at 7:45 p. m. Diplomas will be presented.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Fire, Flood, Log Jam, Two Songs, A Pale 'Moon Over Burma,' Earle

Three-Star Cast Have Trouble in Tropical Jungle; Roxyettes' Birthday

"MOON OVER BURMA." Paramount picturization of a story by Wilson Collison, adapted to the screen by Frank Wead. W. P. Lipscomb and Harry Clork, starring Dorothy Lamour, with Robert Preston Foster, Doris Nolan, Albert Basserman, Frederic Worlock, Addison Richards, Harry Allen, Frank Lackteen and Stanley Price. Directed by Louis King. At the Earle.

Take a jigger of "Torrid Zone" and a dash of "The Rains Came," add a couple of cobras and stir in a herd of elephants—a good trick even if you can't do it — put the whole mixture down to simmer in a tropical jungle and what you will get probably will be "Moon Over Burma."

BELL

This Paramount screen feature of the new bill at the Earle has its locale in the Burmese Teakwood forests, where Bill Gordon is foreman of the camp, Chuck Lane, a lad with a Grade A thirst, his assistant, and Arnold Renner, blinded by a cobra bite, the ostensible Mr. Big. On one of his benders in Rangoon, Chuck acquires a honky-tonk singer whom he escorts into the wilds so that she may fall in love with Bill and thus nurture such plot as "Moon Over Burma" possesses. The gruff Mr. Renner, with the proverbial heart of gold, takes a shine to the gal and so paves the way for her to engineer the proceedings by which Bill and Chuck defeat the elaborate campaign of sabotage launched against the old man by his dear friend, the gilded guy with all the jack.

These dastardly enterprises do not include the blowing up of any munitions plants, but manage to do very well with a fake tiger scare to terrorize the natives, a forest fire, elephantine attacks of indigestion and a log jam that gets the two boys into one of their own. The torrential rains fall a little outside the plotters' province. After Bill has unbottled the jam with a blast of dynamite and been hauled out of the rapids more dead than alive, as the saying goes, he discovers, much to his chagrin, that the gal is his'n.

The disturbing element in all this is Arla Dean, impersonated by Dorothy Lamour, who this time employs cutaway skirts and revelatory romp suits, instead of a sarong, to demonstrate again that she is one of the most cutaneous, if not the cutest, of our cinema sirens. While the unaccustomed costumes and long bob may be deceptive for a moment, two sultry songs, sung in characteristic fashion, will soon convince any skeptic that it is Lamour. Bill and Chuck are sturdily portrayed by Preston Foster and Robert Preston, who leaven their left hooks with dialogue as lively as Frank Wead, W. P. Lipscomb and Harry Clork were able to think up. Albert Basserman's simulation of blindness is convincingly realistic. So is the needed lesson in the virtues of rectitude he imparts to Addison Richards, as the renegade boss of Camp No. 1, with a bull whip. Doris Nolan is a decorative "bit" player, who knows love when she sees it, and Stanley Price the most prominent of the "natives," as Khuda, the house servant. The elephants are a little on the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey side, but the cobras make one wish there were a mongoose around.

Harry Anger's "Birthday Party" revue is dedicated to the Roxyettes second anniversary at the Earle and presents the versatile group in a rope-skipping number and an unusually effective modernization of Paderewski's "Minuet," which, somehow, doesn't seem a sacrilege the way they do it.

The featured specialties run preponderantly to gymnastics and legerdemain. The Canistrellis Troupe—a whole stageful of them—do amazing things on balancing ladders, with a little juggling thrown in, and Gali-Gali, the Egyptain magician (from Cairo, Ill., do doubt) baffles all and sundry with his mystifying sleight-of-hand, which seems to be greatly improved since his last appearance here. Walter Dare Wahl and his limber and long-suffering assistant repeat the comedy acrobatics at which the bulky Mr. Wahl so long has excelled.

"The Flag of Humanity," a Technicolor recital of the difficulties overcome by Clara Barton in founding the Red Cross; a new issue of the newsreel and Eileen Ritter's "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike," confined this week to titles based on girls' names, are the supplementaries of a feature that doesn't take itself any more seriously than you will.

Big Lighting Order Is Filled for Film

One of the most intricate set lighting jobs in Hollywood history was completed this week by Earl Crowell, Paramount set lighting engineer.

The set is a New York roof garden for a scene in Paramount's "A Date With Destiny," which features Basil Rathbone, John Howard and Ellen Drew. Crowell was directed to simulate the flashing lights of New York.

A Lass and a Lackadaisical!

DOROTHY LAMOUR

as the languorous young heroine in Paramount's production of "Moon Over Burma," the new week's screen attraction at the Earle Theater. Preston Foster and Robert Preston are her rival leading men in this romance of the Far East jungles, in which Nature breaks out in violent manifestations

'A Little Bit of Heaven' Returns Gloria Jean to Keith's

By Richard L. Coe

"A LITTLE BIT OF HEAVEN." Universal picturization of a screen-play by Daniel Taradash, Gertrude Purcell and Harold Goldman, with Gloria Jean, Robert Stack, Hugh Herbert, C. Aubrey Smith, Stuart Erwin, Nan Grey, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert, Butch and Buddy, Nana Bryant, Tommy Bond, Charles Ray, Noah Beery, sr., Maurice Costello, Monte Blue, Pat O'Malley, Kenneth Harlan, William Desmond and Fred Kelsey. A Joe Pasternak production, directed by Andrew Marton. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

Never once does the cold shadow of reality blemish the blue sky of "A Little Bit of Heaven." RKO-Keith's new film stars 13-year-old Gloria Jean in much the same sort of role which introduced her to the public in "The Under-Pup."

As its title and star's background imply, "A Little Bit of Heaven" has absolutely no pretentions whatever. It's a rags-to-riches tale, lauding plain, homey simplicity and if wholesome sweetness and light isn't your dish, don't mutter anything about having been robbed.

You may recall that "The Under-Pup" introduced Gloria Jean as a Universal stablemate to Deanna Durbin. Knowing Joe Pasternak, who had guided the incomparable Deanna through her consecutive hits, is the younger girl's mentor and applies his shrewd fairy-tale technique to this latest venture with more conscious effort than is convincing.

Supporting the Family

This time Gloria has the same family she had in "The Under-Pup." They're not in the $5,000 a year bracket by any means, but they have stew on Monday, fish on Friday and good clean fun. Grandpa is still the head of the family and when he puts thumbs down on Gloria's radio offer, matters seem at a standstill unless you remember the good old movie maxim that love will find a way.

So it's natural that an entente cordiale should arise between Gloria's luscious blonde sister, played by Nan Grey, and Gloria's attractive discoverer, Robert Stack. It is to their mutual and material advantage that Gloria should have a radio career, making a couple of hundred a week support an establishment that would try the checkbook of a millionaire.

However that may be, when the family comes up from Grub Street to the right side of New York's Central Park, the shift turns their heads. And can you blame them? Well, that's a question, but they behave as law-abiding film nouveau riche are supposed to behave and Gloria and Grandpa have to resort to all sorts of subterfuge to shake them back in shape.

Glimpse of Old-Timers

For humor there is a collection of uncles who are all employed by the city, as zoo attendants, street cleaners, traffic cops, etc. There is the explosive geniality of Billy Gilbert and the restrained, soft-spoken genius of those misguided zealots, Butch and Buddy.

Gloria sings a group of five songs, "A Little Bit of Heaven," "After Ev'ry Rainstorm," "What Did We Learn at School?" "Dawn of Love" and High School Cadets." The little star has a pleasant, small soprano and is most appealing in her unrestrained, carefree moments, spots when she is singing in the street or riding an inventive bicycle.

Her supporting company is amiable with Stack, Miss Grey, Hugh Herbert, C. Aubrey Smith, Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin in the more important leads. There are also welcome glimpses of old-timers Charles Ray, Maurice Costello, Monte Blue, Kenneth Harlan and others noted in the small type above.

Keith's short subjects include an "Information Please" with Christopher Morley as guest expert, "Picture People," with off-the-lot shots of film folk and the latest Universal newsreel.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 15.

DR. CLARK HOWELL FOREMAN, director of the Power Division for PWA, is the coauthor of "Total Defense." This is the book which enunciated those principles for establishing cultural and economic relations with Pan America which Nelson Rockefeller's defense-group now is following . . . Dr. Foreman's cousin, Clark Howell, owns the Atlanta Constitution, and whenever Foreman would do something which was newsworthy, Clark Howell would publish it—and refer to him as Clark Howell Foreman . . . When President Roosevelt began his famous purge, Foreman was sent to Atlanta, to purge Senator George. The Atlanta Constitution supported George. And so, ever since then, when Clark Howell Foreman does something which is newsworthy, Clark Howell's Atlanta Constitution still publishes it—but refers to him merely as "Dr. C. H. Foreman."

LYONS

THE SECOND "Information Please" movie-short featuring Wendell Willkie—the short which became the subject of political recriminations—will be released early next year . . . Despite all the announcements about the movie production of "Tobacco Road"—wherein research men have been sent to Georgia: Nunnally Johnson has been paid for writing the movie adaptation; and Marjorie Rambeau and Gene Tierney have been signed to appear in it—the fact remains that Jack Kirkland, who wrote and owns the play, still hasn't signed the contract of sale.

A HIGH RUMANIAN official, who has been recalled to his country, refuses to return—because of $1,200,000 he smuggled out of Rumania to America, in behalf of Auschnig, the industrialist who now is in jail there . . . Fritz Mandl, former husband of Hedy Lamarr, who is returning to the Argentine, opened a bicycle factory in Buenos Aires . . . William Saroyan and Artie Shaw have written a song, with Saroyan's lyrics and Shaw's music. It begins: "Shake your left foot, . . . The 90-second plea for National Unity, which is being flashed on motion picture screens throughout the country, was conceived and written by Harry Warner.

"UNCLE SAM Gets Around," the Rainger & Robin song which was written for the Hollywood-for-Roosevelt broadcast, has received an amazing reception. All the music companies are bidding for it; Universal and Twentieth Century-Fox want to put it into a movie: John Charles Thomas wants to make a recording of it; Harry Richman will feature it immediately, and Irving Berlin said it's as good as "Ballad for Americans." . . . This is how the song was born: Allen Rivkin, the Warner writer who worked on that broadcast, assigned Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin to write a song for it. They didn't know where to begin. Rivkin therefore wrote a 2,500-word description of the social reforms of the past 7 years. Robin, the lyricist, condensed this essay into less than 50 lines of verse . . . And when the campaign was over, Robin checked among his friends and sighed: "Americans are funny people. They'll fight to the death for the right to vote—and then never show up at the polls."

GREGORY RATOFF, heading a syndicate, has offered $50,000 for the film rights to Nina Federova's novel, "The Family." . . . The proprietor of "Treasure Island," the elegant Broadway night club which closed for one night last week because of lack of funds, reopened it by selling the garage he owns . . . With all the other candidates being mentioned for the job of Mayor LaGuardia's successor at City Hall, the most serious contender still is Attorney General Bennett . . . Contrary to all reports, Harry Hopkins will not retire to the Hyde Park Library yet. He has other plans . . . Al Jolson has given up appearing at any benefit shows. If the charity is worthwhile Jolson, instead, contributes $500.

H. G. WELLS, who now is lecturing throughout the country, is telling the story of his seventieth birthday party. Shaw, who was 80 then, was one of the guests . . . When all the other dinner guests had completed paying homage to Wells, Shaw felt compelled to add his contribution . . . "H. G.," he told the renowned writer, "you're a nice fellow—but you can't write."

BRUCE CABOT now refuses to permit night club photographers to take his picture, and explains to them: "I'm not photogenic." . . . Bea Lillie, for the first time, had one of her letters to America by the censors last week. She wrote to friends that Jack Buchanan averted disaster, when the theater in which he is performing was destroyed by bombs. Then she added that this letter was being written in the bomb-shelter at the Dorchester House, when—and the censor cut the rest of the letter . . . Katharine Locke has returned from Hollywood where she was screen-tested for the role of Bette Davis' sister. The test wasn't acceptable only because she looked and sounded like Miss Davis.

Bing, Basil, Mary and Oscar Move 'Rhythm' to the Met.

Broadway's best gift to Hollywood for years, Mary Martin, is teamed up with Bing Crosby in the catchiest and loveliest tunes of the season in "Rhythm on the River," playing a repeat engagement at the Metropolitan. And just to be big-hearted, the producers have pitched in one of the best spark-plugs of "Information, Please", the dour, but comic, Mr. Oscar Levant.

"Rhythm on the River" begins in Nobody's Inn, an uncommon hostelry, where Bing hangs out on an abandoned ferryboat, listens to the songs of the wavelets and sells them to an elegant heel (Basil Rathbone) for next to nothing. Just to make a good story, Mary Martin, who writes the lyrics for Rathbone, turns up at Nobody's Inn. From there the story twists, turns, does back-flips and nip-ups, all very fetching but not important except as they involve songs and comedy by Martin, Crosby and Levant.

"Only Forever" is already resounding into the ears of the public thousands of times an evening via the voices of night club singers all over the country. Anyone with a fair voice can sing it effectively. But this critic prefers the gayety of "That's For Me", "Rhythm on the River" and "Ain't It a Shame About Mame?". And you will never hear these top-notchers at their top-notchiest unless you hear them done by Mary and Bing. When Bing steps into Wingy Mannone's band as drummer in "Rhythm on the River," the result is the most stupendous and contagious Dixieland swing you'll ever hear. And what Miss Martin does to that ditty about Mame is an undiluted delight.

Oscar Levant's role, while not so very big, gives him plenty of opportunity for the acid-edged comedy in which he excels. That excellent veteran, Charles Grapewin, contributes large gobs of humor, too, but of the homelier type.

"Rhythm on the River" is perfect diversion for those who prefer their entertainment untainted by the slightest smidgeon of seriousness. And it should call for another Crosby-Martin picture—soon.

Shots of the scenes of recent mysterious explosions and fires appear in the newsreel, also views of Canadian concentration camps where German prisoners are held. There's an Andy Clyde comedy that's fine if you like Andy Clyde comedies.

MARY HARRIS.

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 15.

Now that Darryl Zanuck is going ahead with the picture, "The Great American Broadcast," I wonder how many of you realize that radio, which we all take more or less for granted, wasn't born till 1920. And its pappy was Maj. Andrew White, who, together with Ted Sherdeman, wrote the story which is based on his discovery and the growth of radio.

HOPPER

The first equipment radio used belonged to the United States Navy, which owned a short wave with lots of dots and dashes, and they had to broadcast from New Jersey so that the SOS's for ships at sea weren't interfered with. Studio was in the Lackawanna Railroad Tower, a recreation room taken over from the Negro porters, who were furious because it interfered with their crap games.

When the famous Dempsey and Carpentier fight was scheduled, the major conceived the idea of putting it on the air. Well, he couldn't buy anything, and the Navy didn't even know he was using their material, and the problem was—how to transfer this new invention over to Boyle's Field, which was miles away! They had no loud speakers, so he went with his problem to Tex Rickard. Anne Morgan, and John Ringling.

During the discussion, a friend of Ringling's, whose name was Frank, was present. Ringling got cold feet—said nobody would stay home to listen to that darn thing. But after the major explained the situation, Frank said, "I've got a hunch it will work," and asked the major where he got his equipment. He answered, "We swiped it from the United States Navy." Frank then said, "Well, you've got the best set in the world. I'd go ahead with the idea."

And when he left the room, the major turned to Ringling and said, "Who was that man?" Ringling replied, "That was Franklin D. Roosevelt—Assistant Secretary of the Navy."

The major then bought 3,000 loud speakers for 30 cents apiece. You know—the old horn you used to use for your phonograph? But he still couldn't get a theater for the broadcast to be heard in. Had a meeting with big showmen of New York who turned him down. As he was leaving the place, a little guy beckoned to him and said, "I heard that speech of yours, and I've made all my money going against those wise guys. I'll give you a theater." He did. That man was Marcus Loew.

They chose a theater over on Eighth Avenue because they thought the truck drivers and people like that would be interested in hearing the fight. The price, advertised in huge banners across the street, was a dollar a seat. But no sales. The day of the fight, price was reduced to 25 cents. Then they had to get the police and fire department to keep the crowds back.

His next problem was to get actors to go through the snow to New Jersey, and he never knew when they'd arrive. The Happiness Boys sang 57 songs one day while waiting for the headliners!

Louella O. Parsons' Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Chicago, Nov. 15 (INS).—How do you like this for a musical comedy cast—Ann Sothern, Eleanor Powell and Tony Martin in George Gershwin's hit of former years "Lady Be Good?" that, my friends, is the box-office package M-G-M is wrapping up for a New Year's starting date. It's amusing that Ann, who writes songs in her spare time, will play a song writer; Eleanor Powell, who has been ill and off the screen so long, plays a dancer and Tony Martin will be a radio singer. That's what I call casting to type.

PARSONS

Binnie Barnes isn't accepting the role offered her in "New Wine," not only because she wants to remain on tour with us but because she is also being deluged with stage plays. I never go into her dressing room without finding her reading one of the many sent her by New York producers. Although Binnie is a very well known actress she says that this personal appearance tour has done more than anything in her entire life to promote her.

Before we left Chicago a group of us went to Pizzeria-Napolitana where many of the opera folk and music lovers gather for song and spaghetti. Everybody sings on the slightest provocation and when one girl burst into an aria from "La Boheme" so charmingly, I asked her name. She is Maryum Horm and was studying opera in Europe when the war broke out. Hollywood scouts—here is a real bet for you!

Snapshots of Hollywood and Chicago collected at random: Just received a wire that Constance Bennett's divorce was granted in Reno. She will return to Hollywood Saturday; had a talk with Carmen Miranda at Chez Paree and her accent is the cutest I ever heard. She sings her South American numbers and then ends up with "Oh Johnny," in broken English. She leaves for the Coast Sunday for "The Road to Rio." So far she can't speak English well enough to say her lines but she's studying and says: "I work verra, verra hard and when you come back to Hollywood I speak to you in English;" Jack Malloy hosted our party the last evening in Chicago at the Chez Paree and it was very gay.

Talk is that George Raft has bought a night club in Miami. He'll have competition from Slapsy Maxie Rosenbloom who is opening his salon there some time after December 10, when he closes in Hollywood; the gorgeous Camelia Room in the Hotel Drake is the talk of the town. Dorothy Draper is the decorator and she's still taking bows; Ad Randall has been taking Jean Acker to dinner in Hollywood; Nick Grinde says Marie Wilson is still his best girl and she isn't interested in anyone else; Joey Ray, who used to be sooooo interested in Elaine Barrymore has switched to Lillian Cameron, a New York actress, out for a test.

That wedding ring Olympe Branda is wearing wasn't left there by Doug Wilhoit. It's a family heirloom—or, anyway, that's Olympe's story; Dolores del Rio flies back to Hollywood from Mexico City today.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

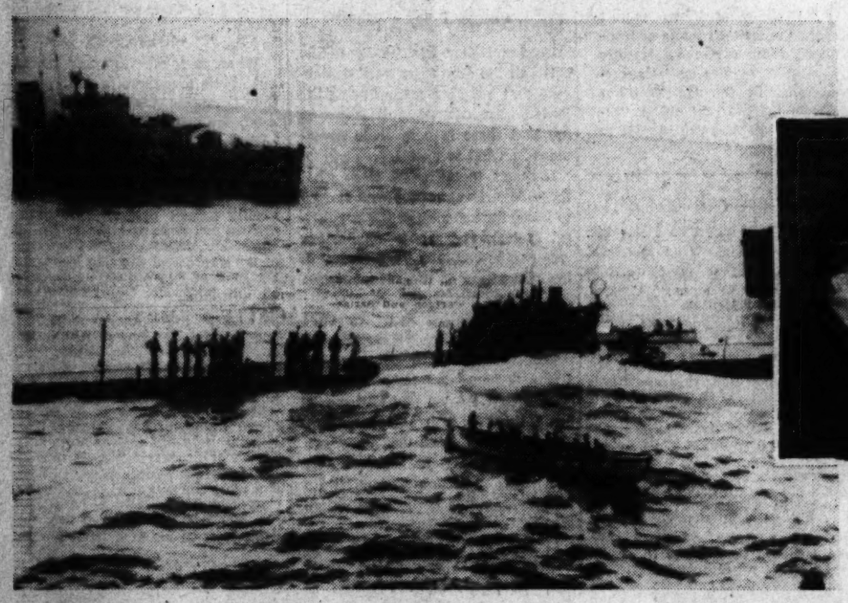
Talk about Bargains

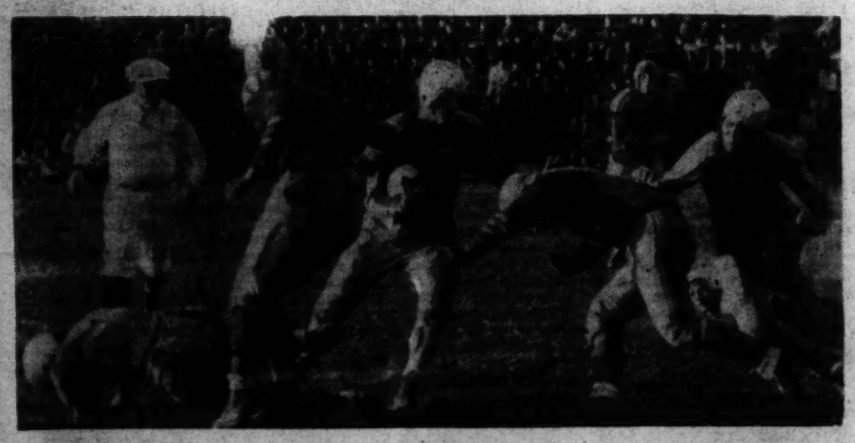
...here's a bargain in Sunday entertainment!

FOR ONLY A DIME YOU GET THE BIG SUNDAY POST
—TEN SECTIONS FULL OF NEWS, PICTURES, FEATURES



If you've a nose for news . . .

The Post is headquarters for news, because only The Post, in Washington, gets the reports of all three of the big press associations: Associated Press (AP), United Press (UP), International News Service (INS). For foreign news this is supplemented by the dispatches of the New York Tribune and New York Times services, and Wirephoto provides news pictures.



For Sunday morning quarterbacks

The Sunday Post's big peach sports section is the football fans' delight, with stories, scores, action pictures. And sports columns on many topics—Shirley Povich and Bob Considine, of course—Bill Ackerman on hunting and fishing, George Berner on dogs, Anne Hagner on horse shows, Merrell Whittlesey on golf, Marshall Andrews on boats, Margaret Davis on women's athletics, Bill Burnett on school sports, plus Walter Haight's racing news. Don't miss Jack Munhall's story of the Georgetown-Boston College game!

So you want to know what it's all about . . .

The special articles, columnists, and editorials in the Sunday Post give you an intelligent background for your own appraisal of the news of the day. For instance, this Sunday's Post carries an article on Greece, touching on the old days of Roman and then Turkish domination—the story of America's tremendous new roads program, forced by defense needs—the concise war review, summarizing a week packed with unusual events—the Gallup Poll giving the country's views on national unity.

You like fiction, do you?

EVERY Sunday The Post offers its readers a complete novel of approximately 40,000 words, illustrated in colors, printed in a separate 16-page tabloid section for your convenience in reading and handling. Tomorrow's novel, SO VERY INNOCENT, by Maysie Greig, is the romantic adventure of an orphan girl adopted into the world of London society.

Don't be ashamed to say you like the comics

One of The Post's classic office anecdotes is about the important Washington dignitary who, when asked what he liked best about The Post, answered very frankly: "Don Winslow of the Navy!" Yes, almost everyone enjoys the comics, and the Sunday Post has more of them for you to enjoy—not only Don Winslow but 38 others besides!

When it comes to pictures

New Blood For NLRB

If men like Dr. Harry A. Millis had been appointed to the National Labor Relations Board when it was first created, a vast amount of controversy, ill-feeling and confusion in industrial and labor circles might have been avoided. Dr. Millis is known for his ability in settling labor disputes instead of for an aptitude in creating antagonism between employers and employes. And he has earned this reputation because, primarily, he has the confidence of working men in both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., and the confidence of employers, too.

It may be taken for granted that Dr. Millis' appointment will bring about a reorganization of the board. William M. Leiserson has been unable to effect various changes he believes to be desirable because of the opposition of other members. Now Dr. Millis and Dr. Leiserson will constitute a majority of the board. It is they who will make the policy of the NLRB in so far as they are in agreement, and this seems likely, since they appear to have a great deal in common. Their problem of reorganization has already been facilitated by the resignation of Nathan Witt as NLRB secretary.

Dr. Millis is a University of Chicago economist as well as a veteran arbiter of labor disputes. His thorough knowledge of labor problems is indicated by his selection to direct the Twentieth Century Fund's survey of collective bargaining in American industry. Perhaps his practical experience is best illustrated by his recent designation as grievance umpire for the United Automobile Workers and General Motors Corporation. Nor is he a stranger to governmental service. As a member of the old Labor Board which preceded the NLRB, he established a reputation for good judgment and fair dealing. The country is indeed fortunate that the deadlock in the NLRB has been broken by such an excellent appointment.

It doesn't follow that amendment of the Labor Relations Act will now be unnecessary, but the board is certainly better equipped than it has been heretofore to promote the interests of genuine collective bargaining.

The Six-Day Week

In his address before the Academy of Political Science Alfred P. Sloan, jr., advocated a return to the six-day week in industry "as soon as the slack of unemployment has been taken up and the increasing speed of industry has been utilized to the fullest practical extent."

Lengthening of the working week under such conditions would encounter little, if any, opposition from labor. Indeed, it would probably be welcomed by many workers since longer hours mean more pay. The challenge in Mr. Sloan's statement lies in his demand that the "penalty for overtime should be canceled during the emergency to encourage a longer work week." There the chairman of General Motors touches upon the chief obstacle to a return to the six-day week—the necessity that industry is under of paying higher hourly rates for overtime.

Both the Federal wage-hour law and the Walsh-Healey Act, applicable to work on Government contracts, require time and a half payment for overtime. And union contracts sometime call for still higher overtime rates. For instance, union carpenters employed on a nearby cantonment project recently struck successfully to enforce demands for double rates of pay for overtime. Work on the cantonment had been going forward on a 24-hour basis, thereby indicating that in this case the pay, not the hours of work, constituted the bone of contention.

Following his references to overtime, Mr. Sloan made the even more challenging assertion that the defense program should not be made the occasion for increases in wage rates that could not be economically justified. By that he means that wage rates should not be increased unless productive output rises correspondingly or adjustments are required to offset rising living costs.

Unquestionably widespread advances in wage rates in these circumstances would have serious consequences. Not only would prices and living costs advance as labor costs rose, bringing new demands for wage increases, but production for defense purposes would be hampered by undue diversion of income to consumer goods purchases. For such reasons Mr. Sloan rightly concludes that the "greatest source of inflationary danger at the moment is in the increase in wage rates and its impact on costs."

His warning has come none too soon, for wage disputes have already assumed serious proportions, and threaten to retard work on defense contracts.

D. C. Improvements

Washington's planners are discussing several immense and costly municipal projects. The Commissioners' request for funds to finance engineering studies of new bridges over or tunnels under the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers has been followed by a decision in the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to seek an appropriation for the first units of Fort Drive. The latter project alone might cost as much as $15,000,000.

If all these improvements should be undertaken at the same time, they would impose a staggering new tax burden on the community. Yet none of these plans can be dismissed on the ground that it is fantastic. The fact is that Washington has outgrown its present highway and bridge system. Physical improvements have not kept pace with our enormous increase in population during the last few years. Certainly it is not too soon to lay definite plans for the correction of these deficiencies.

The proposed tunnel connecting the southern end of the District with Alexandria would be linked up with the proposed new Washington-Baltimore boulevard. Through traffic, particularly trucks, could thus be kept entirely outside of the city's congested area. The proposed tube under the Anacostia at South Capitol Street would also be connected with this main artery so as to relieve Highway Bridge where the congestion is rapidly becoming intolerable. With the prospect of greatly increased activity at the Navy Yard and Bolling Field, to say nothing of the new National Airport, these improvements may have to be placed in the "urgent" category.

Fort Drive, too, must be undertaken in the not distant future. The fact that it would link 15 Civil War forts is incidental. Far more important is the fact that it would provide Washington with a "belt-line" highway circling through the outskirts of the city from Conduit Road to Blue Plains. This proposed four-lane "free way," which would have no intersections at grade and no traffic lights, would relieve congestion downtown and greatly facilitate the movement of traffic from one outlying section of the city to another. It, too, would be linked up with the proposed tunnels or bridges.

Before any such projects are undertaken, however, they must be carefully integrated into a comprehensive highway plan for Washington. Fortunately, the city is now conducting a survey that will give a complete picture of its deficiencies in highways and bridges. In turn these needs must be integrated with the demands for numerous other municipal improvements. Washington's recent growth has accentuated its shortage of decent schools and its need for a new home for the aged, a children's receiving home and additional health centers.

The District's obligation to safeguard public health and to relieve distress among local residents should not be neglected even to minimize traffic congestion. Commissioner Hazen very properly suggests that hearings be held so that local residents may express their views as to which improvements are the most urgent.

Mr. Lewis And The C.I.O.

The question of whether it is to be peace and reunion or continued schism for organized labor seems now to depend upon what follows when Mr. John L. Lewis offers to resign as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations when that body convenes next week at Atlantic City. Justly or otherwise, Mr. Lewis has been considered the one great impediment to reconciliation.

It is impossible to believe, despite some suggestion to the contrary, that Mr. Lewis will not keep to the letter of his promise to place his resignation before the convention. It is difficult to believe that the resignation, once offered, will be withdrawn by him, or refused by the delegates. Apparently demonstrations of loyalty and confidence in the Lewis leadership have been organized in some C. I. O. unions. But thus far the movement to "draft" Mr. Lewis back to office, gives little sign of spontaneity or of having had its original impulse among the rank and file.

There remains, however, the question of whether it is possible for Mr. Lewis to step down from office without actually stepping down from power, and if so, whether this is his intention. It is quite possible that, despite the grievous loss of face he has suffered in the outcome of the Presidential election, Mr. Lewis retains enough influence to see that his successor is chosen from among his own followers. In this way, behind the facade of his retirement, he might continue to exert as much power as ever over the bureaucratic machinery and the policies of the C. I. O. In any event, Mr. Lewis would remain head of the powerful United Mine Workers of America, and, by virtue of that position alone, could still exert a far from inconsiderable influence.

However, the prospect at the eve of the convention seems to favor the choice of Mr. Phillip Murray, first vice chairman of the C. I. O., as successor to Mr. Lewis. Though Mr. Murray has been known as the close friend and collaborator of Mr. Lewis, his election, it is said, would be welcomed, not only by those C. I. O. leaders now vigorously opposed to Lewis, but also by the leaders of the A. F. of L. who likewise are hoping for an end to the schism.

The statement by President Green of the A. F. of L. that Mr. Lewis no longer exerts the same influence on the rank and file of C. I. O. members as during the recent abortive peace negotiations, is given plausibility in the tabulation of election figures by States and districts. That Mr. Lewis took few votes beside his own to Mr. Willkie is evident enough in the returns from the great Midwestern centers of the automotive industry and the great textile centers of Massachusetts and New Jersey. The defection of members of Mr. Lewis' own union is plainly reflected in the Roosevelt pluralities in the great anthracite and bituminous districts of Pennsylvania. These combined the great industrial cities of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton to give the President his victory in that State. In West Virginia it was much the same story.

But Mr. Lewis' services to labor have been too many and of too long standing for it to be said at this stage that the 1940 election was the full and final test of his prestige, even though it was the test he had chosen himself.

Coventry Laid Waste

It would be natural to think that the Nazi bombers are responsible for a great falling off in industrial (i.e., armament) output in Britain. Loss of time while the workers are in the air raid shelters, damage to factories, transfer of factory sites from metropolitan London—these factors spring to the eyes by way of support for such a view.

The picture, however, isn't as simple as that. Industrial Britain woke up on May 10, when the Nazi legions poured into Holland and Belgium. Industry for the first time then began to hum on a kind of war stroke of production, and workers even complained when air raid sirens sounded the signal to stop work. Yet some kinds of munitions, chiefly shells, have been increased notably, though output as a whole, according to the best available evidence, has gone down as a result of the air war.

A counterbalancing factor is that great strides have been made in dispersing the arms industry. This was undertaken somewhat late in the day. Britons used to take comfort from the fact that they entered a war that was bound to be total with a decentralized industry. Unlike Germany, whose industries lie like jewels on a tray along the Rhine, Britain had scattered her industrial equipment or, rather, it had been scattered for her by natural evolution. Centers of industry are to be found north and south and east and west. Accordingly the decentralization that the Nazis forced upon the British, while by no means systematic or complete, meant no branching out from a single center.

Coventry doubtless got some of the munitions work formerly done in the metropolitan area. It was a thriving industrial center long before the war. An ancient town located in Shakespeare's country, it slept through many centuries, famous mainly as the scene of Lady Godiva's ride. That virtuous and public spirited lady rode on a horse. But Coventry half a century ago supplied the means for a generation of Britons to ride awheel, then it pioneered in automobiles, and of late years it has been the site of the rayon industry. Judging from the Nazis' choice of Coventry as the object of their first successful attack on an industrial area outside London—at least on any considerable scale—the Midland city is a munitions maker of importance, too.

Perhaps the raid will be a bad setback to munitions output. This, at any rate, will be aspect of the attack that will concern fighting Britain. And that it should be her foremost consideration is the best tribute to the civilian morale. Sir Ian Hamilton, in a letter to an American friend in this city, writes of the way the civilian is taking it as equal to any example among professional soldiers in military history. It's hard enough to endure dive-bombing. It's worse to be kept awake and apprehensive by the constant threat of it. But worst of all is the inability of the civilian to strike back—he must keep on taking it.

Perhaps the knowledge that at last British arms are giving for him as much as he is taking will help civilian England better to bear this spectacle of an industrial city in ruins and full of casualties.

Jitterbugging Swings Itself Out

From The Dallas Journal

The other day a Seattle man was doing a bit of jitterbugging with his wife when he slipped on a rug and dove out the window.

Maybe the rug-cutting craze had already ended before this incident. Maybe it will drag on a little longer. But the symbol is clear: The jitterbug is leaving the American scene. And there are no laments.

What forces in American life caused him to spring up in the first place? Psychologists advance the theory that all dance crazes reflect something of the social attitude of people. What brought about his demise? Maybe he just ran out. What will take his place? Perhaps it's too early to tell. The jitterbug has not yet been decently interred.

Only this much is certain. Something new will come along.

"Rim Of Freedom"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your recent editorial "Rim of Freedom" in The Post of November 13 contained too much rationalization and too little reason for me to let it pass without making some comment.

It must generally be admitted that despite the wishful thinking of editors, Mr. Roosevelt, or Mr. Willkie, there is no one, not even the President, who has had a better opportunity to know the facts, their import and implications than has Mr. Kennedy. Therefore, whatever Mr. Kennedy has to say warrants careful consideration and cannot be contradicted by statements which the editors, Mr. Willkie, or Mr. Roosevelt "prefer" to be the facts.

But regardless of whether Mr. Kennedy is correct in saying that democracy is through in England, it appears as though you have misconstrued the basic reason for our giving all possible aid to Britain. As Mr. Kennedy and others have frequently stated we are not trying to preserve the English government because it resembles our own more closely than does that of the Axis powers; but rather, we are buying time, buying very necessary and precious time.

This is the reason Mr. Kennedy extols the policy of aid to Britain as ardently as any American, and we need no other reason than this to continue aiding Britain to the utmost. So why try to confuse the issue by predicating our continued help to Britain on the moot question of whether the British government continues to resemble our own?

WM. ELLIOTT DOMINICK.
Washington, Nov. 14.

Defending The British?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All the commentators on the ship for bases deal seem to have overlooked a most critical point. Britain can now call home any troops or ships needed to defend her American possessions and we will have to do the defending in order to keep our bases. We don't own them, but we have to defend them. And in doing so we are actually defending the British rear. Has Roosevelt put us in the war?

L. C. EVERARD.

"Our Electoral System"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial "Our Electoral System" on Saturday you state "Each State has the same proportionate influence in the election of a President as it has in the enactment of legislation."

To me, this doesn't just work out. Theoretically, of course, it does, but actually when the representatives in Congress from a certain State are of both major political parties it sometimes works out that the majority party does not actually decide the legislation. Is this not true in some cases?

I am not certain that I want to see a change in the electoral system. We have had enough changes for the present but if any change is made then I should like to see the Electoral College represent more nearly the people's choice and be composed exactly as the Congress is. In the present case and probably always this would give the same results but some of the voters would feel better about it.

N. G. SHEROUSE.

Bases In Ireland

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To me there can be no such thing as neutrality in the present World War; the issues are too grave for that. We are either for or against totalitarian form of government. Eire, for her own sake, should invite Great Britain to use whatever part of Eire's coast she needs for bases of operation.

Were Germany to come off victorious (which God forbid), Eire would be in a sorry plight. Perhaps a little Gestapo treatment would cause Eireites to regret their present attitude.

Eire is sending over 70 per cent of her agricultural products to England; why not show a spirit of British sportsmanship by reversing her decision?

JOHN N. QUINN.

Democracy In England

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A widely published interview, which Ambassador Kennedy says gave a wrong impression of his thoughts, attributed to him the belief that democracy is finished in England and will be replaced by national socialism. This leads me to send you the inclosed excerpts from a letter I got this morning.

The well-known Austrian sculptor and painter, Siegfried Charoux, wrote it. His bronze, "Man With a Lamb," is in the Chicago Art Museum, his monument to Lessing graced Vienna before the Nazis came, and his bas-reliefs at Cambridge University have, I hope, escaped their bombs.

Mr. Charoux knew what national socialism is before he came to England. He is one of the non-Jewish democrats who came there to seek refuge from it. After his arrival—this was the first time he had left the Continent—he wrote me a letter so touching that it remains fixed in my memory. In it he said he had thought he had known democracy in Austria in the '20s, but since living in London he had experienced for the first time what real freedom and democracy are.

Please note that Mr. Charoux, though classified as an "enemy alien" because of his birth, is not—even now—interned by the British. He lives as freely in his London home as the bombs of the German National Socialists permit. His letter reached me through the ordinary mail. It bore no mark of having been opened by the censor.

I feel sure that you and Ambassador Kennedy will agree with me in desiring our American democracy, if put to such a test as that which England is under now, to make no worse a record.

CLARENCE K. STREIT.
[Enclosure.]

It is not so much the bombs which shake our old house, or the incendiary bomb which came through the roof and landed in the kitchen, that make us wish to come to the U. S. A. It is the uselessness of our staying here. Margaret's business is done for and for me there is no chance, as an alien, to get employed . . .

Miraculously, there is still no hatred of aliens. Crowds as a rule are nowhere subtle in their judgment, and considering the damage done to London I feel the Londoners would be entitled to become German-haters.

We feel blessed to be able to express ourselves without much accent, though my opinion of English people is so high as to believe they wouldn't mind if we had a German accent. I can't imagine the Germans behaving in a similar manner after having suffered so much . . .

I would stick it through if I would be allowed in some form to participate in the efforts to win the war.

SIEGFRIED CHAROUX.

Democracy Defined

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With all the use of the word democracy that has been made during the Presidential campaign, it seems to me that there is very little agreement in what it means.

It seems to me quite clear what those Americans meant who started to build here a society and a political system, and whose conclusions were embodied, 169 years later, in the Declaration of Independence and in the Constitution.

Historians insist on a cleavage among us, particularly sharp during the later eighteenth century, between "democracy" and "toryism." Surely that existed and still exists, but I think it is irrelevant. There was something, in all that more than a century and a half before 1776 in which our foundations were truly laid, which is more important that that.

It cannot be questioned that whatever social or political forms any American might advocate as the best for our development in all that evolutionary period, men were sure of certain basic principles. To them principles were incontrovertible truths, eternal and immutable. The very essence of their conviction was the acceptance of the Christian philosophical meaning of "person."

The "person" in that sense, possesses rights and liberties inherent in him as "person," and not alienable. That is: they are part of him: he can not separate them from himself by his own will; "king," "parliament," "government" (i. e. "the state") possesses no rights superior to those rights inherent in the "person" and should never be permitted to usurp any. That concept carries with it certain consequences: such rights can only be preserved through constant vigilance; they can best be preserved in an orderly society; whatever its form may be, it must preserve that essential concept, in order to be truly democratic.

It is quite true, historically, that this underlying concept of our "Americanism" was torn by two opposing forces. It was torn by the necessary "rugged individualism" of the advancing frontier; it was torn by the opposite tendency to overemphasize "order." Both tendencies were strongly affected by the new interpretation of democracy by the French revolutionary philosophers, by Rousseau in particular.

The very word "democracy" came into disrepute with those who overemphasized "order" as essential to its preservation. In the course of another century and a half a new interpretation of democracy has filtered into America, the European "proletarian" concept of Karl Marx (which has no place in America) growing out of the extension of both the overemphases I have indicated in their application to industry and labor.

I suggest that the American concept is the only right one. It is right because in no other way has democracy any validity. Unless "rights" and "liberties" are inherent and unalienable in the "person," they do not exist. Karl Marx's class struggle and force must take their place. And the "person" does not exist except in the interpretation of Christian philosophy.

That, it seems to me, is the issue now, between the democracy of a considerable section of the New Deal and the democracy of Mr. Willkie and his companions (not his followers).

WILLIAM FRANKLIN SANDS.

Magna Charta Here

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Mark Sullivan, in The Post of November 12, writes: "Magna Charta as a physical document, a piece of parchment, lies, I suppose, somewhere in the Tower of London, its sanctuary deeply menaced. But Magna Charta as a living thing, as a spirit of government has its principal remaining existence today in the Congress of the United States."

No sir. Magna Charta is a physical document, at least the finest existing copy to survive, does not lie in the Tower of London, nor even in England, but here in the United States, in Washington. Having enjoyed the ephemeral popularity of a film star in the British Pavilion of the New York World's Fair, it is, for the time being, a dignified guest in the company of the Declaration of Independence at the Library of Congress. Its usual home, I believe, is the Cathedral Library, at Lincoln, England.

The copy here, which all Washingtonians should make a point of seeing, is the only one to bear the seal of King John (who, incidentally, did not, as is so often alleged, "sign" Magna Charta, for the simple reason that he could not write his own name).

Washington, Nov. 12.

The Parades Are Over

WHAT THIS COUNTRY needs is a place for people to show off. What is the good of being in a world where there is no chance of ever riding a white horse and leading the parade? What is there to life if there is no chance of being on one of the file horses even? Where the citizens on foot who line the street can look with admiration as you ride by on your charger, always prancing, but rarely getting out of line. You with your arms and accoutrements in perfect order and glistening in the sun. You know that our uniform shows to advantage a straight, well-muscled back and legs that inspire confidence in your ability and strength. You might have been one of the only Rough Riders. Or do you remember the parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, led by Buffalo Bill at the inauguration of President McKinley? No, of course you don't, but there will never be anything here like it again. It was a great parade led by the idol of every boy who saw him, a real hero and a real man where they could actually see him.

Or perhaps you were only the leader of grand free street parade of the circus, warning the people to be careful with the horses, that the elephants were coming. It may be you were only one of the mounted marchers in the flambeau club, with torch high over your head, the blaze blowing in the breeze in variegated unison and splendor. You might have been, of course, only driving down the street or avenue on Sunday morning. It might have been Fifth avenue, New York, H Street in Washington, or Frederick Avenue, St. Joseph, Missouri—there was no difference, you were an outstanding personality. People looked at you with admiration, some envy perhaps, but not enough to spoil it.

It was a pleased and proud coachman who drove you but the pride and pomp of the whole glorious ensemble was the horses—heads held so high that the rein was always loose, with what prancing, tilting of the heads, the bright beautiful eyes, with blinds just enough to be an ornament and no hindrance, keeping the lines tight and the tugs loose, as proud seemingly of their good grooming as the man who drove or the man who owned them. Could a horse lift his feet like that, hold his body like that, if he were not proud?

When someone who gets no joy out of the happiness of others tries to tell you that it is all very well but everyone could not lead the parade or ride in the carriage with the prancing horses, then I say, Mister, you don't know. Every boy who saw the parade led it, not in his vizible person perhaps but in his dreams for days and weeks he felt the saddle under him, felt the weight of the sword and the side arms, saw the look of admiration in the eyes of the populace. Not only that, mind you, those who led the parade or rode in the carriage made only one trip, but the boy made the trip days and nights for weeks, with every variety of bliss that a dream unembarrassed by facts could conjure up, and he only abandoned it when some new thing occurred that drove dreams away for the time. For the time but for the time only; they would come again all through life with little difference whether you were the actual man in the carriage, the leader of the parade or the boy who saw it from the side walk or from his own front porch.

It is unthinkable to have a parade without the horses, and the horses are gone. I mean all gone. If you don't believe this get someone who saw the old horses to tell you about them, get that picture in your mind and then go to the race tracks or the riding stables sometime. You will see what I mean. So, you may be the biggest man in the world, or you may be the most lovely lady, but you don't have any chance whatever to let the world know and there is no satisfaction in it. No parade, no promenade, in fact no place to go where you can be seen. There used to, be places, like Rectors in New York, Peacock Alley in the Willard, and perhaps others, where people who were people could be seen and people who were not so much could at least see them and everybody was happy and satisfied and could go home and brag about it and be envied. But not any more.

For a while there was the Easter parade, for the very finest, but that also is no more. People are forgetting how to walk, they have been in cars so long they feel out of place when on foot.

No wonder the whole world is mad. Why shouldn't it be? Some day some great Mayor in some town is going to fix a place where people can see each other, and whether this be New York, St. Joe, or Washington, the whole civilized world is going to rise up and call him blessed.

Today And Tomorrow

The Meaning Of National Unity

IT IS ONLY since the election that we have heard it argued that leading members of the unsuccessful party cannot accept responsible posts in the Government without sacrificing their convictions, undermining the two-party system and abandoning the right "which is imbedded in our constitutional system" to criticize the policies of the Government. This was not the view of Mr. Willkie's stanchest and ablest supporters in the days before election. Thus on October 28, the New York Herald Tribune said in its leading editorial that "the current report that Mr. Willkie, if elected, would seek to continue Mr. Hull in office, may or may not be accurate. But it is the sort of action the voters would expect of him." On November 2, this same newspaper said that, "in the field of foreign affairs we should count upon Mr. Willkie's continuing Mr. Hull as Secretary of State, to make doubly clear abroad that the nation has not altered its course in opposition to the dictators. In domestic affairs we should be equally certain that Mr. Willkie would select for his cabinet the ablest minds in the country, regardless of old party allegiances." If in the week before election, Mr. Hull was counted upon to accept the post of ranking member in Mr. Willkie's cabinet, by what process of reasoning have we now arrived at the proposition that leading Republicans must not accept responsible posts in Mr. Roosevelt's Administration?

We have arrived at it, it would seem, by a great deal of confusion of mind about what is implied and acquired by the widespread popular demand for national unity. This confusion is illustrated by a letter which was published in the New York Times on Friday in which the writer says, "I do not think it follows, however, that those who believe that the New Deal policies are unsound and those who believe that many of the alleged social gains are in reality social losses have to choose between silence and treachery." This is, I imagine, an accurate reflection of the feeling of many who, profoundly opposed to the New Deal, are now puzzled as to how they can work with the Administration to promote the national defense without sacrificing their convictions.

THEY ARE TRYING to solve the puzzle by saying in effect that while they will cooperate with the Administration on the national defense, in respect to domestic policies they will constitute themselves as opposition.

This rough-and-ready formula will not work, and if our political leaders, Republicans and Democrats, adopt it they will wreck the defense program and place the nation in grave peril. For the formula is based on a fundamental fallacy—the fallacy that in preparing a nation for the total defense of its independence and its liberties—a line can be drawn which separates "domestic" issues from matters related to the national defense. Those who call for national unity in this crisis reject this fallacy and maintain that every national issue worth serious debate—be it taxes, expenditures, labor relations, agricultural policy, the regulation of business—is now a question of national defense, and should be debated with the national defense as the paramount consideration.

That is what national unity means. It does not mean being silent and following the President slavishly on all questions. It does not mean being silent and following him slavishly on questions affecting the army and navy, though not on others. It means that the President and his appointees, and the Republicans in Congress, and the newspapers and the people, unite in agreeing that the major premise of all debate is that the national defense is to be advanced, that the test of every measure, every proposal, of every objection to every measure and every proposal is: will it or will it not strengthen the national defense? This leaves plenty of room for debate and fruitful criticism. But it imposes upon the debaters the obligation to do their debating with the national purpose, rather than any personal, factional, partisan, class, occupational, sectional, or ideological consideration, as the premise of the debate.

That is how they achieve national unity along with freedom of debate in the British Parliament, as it meets while the bombs are falling on London. And that is how we, if we can rise to the occasion, will achieve national unity here. We shall say each of us to himself that his convictions for the New Deal or his convictions against the New Deal are overriden by a much more important conviction—that this nation shall become so strong that its independence and its liberties are secure. In the light of that conviction, which we shall not sacrifice, we shall weigh all other convictions.

LET US TAKE a concrete example in a field which is theoretically "domestic" and yet is in fact of the highest importance to the national defense and to the national policy of aiding Great Britain. The question is how to accelerate the production of war-materials. On Wednesday evening Mr. Alfred Sloan of General Motors delivered a thoughtful address in which he argued that "output can be increased 20 per cent by working six days a week in place of five days." Now what is the Administration's policy in regard to this proposal? It is not necessary, as Mr. Arthur Krock of the New York Times has done, to interview anonymous "spokesmen" of the New Deal and report whether their blood-pressure rose or fell when they read Mr. Sloan's speech. The policy of the Administration about hours of work has been set forth by the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Patterson, who is officially in charge of the industrial mobilization.

Mr. Patterson has said that "in the procurement of airplanes, tanks, guns, ammunition and similar items of armament where facilities are limited and necessary types of skilled labor are scarce," the policy now in force calls for a longer working week.

"Thus all the arsenals and many airplane factories are now running three shifts of six days a week on an overtime basis, with the full approval of the Advisory Commission and the complete cooperation of union labor. The same considerations are applicable to the present emergency construction program."

HOWEVER, this policy of the longer work week is not now being applied "to such supply items as shoes, clothing, blankets, and other articles made commercially, where there is now much unemployed labor and unused factory capacity." Thus in this section of industry the Administration's present policy is not to urge an increase beyond the forty-hour week. Now this, as it happens, is also Mr. Sloan's position, for in recommending the six-day week he said that "it seems clear this should be the first step, if the point has been reached when the slack of unemployment has been taken up and the increasing speed of industry has been utilized to the fullest practicable extent."

The point is that here on this critical matter of the length of the working week there is no difference of opinion, in theory or in application, between the War Department and Mr. Sloan of General Motors. Mr. Sloan has in the past been at odds with the Administration on labor matters; yet the moment he and they begin to think of the national defense as the paramount consideration, there are no differences of opinion. The same facts lead them to the same practical conclusions, because studying the same facts from the same premise—namely the national defense—they must as honest and reasonable men come to the same conclusion. This is not, as some suppose, "the pollyanna talk about national unity" but the hard, practical substance of national unity.

UNITY CANNOT be had by long distance debate in which most of the debaters do not really know what they are talking about. It must be forged by intimate consultation and continuing common study of the facts of the problems that confront us. That is why it would be deplorable if the President did not take leading Republicans and leading Democrats who opposed him right into the inner councils where the national defense is being organized.

That is why I think it infinitely regrettable that Mr. Willkie takes a position so much less cooperative than the position which so many of his supporters expected Mr. Hull to take. For it is my view that Mr. Willkie has the confidence of the industrialists of the nation, and that he owes it to his country to use his influence to bridge the chasm which unhappily separates so many good citizens from the head of their government. Had Mr. Willkie been elected, the people would, of course, have expected not only Mr. Hull but Mr. Roosevelt as well to rally all their friends to the support of the President. Mr. Willkie would have needed their help. I think they are now entitled to his help. For they are charged with a fearful responsibility, and they carry a tremendous burden, and those who can help them should help them.

Fair Enough

Zeal Pays Well

ANYONE who is interested in the attempt to purify the American Federation of Labor in the impending national convention in New Orleans may appreciate some background information on Judge Joseph A. Padway, general counsel of the national organization. Judge Padway is the highest legal authority in the federation and a veteran operator who served a spell as judge of the Civil Court in Milwaukee, served many years as counsel of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and became general counsel of the A. F. of L. in 1938.

Judge Padway's heart is in the labor movement, to be sure, but he is not an amateur lawyer. His zeal for labor has paid him well. He is now general counsel for seven international or national unions within the federation and special or occasional counsel for others. His clients at this time include the Stagehands and Movie Employes' Union, under the presidency of George Browne, the Chicago gangster, and he once got $1,000 for doing a job for the Building Service Employes' Union, whose recent president, George Scalise, the old-time white-slaver, is under sentence to a long term in prison for robbing the union membership. Judge Padway revised the constitution of this union—a charming document—and got $50 a day for his toil.

LATER THE LEARNED general counsel of the A. F. of L. indorsed Scalise's application for a Presidential pardon at a time when Scalise was openly associating with Little Augie Carfano, of New York; Charlie Fischetti, of Chicago, a gunman like Carfano and cousin of Al Capone, and Frank Nitti, of the Miami criminal scum. But, of course, Judge Padway had no idea that Scalise was still a gangster. The judge likes to think the best of his fellow men.

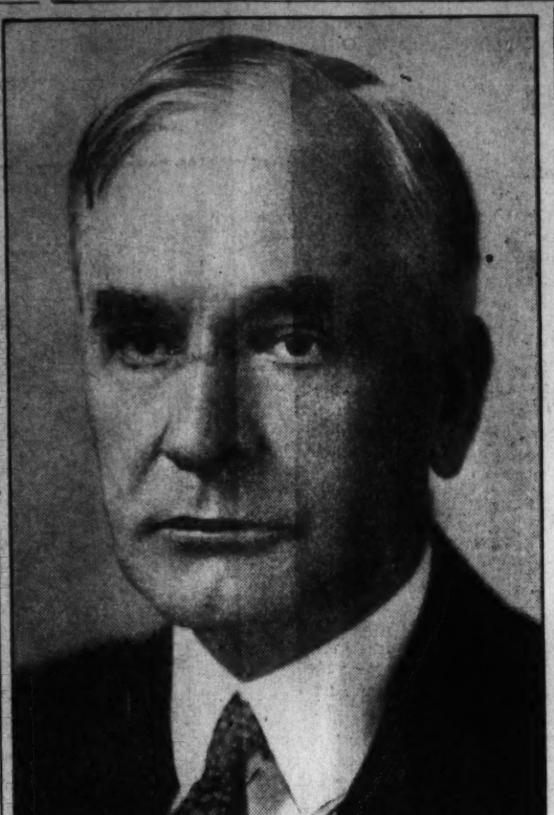
Another of Judge Padway's client's, as general counsel, is the Bartenders' Union, which in Chicago and Miami, is a notorious racket of the lowest type of criminals, although he couldn't be expected to know that, being merely the union's lawyer.

But it is difficult to understand how even the kindliest of men could have failed to suspect Gangster Browne's union as recently as last June, when Judge Padway attended the annual convention in Louisville and uttered some remarks which I shall quote briefly. At this time it had been shown that Browne was a gang man who rose to office following the assassination of Tommy Maloy, another gangster, and that two of Browne's personal ambassadors plenipotentiary were criminals and active crooks. One of these, Willie Bioff, at the very time that Judge Padway addressed the convention, was serving six months for managing a bevy of harlots, and yet Judge Padway, before the convention of the racket, spoke of his association with "Mr. Bioff."

"YESTERDAY," said Judge Padway, "I had the opportunity of listening to a very splendid report on the activities of this international covering the past six years."

That was telling them, but you ought to read that report of Gangster Browne. It weeps for "Brother" Bioff, his personal agent who not only had a record as a brothel keeper and Capone hoodlum but, in California, as representative of Judge Padway's client, accepted $100,000 from an employer with whom he was having negotiations on behalf of the union, plus tickets for himself and one for a deluxe cruise to South America on the Normandie—cost, $3,600. The report of Gangster Browne extolled and defended this foul criminal, and yet Judge Padway called it "A very splendid report."

JUDGE PADWAY also reported that he had worked with Browne "On the St. Louis situation" and said "your report indicates that that was settled satisfactorily by him." The fact is that in "The St. Louis situation" another criminal named John Nick, also an appointee of Browne, had so viciously oppressed the union members that the courts forced him out, notwithstanding Browne's support. Browne's "Very splendid report" said Nick had resigned his vice presidency because of illness after "faithful and capable service," when the fact was that the Department of Justice was after him on charges which have now won him a substantial term in prison for racketeering on the union.



SECRETARY HULL

Mr. Lippmann recalls the reports that Mr. Willkie, if elected, would continue Mr. Hull as Secretary of State. By what logic then, he asks, is it now concluded that prominent Republicans should not accept posts in the Roosevelt Administration?

World Nazification?

By Mark Sullivan

U. S. Might Be Drawn Into 'New Order'

OUR PREPAREDNESS for war increases, cumulatively. Also, the nearness of war to us increases. Probably we shall shortly pass into an advanced stage, both of preparedness and nearness.

What is the nature of this war we prepare against? It is not an ordinary war, about any ordinary issue such as territory. It is, on our part, a war of defense, against aggression. But a special kind of aggression, and a special kind of defense.

At the risk of trying to simplify too greatly, the thing we fear from Germany and her allies may be stated thus: We fear that Germany, if she conquers England and gets control of the seas, may impose her totalitarian system on the world, may Nazify the world. She announces that intention—repeatedly she declares her intention of destroying democracy everywhere, and replacing it with her own system, which she calls a "new world order." We fear that, with all the world Nazified except us, we could hardly preserve our own system. We fear that we, too, would be Nazified. We fear that the totalitarian system would be imposed on us.

WE FEAR that this would be done to us. But we do not fear, except in a remote sense, that Germany would do this by armed invasion of our soil. We do not seriously fear that a German army would goose-step up Pennsylvania Avenue and set up a dictator or gauleiter in the White House. Our danger, as it is seen by many thoughtful and competent persons, has a different form. The destruction of our American system, which we fear and which we arm to prevent, would come about in a different way.

Again at the risk of trying to simplify too greatly, the steps by which the totalitarian system might be imposed upon us run thus:

Germany conquers Britain. Germany then controls the sea. Germany then has a position of dominance over most of the world, excepting us. Germany then proceeds to Nazify the world, to impose the totalitarian system on the world. As respects much of Europe, she does it by arms, or threat of arms. As respects the other parts of the world, she does it by pressure, chiefly economic.

SHE BEGINS, in most countries, by Nazifying industry and commerce. She takes that totalitarian system of commerce and industry, which she now operates within Germany, and expands it to cover the world. She makes all the commerce and all the industry of all the world into one unit, centering in Germany, directed from Berlin. She says to one country, "You shall raise and export wheat." To another country, "You shall raise cotton." To another country, "You shall make textiles." To another, "You shall make automobiles."

Certain key industries she would keep for herself. She would keep the armament industry as a matter of course. She would keep the business of ocean transportation mainly for herself. She would keep the shipbuilding industry, or so manage it in other countries as to enable her to have the strongest navy in the world, and also the strongest mercantile fleet. Quite likely she would prevent other countries from building ships beyond a certain size or number. For a similar reason, she would keep the major airplane industry. She would probably fix the currency for that part of the world which she dominated.

ALL THIS, all the separate centers of production throughout the world, all the routes of trade, all the sea lanes, Hitler would weave into one web. It is as if all the world were one great factory, operated from Berlin.

We fear that Germany would do this to all the world, except us. And we fear that after it was done to the rest of the world, we could not stay out. We fear that we, too, would be obliged to adopt the totalitarian system for our commerce and industry. And we fear that, if we adopted a totalitarian system for industry and commerce, we should be obliged to adopt it in the other respects. We should become a totalitarian country, totalitarian form of society, totalitarian form of government.

It is to prevent this that we arm.

What is said here thus far is the view of competent and thoughtful persons. It is, in substance, the view upon which we as a nation are acting. There are other persons, of high standing, who do not think it would work out that way. The persons who feel this are as patriotic as any others. Conceivably they may be right. But we as a nation have chosen the other view. We have decided that the danger exists, and exists in the form here outlined. And so we arm against it—against Germany making the world totalitarian and thereby making us totalitarian.

WE DO NOT omit possibility of armed invasion. We assume it is possible Germany might get naval and air bases in Latin America, and from there might attack the United States. Against this possibility we arm, and otherwise prepare ourselves in many ways.

Against every form of danger that Germany is to us, our best defense is to help Britain. If Britain survives, Germany cannot attack us directly. If Britain survives, Germany cannot impose her system on the world.

Soon we shall realize that the greater the help to Britain, the greater the defense for us. We shall increase our help to Britain, and extend it to new lines.

The Once Over

Unity

"THE ELECTION certainly proved that a lot of people admired Willkie," he said.

"Now wait. It's all over and all we want now is unity. Right?" I said.

"Right. I suppose we should forget the violation of a tradition," he said.

"Listen," I said. "Nothing matters now except that we all be unified. No more arguments, no more dissensions. Right?"

"Right. The election's all over. But I still think the budget question important," he said.

"There you go being partisan," I said.

"I ain't partisan," he said.

"Yes you are. All that matters is that democracy worked and we are all brothers. Right?" I said.

"Right. In the popular vote Willkie was only a few million behind," he said.

"Nuts," I said. "If Roosevelt won by only two votes it would be final under our system and no sense beefing."

"Not at all. The popular vote showed an enormous switch against the New Deal policies," he said.

"Aw, go away! You just don't want unity," I said.

"Of course I want unity. It's the paramount need. But can't we still have it and talk reasonably?" he said.

"You're just another non-unity guy," I said. "You're too partisan. You're petty. You can't be big."

"Who can't be big?" he said.

"You can't. You're a worm, that's what you are. You ain't got no vision. You make me sick. All I'm asking is a little brotherhood and mutual respect, and you just stand there beefing," I said.

"For two cents I'd poke you one," he said.

"You and who else? You better go some place and learn to be tolerant, ya big dummy," I said.

"I am as tolerant as any man in this country, you big fakir," he said, taking a swing at me.

"Everybody in America is anxious for unity but you, you fathead," I said, socking him one on the chin.

"You just don't understand the spirit of democracy. You don't know what unity means, you poor sap," he said, sending a left to my ear.

A policeman came running up and separated us.

"What's the trouble?" the cop asked.

"Unity," I said.

The cop looked at us with disgust and impatience and walked away.

"Hell!" he said. "Everywhere I go I run into fights over that!"

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

A $10,000 Novel

"HILDRETH," by Harlow Estes (Dodd Mead, $2.50), won the $10,000 award in the novel contest sponsored by its publishers and "Red Book" magazine. Ten thousand dollars is a lot of money under any President, and one can almost wish that Mrs. Estes hadn't won it. Not because "Hildreth" is lacking in virtues, but because it shows such excellent promise of good writing. Judged on merits apart from a prize there is no doubt it would have been published and received favorable recognition. But it is doubtful that it would have made $10,000 for its author. And Mrs. Estes would have felt she had made a good beginning and gone on to greater things. This way she is handicapped, as other prize winners have been, by laurels too easily achieved. If she is a real writer, she'll learn that this is probably the easiest money she will ever earn.

All this, it should be noted, is said in praise of Mrs. Estes' work and in the hope that the prize will give her no false values. In "Hildreth" she paints a novel and provocative picture of a young girl. Hildreth is unusual in the field of popular fiction heroines in that she possesses attributes that make her far from lovable. Hildreth, 19, impatient, rebellious, idealistic, is youth, but youth with all the faults of callow self-confidence. With no experience of life and little knowledge of people, she weighs and judges and acts.

Brought up under the wings of a spoiled and self-indulgent mother, she sees her father as a deserter and irresponsible cad; her Aunt Laura as the victim of a domineering husband, now luckily dead; her friend, Geoff, as a youth who needs guidance and protection. She knows the answer to everything. How wrong she is with respect to all of them she learns in a series of summer incidents on the Maine coast.

Mrs. Estes writes with an easy grace and with humor. She has an individual touch in characterization which extends to her minor as well as her major actors. The two finest portraits in the book are those of Drake, deceased husband of Laura, and Regina, her children's elderly nursemaid.

JOSEPH VOGEL'S "The Straw Hat" (Modern Age, $2.50), may seem pale and underwritten, but there may be artistry in restraint, particularly when one is writing, as Mr. Vogel does, of tough characters reminiscent of the heroes of James N. Cain and John O'Hara. Gus Webber is a "heel," as useless a specimen of animal life as Mr. O'Hara's Pal Joey, and he is almost as effectively presented. He plays craps and chisels; he runs a parking lot at a cheap mountain resort in the Catskill foothills on his sister's money; and he is perpetually and indiscriminately in a rut. He boasts ceaselessly; that is how his callow nephew, Vincent, happens to visit him. From the moment Vincent meets Gus he feels as if he had always known him and could truly say, "I will tell you how to recognize my uncle. His is the loudest voice."

It rains incessantly at Bridal Veil, and when it rains the city folk do not drive toward the mountains. Vincent is left to Gus, and to Gus' friends as Lopardo's hamburger joint, who fortunately include a "cafeteria madonna in a black smock" named Lucy. A good deal happens in Mr. Vogel's brief novel, but always behind the cloud of falling rain; Vincent leaves a wiser and a sader boy than when he climbed down from the train . . . There are some bits of extraordinary writing in "The Straw Hat" but as a whole it has neither the shocking gusto of Mr. Vogel's "At Madame Bonnard's" nor the rich texture of his "Man's Courage."

MARY MARGARET McBRIDE'S "How Dear to My Heart" (Macmillan, $2), is about an American utterly remote from the world of Mr. Vogel. Miss McBride, best known today as a radio columnist, here recalls her almost idyllic childhood on various Missouri farms (mostly in Mark Twain territory, near Paris), and the father and mother who made it idyllic. There was, to be sure, a brief and disturbing episode with George, the hired man, in the hayloft, but George did not get far and it constitutes almost the only sour note in Miss McBride's forget-me-not family album.

The McBrides moved almost every year—that was distressing, but also exciting. Papa McBride was a preacher between the intervals of farming, but he was also a born trader who could not resist swapping a farm for a bit of cash and another place on the prairie. Mama McBride would scrub the new place at once, and then plant pansies and sweetpeas by the fence. It was the old American country life, with a big straw-lined vegetable pit and home-butchered hogs.

Papa had the kindest eyes in the world, and was a good Santa at Christmas time, but he did not believe in the foolishness of Christmas trees. Mary Margaret and her brother cut their own tree one year, but papa discovered it behind the woodpile almost as soon as he discovered that some amateur had been misusing his ax, and the tree never got inside the house.

Mama was, of course, the best cook in Missouri, and Miss McBride shares with her readers mama's recipes for charlotte russe and buttermilk biscuits; Auntie Mame's prescription for the white cake that won a blue ribbon at the county fair, and Aunt Mary's smothered chicken, Aunt Grace's golden glow salad, and Aunt Liza Buckner's pumpkin pie.

British Troops Toil to Make Crete a 'Second Gibraltar'

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 15.—The British middle-eastern command has—in the space of a fortnight—garrisoned Crete with a considerable force of troops, mounted heavy guns, and has started defense works that promise to make that Greek island the Gibraltar of the eastern Mediterranean.

I saw the British undertaking at first hand—returning today from an inspection trip to Crete with Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief of British forces in the Middle East. Wavell declared he was satisfied with the progress made since British troops landed after Italy began war on Greece.

We found in the deep waters of Souda Bay a protected harbor that would hold the fleets of the world. The eastern tip of the 150-mile-long island is a scant 30 miles from the nearest island of the Italian-held Dodecanese group.

Since the British took over, the towns of Crete have been subjected to repeated bombings by Italian planes. While there had been only two troop casualties, a score of civilian Cretans were killed and extensive damage wrought on the homes in the rural towns.

Wavell made the journey to Crete aboard a Sunderland flying boat of the R. A. F. This correspondent and Alan Moorehead of the London Daily Express accompanied him.

Van Duzer Asks Additional D. C. Car Inspectors

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday called for additional personnel for the city's two automobile inspection stations in answer to charges that used cars are permitted to operate on the street without submitting to mechanical tests at the time of purchase.

"When the purchaser of a used car is issued license plates," said Van Duzer, "they are usually of a high number and until that number is called for inspection in the serial block on our schedule it remains uninspected."

He estimated that an additional appropriation of $20,000 would be necessary to build up the inspection staff to a size where used-car inspections could come ahead of regular examinations.

McKellar to Ask Polls' Inquiry

By the Associated Press

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, announced yesterday he was preparing a resolution calling for a Senate investigation of polls conducted during the recent Presidential campaign.

The Tennessean, a Roosevelt supporter, said the inquiry would be asked particularly because of the poll conducted by Dr. George Gallup, which he said erroneously indicated "a close election."

"The only way the public can know whether such a poll is of value or not is to be shown how the results are arrived at; where the money comes from to pay for the poll; what is done with the money, and every other fact connected with this (Gallup's) or any other poll," McKellar said in a statement.

Senator Stewart (Democrat) Tennessee, expressed the view that legislation should be enacted to prevent the taking of such polls, "in the interest of the public."

Charm of Marriage Wanes as Draft Day Passes

The urge to get married dropped off 30 per cent in Washington as soon as Selective Service registration day had come and gone.

The first 15 days of October saw a total of 550 marriage license applications filed with the clerk of the District Court. Then, abruptly, romance lost some of its appeal. For the rest of the month, including registration day, October 16, there were only 388 applications. The new trend continued in November, only 396 applications being filed through yesterday.

But the rate still was much higher than in previous years. In the first 15 days of November, 1939, there were only 253 applications.

Martinique Denies German Pilots Are on Island

Fort de France, Martinique, Nov. 15 (AP).—A communique issued today said that the recent visit of United States Rear Admiral John W. Greenslade and the presence here of an American consul and naval attache "should suffice to eliminate any attempt to distort the excellent relations now existing between the French Antilles and the United States."

The Government statement said that "Martinique is French and continues to carry out the orders of French government quarters at Vichy.

"Troops which are said to be actively training are only executing the normal training of any garrison force in peace time.

"Airplanes from the (aircraft carrier) Bearn (the planes were purchased from the United States before France fell) are still in the same condition on land without any landing field.

"Rumors of the arrival of German pilots are absolutely false."

Families and individuals who have reached dead ends through blindness, age, chronic illness or permanent incapacity for employment today have popular acceptance of Government responsibility for their support.

But "hopeful cases," which could again be self-supporting, still look to the privately supported family welfare agency for help.

A YOUNG MOTHER talks to Caseworker Jean Nickels, of the East Washington Office, FSA, about schools which will care for her 6-year-old daughter while she (the mother) works

To make available just such aid is the function of organizations such as the Family Service Association and the Bureau of Rehabilitation.

Both organizations struggle against the "desire of discouraged individuals to be taken care of." The Family Service Association, through case work and judiciously administered relief, pushes families back into competition for jobs. The Bureau of Rehabilitation performs a similar function for paroled and released prisoners.

In its work to lift families over temporary breakdowns, the FSA considers itself a partner in the families' own efforts to marshal their resources for self-support. Relief funds are used for minimum basic expenses to restart men and women in productive pursuits.

Traffic Overpass Opened; Two Spans Near Completion

A traffic overpass (above) was opened over the parkway at K Street Northwest Thursday. All of the cloverleaf approaches to the K Street structure have not been completed, however, but are expected to be in use "within a short time," officials said. The overpass was constructed at a cost of $320,000 and the parkway section is for use by noncommercial vehicles only. At present, right turns may be made from K Street to Rock Creek parkway going north, and from the northbound lane of the parkway up to the westbound lane of the overpass.

With completition date just about two months away, workmen on the new Massachusetts Avenue bridge (above) over Rock Creek are rushing to complete the structure on time.

The dangerous bottleneck, which ran under Massachusetts Avenue, will be eliminated. Instead of a single 22-foot roadway in the park, two 24-foot roads will pass beneath the bridge, one for northbound and the other for southbound traffic.

Work began on the bridge on February 5 and the contract stated it had to be completed within 350 calendar days. Contract price was $477,000.

Rain Halts Till Bureau's Cornerstone Is Laid

Washington's weather experts were cheerful yesterday.

They laid the cornerstone of their new $250,000 home at Twenty-fourth and M Streets Northwest and at the same time watched a hairline weather forecast come true with about three minutes to spare.

They had forecast that it wouldn't be raining at 11 a. m. They were right on that, and the ceremony was over and the crowd turning away when the first few drops fell. Even so, some of the weather officials were wearing raincoats.

Secretary of Commerce Jones, in an address read to the group by the newly appointed Undersecretary, Wayne C. Taylor, outlined the history of the bureau, and said that today its reports are "of incalculable value to every phase of American life."

"In these days of highly specialized military and naval operations, information of weather is an essential factor in tactical plans and coordination of various arms of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps," his address said.

Modern Career Girl Chooses Tailored Simplicity

Left, a shirt tailored with T-square precision, a good companion for this year's popular suit. Below, a two-piece dress with a one-piece neatness achieved by a windbreaker blouse moored by a sash slipped through the loops.

Fashions for business girls have undergone many evolutions since the days of the mannish blue-serge suit, the first office uniform. After dressing for many years like drab spinsters, working girls then swung to the other extreme and came to their offices attired like country belles and chorines. Now the trend is toward simplicity—tempered with femininity. The two outfits here well illustrate this trend. Good tailoring gives them their distinction, feminine detail their charm. The shirt is of tecasha, a flannel-type teca blend woven with Eastman crimped acetate rayon. The two-piece frock is of a new teca blend crepe, a fabric with the crisp dullness of a sheer worsted

Retired Teacher Finds Stamp Collecting Absorbing Interest in Twilight Years

WHETHER or not you're a philatelist, you'll agree that 20,000 stamps are a lot to accumulate in six years—particularly when the collector is a woman 75 years old. She is Miss Caroline Lamson, of 3435 Quebec Street Northwest, who taught school for 45 years and grew tired of doing nothing after her retirement. "I'd been ill, and just seemed to lose interest in things," she explains. "The collection has been a great boon in reawakening my enthusiasm. I think it's a good idea for anyone who's been 'put on the shelf' to learn something new."

Miss Lamson, who taught first-graders in Midwestern schools and who lives here with a sister, had a good head start when she took up her hobby. Her mother's correspondence yielded several thousand stamps, some dating back to 1858. In salvaging these, she unwittingly threw away $10; one of them is now worth about $20, whereas if she'd left it on the envelope it would be worth $30. Her biggest thrill comes when she puts in a stamp which fills the last blank in a series. "Carrie abhors a space," her sister says.

F. Joseph Donohue, local lawyer, learned that a friend's young daughter was ill in a hospital. Her condition was not improved by the fact that she worried night and day about Joe Palooka, who at that point was in the bad graces of his girl, Ann Howe. So Donohue wrote Ham Fisher, creator of the comic strip. Shortly thereafter he received proofs of the next dozen strips, enough to show the child that Joe and Ann finally patched things up.

Applicants for cards in the children's room of the Public Library are asked to state their fathers' occupations, a problem which proves difficult for some of the youngsters. DIPLOMATIC DOINGS—Several years ago a little girl from the South arrived in Washington to work for the Government. Soon afterward she had a blind date with a mtnor clerk in a rather minor South American legation. The two hit it off, and as time went on she met the rest of the legation staff—picking up considerable Spanish en route, of course. Came the war, the focus of the social spotlight on Latin America, and our little Southern girl was right there on the ground floor. She not only knows the men but she can speak the language, and it will be some time before the debs catch up with her.

Now's Time To Refurbish The House

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Is your entrance hall or foyer a "problem child," dark because it is inside, and depressing because it's furnished with odds and ends? Then why not take this neglected spot seriously and do something interesting about it? After all, it's the introduction to your home, the scene of first impressions.

A reader writes us about a foyer problem, which we thought might be of interest to other readers. A long room, 20 by 7 feet, with the usual quota of broken wall spaces, she nevertheless was determined to make it worthy of the rest of her home.

The walls are painted like those in the adjoining living room, a light tint of dusty apricot, with woodwork in the same color. On the wall opposite the entrance door she placed an old horsehair sofa with nice lines, flanked by end tables with a pair of simple Chinese lamps on them. At the end of the hall, near the living room doors, she has a carved camphor chest with a Chinese scroll painting above it. For the floor she uses large Oriental scatter rugs in mellow colorings. Her first question is whether or not the Oriental details clash too much with the sofa. Our answer is that it shouldn't, as Chinese things are usually very congenial, with most of our Western styles of decoration, if combined with discernment.

The next question is, what to do with the long wall opposite the sofa? One suggestion we offer is to have this entire wall mirrored—that would add a feeling of spaciousness and a sense of life and scintillation. Still another idea would be to have a pair of large Chinese ancestor portraits for this space, or else about three panels of Chinese scenic paintings or wallpaper panels.

But our pet idea would be to use a Chinese screen of many wings against this wall, preferably an old lacquered one, but if the budget won't stand that strain, a plyboard screen covered with a Chinese scenic paper with silver ground, would be lovely.

Doll House for Christmas Can Be Easily Made

MY, won't some little girl be surprised and pleased to get a lovely doll house for Christmas!

And you can have such fun making it for her—from its stately white colonial pillars to its trim green window blinds. Plenty of room, too, for a big doll family! The length is 5 feet, the depth, 2½ feet, and the height, 30 inches to top of gable.

With plans explaining every step, the building goes easily. Make the foundation and framework from strips of soft wood. Cut the walls and floors from plywood. When the walls are shaped, cut out doors and windows, then place walls against framework and nail in place. With a coat of white paint on the walls, green on the roof and red on the chimneys, your little house will gleam invitingly.

Then to furnish—from parlor to kitchen! There's nothing the most fastidious doll could lack, even to a tiny bathtub. And you can make this little furniture easily, from such inexpensive materials as cigar boxes, cardboard and modeling clay.

For example, a little stick with two wooden button molds makes a perfect bridge lamp. Your doll's easy chair is of cardboard, padded with cotton, then "upholstered" with a bit of figured material you glue on.

Just as simply you can make a duck rocker, other toys. Or you can conjure up from grocery boxes an adorable child's chair. Grown-up gifts? Many charming ones you or the youngsters can make—such as costume jewelry from corks and nuts.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "A Doll House and Other Gifts You Can Easily Make," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Women Can Help Cut Fire Toll

"If the women of the country would assume personal responsibility merely for reducing careless smoking and the careless use of matches, we could probably cut our present number of home fires by almost one fourth," according to Mrs. Chester E. Edwards, chairman of the home safety division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Edwards' statement was occasioned by the release by the National Fire Protection Association of fire loss figures for 1939. These figures showed that the Nation's fire losses were $300,000,000, or $35,000,000 greater, in 1939, than they were in 1938, and the number of fires increased from 5.12 to 5.24 per thousand of population.

"Just as in other years," said Mrs. Edwards, "the outstanding cause of fire in 1939 was careless smoking, with sparks on roofs, defective or overheated chimneys and flues, defective electrical equipment and accumulations of rubbish being next in frequency."

To offset this increase, fire protection authorities recommend that wider use be made of protective devices such as fire extinguishers, domestic automatic alarm systems and sprinkler systems.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Is Girl Acting Unfairly in Accepting Invitations From Man Her Best Friend Loves and Lost?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some months ago, a very close girl friend of mine was going around quite a bit with a certain young man. He gave her no encouragement whatsoever, but after a while she began to like him tremendously—even to the point where she would have married him, if he had asked her. Then, abruptly, he completely stopped calling on her.

However, she continued to come in almost daily contact with him, and so did I—as all three of us work for the same firm. Whenever I ran into him by chance, he was always friendly and talkative. Some time elapsed and one day he called to ask me to play tennis with him. I was hesitant to accept (although I love tennis and play a good game), because of my friend's great interest in him.

However, some others with whom I consulted advised me to go on, which I finally did. We had a happy afternoon and I found him quite attractive. Later, I told my girl friend about it, and I gathered she felt very badly, even though he hadn't gone out with her for some weeks. I explained to her that I went mostly for the game, as I would have gone with any nice boy who might have asked me—but she seemed to feel that, in so doing, I had lessened her chances of winning him back.

This girl's friendship is very important to me; in fact, means more to me at this time than any man's I know. While she isn't holding the incident against me, and wouldn't want me to give him up for her sake if I really liked him,—still, it's pretty apparent she would rather I didn't encourage him, if he's only "one among many" to me.

I have promised myself that I won't go out with him again, if he asks me. But I have a feeling that it's going to be hard to refuse. What should I do? And if I should refuse him, what explanation shall I give?

MARIETTA.

Love Doesn't Bestow Proprietary Rights

DEAR MARIETTA. Your scrupulosity shows an admirable spirit of loyalty to friends, but I don't think the rules of fair play require you to "snoot" this young man, even though the girl might be consoled or made happier if you did so. After all, she had her chance with him, and it came to naught,—which is certainly not your fault. And she would be less a friend to you than you are to her—and, indeed, unworthy of your affectionately protective consideration—if she "held it against you," supposing you were to accept and encourage his social attentions.

Frankly, I think you would be doing her a downright psychological disservice if, by word or deed, you were to humor her in the delusion that her obsessive, unrequited interest in the young man gives he the right to censor—even imaginatively — his associates. She doesn't own him. She never did. Even the frail bond of sentimental friendship which once linked them together has been dissolved. And thus he is free as air, so far as she is concerned, t go where he pleases, with whom he chooses. The fact that his fancy has turned to you, in glancing fashion, should not throw either you or her in a dither—as it seems to be doing.

The girl must insulate her own feelings against hurt. She cannot expect her friends to aid and encourage her in "carrying the torch" for a lost cause. The sooner she accustoms herself to both the idea and the spectacle of the man's beauing other girls about, the better off will she be.

I imagine the truth of your agitation is this: you are (and perhaps long have been) potentially as much interested in this chap as your girl friend is. In finally asking you for a tennis date, he probably was unconsciously responding to your consistently encouraging attitudes. And now that you have finally promoted at least the beginning of a "special understanding" with him, you are vaguely tormented by doubts concerning the ethics of your performance.

Yet, supposing this is the case, let me reassure you that you are fully entitled to accept his invitations, even so, if they appeal to you; and that you are under no obligation to keep the other girl posted about your social relations with him. In conclusion, I must say that I think you are "making much ado about nothing." Because if one tennis bid has been the extent of the man's attention over a period of several weeks, he probably isn't going to give you any sort of a rush. If you were treat him in an amiably indifferent manner hereafter, I daresay he would never think to call you again.

Evening Sweaters Are Popular This Season

There's infinite variety in sweaters for every occasion, for every hour this season.

Right now as the formal season starts with first nights popping three and four times a week, concerts in full swing, benefits galore, supper parties before and after the theater, cocktail and dinner parties at home and at night clubs—the most exciting sweaters are for evening wear. Last winter women took up the fashion of evening sweaters with joy—finding it the most practical and flattering fashion in years. This season promises to surpass last in enthusiastic acceptance of this American fashion.

And no wonder! The new sweaters for evening are dazzlingly beautiful. Jet, the darling of the season, glistens in sequins and beads from strawberry pink sweaters. Whole yokes of jet sequins highlight black woolknit jerkins or short-sleeved sweaters. Jet appears as a border for bottom and neck of a sleeveless jerkin of wool chenille—smart with a long skirt and balloon sleeved blouse of chiffon.

Sleep Is First Item in Beauty Routines of Hollywood Stars

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU TEEN age girls are so fascinated by the "beauty secrets" of the Hollywood and Broadway celebrities that I believe I'll tell you one thing! They follow a routine so carefully ordered that you would be inclined to abandon it the minute your mother decided you were too grown up to have to be told "it's time to run along to bed."

And now that we're on the subject, sleep is one of the really important items in the beauty kit of any star. You have to be particularly wide awake and on your toes when the spotlight is so sharply focused that the slightest mistake in timing becomes a glaring awkwardness. And you have to allow all the time for rest you can when there is an audience that demands you look dewey-eyed and fresh in spite of all those gruelling hours of rehearsal!

Not having to think along those lines, you may look upon sleep as an unnecessary nuisance that cuts into your playtime. But nine out of every ten actresses seem to think that ten hours' sleep is a necessity. And there is no better spokesman for the majority than Le Verne, the syncopating skating star in "It Happens On Ice," who happens to be extremely health-minded.

She's Diet-Minded

"If I miss my full quota of 10 hours' sleep just one night," she declares, "it takes me a whole week to catch up—no matter how much whole wheat cereal I eat!"

She's not only sleep-conscious, she's diet-minded.

Of course, she never has any trouble getting to sleep. And neither will you, if you're young and active. The first activity Le Verne could recommend is figure skating. There's nothing to it, she says. Anybody can learn to do it for enjoyment, and anybody who has talent can learn to do it as a career.

That sounds simple enough. But delving back into her past, we find that the talented Le Verne has had 12 years of ballet dancing, and that she considers "dancing the foundation of all that is graceful."

Nevertheless, she is an outdoor-minded girl who thinks teen age beauty should take up as many different sports as possible, such as rowing, bowling, riding horseback, swimming, or badminton. "Anyone who tries any of these games will find that each uses an entirely different set of muscles," she declares, "and that means she feels better and looks better."

Lessons of Ballet

If you can't take up an outdoor sport of some kind, by all means take up either ballet or calisthenics. And he comforted if it's the latter, for even ballet dancers do calisthenics. Here are two this star learned when studying ballet:

For the waistline: Stand in a doorway, with right hand grasping side of doorway at chest level, left arm curved overhead and hand grasping side of door. Keep feet still, hands still as you jut the hips out to the side opposite to the doorway. That places an extra stretch on the waistline muscles.

700 Guests Attend Pink and Black Ball in Spacious Mexican Embassy

By Carolyn Bell.

PINK WAS ELEVATED to dizzy heights in the diplomatic set last evening when more than 700 guests turned up at the Mexican Embassy wearing the color—if only in boutonnieres.

In a froth of pink lace and net, was the lively hostess, Erma Castillo Najera—who confessed she received the inspiration at a unique Pink and Black ball. It was the wee small of hours of the morning when the final guests took their departure from the Embassy in Sixteenth Street.

Around 10 o'clock a steady stream of guests climbed the massive stairway beside the mural-decked wall. For a short while, a semblance of a receiving line was to be found but the informality of the occasion soon broke it up.

With a fresn pink carnation pinned to his lapel—in deference to the color scheme—Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera received with his wife and daughter. Erma's frock, fashioned with a tight bodice and bouffant skirt was scattered with pink sequins. The gown was orchid-pink and she pinned a cluster of orchids at the shoulder.

Pink Blossoms And Pink Champagne

A host of pink flowers—gladioli, roses and chrysanthemums—was used throughout the spacious embassy. The gilt-decked ballroom reverberated with rhythmic Latin tunes—for a Cuban band had been brought here especially for the ball. Rumbas and tangos were popular all evening—not to mention the conga.

While many of the "oldsters" preferred a dignified black for their gowns, the youngsters, for the most part reveled in pink. Senora de Quintanilla, wife of the Minister-Counselor of the Embassy, wore a combination of the two colors. Over her simple black frock she wore a pink lace jacket. Their daughter, Senorita Jane Quintanilla, accompanied her mother down from their farm in Pennsylvania especially for the occasion. She wore a smart pink satin ensemble. Jane, who attends Gettysburg College, brought several of her classmates along with her for the ball. Included in the merry group were Miss Jane Allison and her brother William Allison.

Buffet Supper At Midnight

Long about midnight guests—who had been sipping pink champagne all evening—enjoyed a cold supper served in the long dining room. The bar was arranged in the patio. The long buffet table was centered with pink roses and tall pink candles were arranged at each end. Cold turkeys, hams and salads were laid out. Here again pink popped up in the icing on the cakes.

One of the most striking looking ladies at the party last evening was Senora de Sierra, wife of the Second Secretary of the Embassy. Her frock had a very bouffant black taffeta skirt and pink bodice embroidered in sequins. Her long black hair was arranged in a low knot at the nape of her neck and she wore dramatic earrings of diamonds and black pearls. Just to mention a few people there at random—Dr. and Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Senora de Duhart, wearing a pale pink gown, the Misses Mary and Peter Norris, Senora de Cordova, who wore a black frock with a full tulle skirt and Senora de Cuervo, smart in a pink and silver lame gown.

Ann Mitchell Is Among Guests

Among the guests from out of town were Miss Ann Mitchell and her mother, Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell, who came down yesterday from New York especially to attend the ball. They are staying at the Mayflower Hotel and will be here for a few days. Later in the season they expect to return to Washington to spend several weeks.

Holding the spotlight for a good deal of the time were members of the Mexican horseshow team, jaunty in their uniforms, down from New York for the occasion. Also in a snappy uniform was "Poncho" Castillo Najera, who is a lieutenant in the medical corps of the Mexican army.

Seen here and there were Mrs. A. A. Berle, in a pink faille frock; the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, smart in black velvet; the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun; pretty Lillian Somoza, gowned in pink and silver; the Commercial Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy and Senora de Hasslocher; Mrs. Thomas Burke, with her mother, Senora del Pulgar.

The dance floor was extremely popular. Mme. Fottich, wife of the Yugoslav Minister, danced the tango with the Minister of Portugal, Dr. Joao Antonio de Bianchi, Dr. Valdes Rodriguez, Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, whirled about with Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan Minister. Still others there were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grosner, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza; the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Munilla, and many more.

The company included Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Donald Nelson, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin and Mrs. James Newton of Denver.

Mrs. Smith will entertain at another luncheon next Friday, also at the 1925 F Street Club. Later, she will take her guests to the ballet at the National Theater. After that, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will leave for New Haven, Conn., where they will see the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday.

Diplomats Attend N. Y. Benefit Ball

The Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz and the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon were among those who attended the gala ball given in New York on Thursday night as a benefit for Refugees of England, Inc.

Many dinner parties preceded the ball. The diplomats and their wives were guests of the Countess of Abingdon, chairman of the fete. Also in her party were George Theunis, Belgian Ambassador at large; Mme. Theunis, Sir Charles and Lady Mendl, Lady Auckland, Baron and Baroness de Zuylen, Mrs. Vincent Sheean, Hamilton Fish Armstrong and George N. Richard.

The party was held in the St. Regis and was attended by some 600 members of society.

Eileen Loftus Engaged to Wed F. R. Tansill

Mrs. Nellie Stanley Conroy announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Eileen Loftus, to Frederick Riker Tansill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tansill, of Washington.

Miss Loftus is the daughter of the late Austin Loftus. She is a graduate of the Visitation Convent in Georgetown.

Mr. Tansill is an alumnus of Georgetown University and is now stationed there on active duty as a first lieutenant, Infantry Reserve, U. S. A. He is a member of the District of Columbia bar.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Luncheon Given For Latin Women

A luncheon will be given today at the Mayflower in honor of members of the Inter-American Commission of Women which has been meeting here. The hostesses are Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala; Senora de Castro, wife of the envoy from El Salvador; Senora de Caceres, wife of the Minister from Honduras, and Senora de De Bayle, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua.

The four ladies were named to represent their countries at meetings of the commission.

Anita A. Nash To Make Debut

A New York debut of particular interest to Washington society will be that on December 20 of Miss Anita Auchincloss Nash. She is a niece of Hugh D. Auchincloss, of Newport and Fairfield, Conn. The latter will present her at a party in the St. Regis Hotel.

Miss Nash is among the New Yorkers interested in the British-American Ambulance Corps, and has been active in plans for a benefit tea dance and entertainment to be given December 2, from 5 to 7 p. m., by the Board of Governors of the York Club in Manhattan. Also working for its success is Miss Virginia Lewis, whose parents, Col. and Mrs. George Chase Lewis, formerly lived in Washington. She is chairman of the junior committee and Miss Nash heads the debutante committee for the affair.

Among the patrons for the party are Lady Lindsay, Mrs. Hamilton Kerr Lamar and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman.

Mrs. Wilbur Carr Will Entertain At Luncheon Today

Mrs. Wilbur Carr will entertain at a luncheon today in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Vinton Chapin.

Mrs. Chapin will arrive this morning for a brief stay. Her husband is with the United States Legation in Dublin. The Chapins were stationed in Prague when the former United States Minister and Mrs. Carr were there. Upon leaving Prague Mr. Chapin was transferred to London, thence to Ireland.

British Benefit Leaders Feted

Donald Brooks was host at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon for members of the committee for the Thanksgiving Ball. The ball will be held next Friday evening at Hotel 2400 to raise money for the British Save the Children Fund.

Among Mr. Brooks' guests were the Misses Mary Morris Wright, chairman of the ball; L. Kearsley Caldwell, Katherine Pearson, Suzanne Kappler, Betty Wright, Alice Jane Blair, Margaret Jane Abell, Jean Howard, and Mrs Wiley Buchanan, jr. Also Joseph Blair, Thomas Tighe, F. Murray Sands, Wiley Buchanan, jr., Preston Davis, Andre Simonpietri, Corwin Lockwood and Paul Haney.

Helena Smith And Minnesota Man Betrothed

Mrs. Charlotte Yarnell Smith, of Golf Club Manor, Arlington, Va., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Helena Mask Smith, to Lee Joseph Steene, of Rochester, Minn.

Miss Smith is a graduate of George Washington University and completed additional postgraduate work at American University. She is the sister of the radio star, Kate Smith.

The prospective bridegroom is a first officer with American Airlines. He attended George Washington University, and is commissioned in the United States Army, Air Corps Reserve. The wedding will take place in this city early in December.

Mrs. Borah May Winter In California

Reveals Plans at Mrs. La Gorce's Luncheon Yesterday

Some time soon Mrs. William E. Borah plans to store her collection of 600 toy elephants, sublet her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue, and leave for California to spend the remainder of the winter.

At a small luncheon yesterday, she said the date of her departure is not set and she is not yet sure just where she will go, but she expects to leave shortly and will be away until spring. That's bad news for a host of Washingtonians, and several guests at the luncheon tried to persuade her to change her mind.

Mrs. George Fitzmaurice, the honor guest, however, extolled the charms of a winter in California and advised Mrs. Borah to continue with her original plans. Mrs. Fitzmaurice hails from Beverley Hills, and while she came East to spend the winter, she says she frequently misses the California sunshine.

Looks Like Her Famous Sister

In Washington for a brief visit, she is the house guest of Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce who gave the luncheon for her yesterday. Widow of the well-known film director, Mrs. Fitzmaurice looks very much like her pretty sister, Lois Wilson, star of stage and screen. Both have the same quiet charm, the same disarming smile, and both are lovely additions to any gathering. Mrs. Fitzmaurice had on a woods brown crepe rock with a bronze-beaded narrow belt to match the dainty beaded shield on either shoulder. At the conclusion of her Washington stay, the visitor will return to Lancaster, Pa., where she is spending the season with her sister.

It seemed as if almost everybody at the table was either a visitor or expecting visitors this week-end. Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, for example, will have as guests for several days Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Guggenheim, of New York and Charleston, S. C., who will come to Washington today.

To Visit Richbergs Van Hasselts

Mrs. Donald Richberg will have visiting her for a couple of days Mr. and Mrs. H. de Van Hasselt. Mr. de Van Hasselt represents a Dutch oil company in Venezuela. The de Van Hasselts will arrive in Washington today and Mr. and Mrs. Richberg will entertain at a dinner for them this evening. Mrs. William D. Sullivan, still another guest at the luncheon, has as her house guest her mother, Mrs. Beulah Davis, of Hollywood, who is also spending some time during her Washington stay with her other daughter, Mrs. La Gorce. Mrs. Davis plans to be here for several weeks before leaving for the West. En route there, they may go down to Mexico for a brief stay. Mrs. William A. Morgan and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, who were also among the luncheon guests, advised her "not to miss Mexico for anything."

Loy Hendersons Entertain at Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson entertained at cocktails and tea yesterday afternoon. Among their guests were diplomats, State Department officials and a number of friends who were with them at Moscow during the four years that Mr. Henderson served as First Secretary and Charge d'Affaires at the United States Embassy there.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Cecil Grey, Mrs. Joseph Jacobs and Mrs. Clahr Huddle.

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope were among the guests, as were Minister Alfred Bilmanis, of Latvia, and Minister Povilas Zadeikis, of Latvia. The newly appointed Consul General to Cairo and Mrs. Joseph Jacobs, who will soon leave for their new post, were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. Norris Chipman. Mr. Chipman will leave on Sunday for Cairo.

Bishop O'Hara Guest of Honor At Walsh Tea

Led by Mrs. Raymond F. Metcalf and Mrs. Shelley U. Marietta, a number of Army officers' wives officiated at the tea table yesterday afternoon at the reception given by Chaplain William John Walsh in honor of Bishop John Francis O'Hara, of New York. The event was given at Sternberg Auditorium at Walter Reed Medical Center from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Bishop O'Hara is auxiliary bishop of the Army and Navy, is the former president of Notre Dame University and was one of the 12 delegates appointed by President Roosevelt to the eighth inter-American conference in Lima, Peru, in 1938.

Assisting in arrangements were Maj. and Mrs. Charles F. Baish, Mrs. C. D. Hartman and Mrs. R. G. Guyer. At the tea table were Mrs. Henry Gibbons, Mrs. George E. Kumpe, Mrs. Alice K. McDonough, Mrs. Paul English, Mrs. R. L. Randall, Mrs. Arthur J. Wehr, Mrs. Edwin J. O'Hara, Mrs. C. C. Carter, Mrs. Harry Bishop, Mrs. Thomas North, Mrs. J. E. McInerney, Mrs. A. D. Hopping, Mrs. A. A. de Lorimer, Mrs. E. A. Williams, Mrs. J. L. Collins and Mrs. E. M. Brannon.

Crown Princess Marthe Feted By Danish Minister and Wife

National Officers of English-Speaking Union Guests at Tea Given by Wife Of South African Envoy, Mrs. R. W. Close

Several small diplomatic parties featured the social calendar yesterday. The Crown Princess Marthe of Norway was honored at a dinner given by the Danish Minister and Mme. de Kauffmann at the legation on Massachusetts Avenue. The party was small, as the Princess wants to lead a very quiet life since settling in the Merle Thorpe house near Bethesda.

National officers of the English Speaking Union, who came here for the big dinner last night at the Willard, were among the guests at the informal tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the South African Minister.

During the winter Mrs. Close is following the pleasant practice of asking friends to drop in for a cup of tea on occasional Friday afternoons. The legation on Massachusetts Avenue is a perfect setting for a party. Two large living rooms open into one another, and the dining room is a spacious one.

Minister Assisted In Receiving

Yesterday bright fires crackled on the hearths, and many of the guests chose a comfortable sofa nearby to sit and chat. On either side of one fireplace were tall bronze vases filled with clusters of russet chrysanthemums. Smaller bowls of white mums were placed on the tables. The buffet was centered with pale lavender astors.

The Minister assisted his wife in receiving, and there were as many men as women at the party. Mrs. Close wore a street-length black frock of simple design with gold braid trimming the shoulders and bodice.

Mrs. Willem Naude, wife of the legation attache, was here, there and everywhere seeing that the guests had a good time. Robert Webster, secretary, was also assisting.

Mrs. Close showed friends a new photograph of her daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Mann, which she had just received from England. Mrs. Mann is there to be near her husband, who is in the Navy.

Mrs. Pott Among Those Calling

Tea, coffee, and such delicacies as paper thin sandwiches and tiny hot biscuits filled with ham were served during the afternoon. Among those who called was Mrs. Pott, wife of the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, who had with her Miss Ruth Ogden, a guest from New York. Mrs. Pott was in navy blue with a small turban trimmed in pink.

Mrs. Bruce Wallace, secretary of the English Speaking Union, introduced delegates here for the dinner. Ralph Totten, former United States Minister to South Africa, paused on his way into the dining room to chat with Mrs. Naude.

Debs Honored At Luncheon

Miss Phyllis Walke Richardson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dawson Richardson, of Fairfax, Va., entertained at a luncheon yesterday at Hotel 2400. Her guests included many debutantes of the season, among them Miss Mary McIntire Betts, Miss Laura Blair, Miss Katherine Claude, Miss Audrey Cowan, Miss Elaine Darlington, Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant Fish, and Miss Alice Ingersoll.

Still others there from the debutante set were Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, Miss Margaret Lansdowne, Miss Mary Lee, Miss Mary Lane Macatee, Miss Florence Magruder, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson and Miss Priscilla Watson.

Miss Richardson will make her formal bow to society at a ball to be given December 30 in Willard Hall, Fairfax.

Sulgrave Club Scene of Gay Supper Dance

Mme. Espil Gives Dinner at Embassy For Her Daughter

Several debutantes of the season gathered at the Argentine Embassy, where Mme. Espil entertained at dinner for her daughter, Miss Louise Stillwell. (Ambassador Espil was at another party and wasn't present.) Later Mme. Espil dropped in at the dance for a while.

Mrs. Randall Hagner, who spent the day at her new home in Maryland, drove back again in time to entertain at dinner before the dance. The party took place at her home on S Street.

Dr. and Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, gave a buffet supper at their home in Georgetown in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schoettle, who are spending the week-end with them. Also host before the dance was Lieut. Victor Sutro, who entertained at his home on P Street for Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. William T. Mann, Miss Betty Beale, Miss Jean Conrad, Miss Nancy Woodward, Kenneth Peters, Frederick Nichols and Malcolm Burke.

Others seen whirling about the floor of the Sulgrave ballroom included Miss Nancy Leiter, Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCammon, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gray Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beach and many more.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope will entertain at a luncheon today in honor of Miss Therese Bonney, who is holding an exhibit of war photographs at the Library of Congress. Miss Bonney was the only woman photographer at the front during the Finnish-Soviet war.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenneth Jenkins have returned from their Bermuda honeymoon and are staying with her uncle, Edward Gardner, at his home before moving into their residence on Dent Place. Mrs. Jenkins is the former Miss Mary Louise Marsh.

Mrs. Mae Hamilton has cards out for the first in a series of small teas she has planned for this season. The party will take place on Tuesday, November 26, in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue.

Miss Patricia Uline Hill has cards out for a tea at the Sulgrave Club on Friday, November 22. Guests of honor will be the Misses Marion and Mary Theresa Norris, debutante daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris.

Mrs. John H. Powers will entertain at luncheon today at the Silver Bowl, followed by two tables of bridge.

Kauffmans Take Apartment Here

Capt. and Mrs. James Lawrence Kauffman, who have been spending the last two months in Annapolis, have taken an apartment at 2310 Connecticut avenue. They will occupy it on Friday.

Their debutante daughter, Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, will be honor guest at a dinner to be given next Monday by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter Woodson. Later the group will attend the Black and White Ball at the Mayflower.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., And Wife Planning To Hunt in Virginia

MR. AND MRS. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., expect to come to Virginia for occasional fox hunts this season. Young Mr. Roosevelt, here last week-end with his wife, said that he has been much too busy to think of this sport, but now that elections are over hopes to take it up again. They are members of Farmington Hunt near Charlottesville and went out regularly for the three years Mr. Roosevelt was attending the University of Virginia.

The Roosevelts were among those at a house party given recently at Frostfield, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frost, by their sons, Henry Frost, jr., and Winston Frost. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Jane Fowler Bassett, of Camden, S. C.; Miss Peggy Wing, of Maryland, and Miss Jane Wilbur, of Warrenton.

THE MONTPELIER HUNT races, to be run today over Montpelier, the estate of Mrs. Marian du Pont Scott, near Orange, Va., will draw all fans in that direction. The first race will be called at 1:30

Much entertaining is revolving around the event. Mrs. Scott will be hostess at a luncheon for owners, jockeys and several friends today. Another large party will be given by Mrs. Gray Dunnington and her brother, Leslie Gray, at their home, Montebello. Mr. Gray is secretary of the race meeting.

The five events on the card are well filled. Feature race of the day will be the Noel Laing Steeplechase Handicap, about 2½ miles over brush. The third event on the program, it will be called at 2:30. Other races are the Madison Plate, about 1½ miles over hurdles; the Virginia Plate, 1 mile on the flat; the Monpelier Cup, about 2 miles over brush, and the Bellevue Plate, 1½ miles on the flat.

Committee for the race meeting includes Mrs. Scott, president; William du Pont, jr., vice president; G. Dudley Gray, secretary; Carroll K. Bassett, John W. McComb, Hugh B. Craig, F. Wallace Armstrong, Jack Skinner, Richard J. Wallach. Handicappers are Edward J. Brennan and Fred H. Parks.

THE ELKRIDGE Harford Hunt will meet today at Hope Hill in Maryland at 2 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne, of Long Island, who are spending the week-end in Maryland, will hunt today and will entertain the field afterwards at cocktails at the club. The Rathbornes were in Virginia this week to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Hugh Nelson, and her mother, Mrs. Prescott Huidekoper, at Long Branch in Clarke County. Mrs. Rathborne has been hunting with the Blue Ridge Hunt during her stay in Virginia and will return here later in the season.

A HUGE CROWD, including many out of town visitors here for Thanksgiving, is expected to attend the ball for the benefit of British War Relief next Saturday at the North Wales Club. Mrs. Paul Mellon is chairman of the committee, of which Lord Lothian heads the patrons.

Montpelier Races Will Be Run Today On Estate Near Orange

Working with Mrs. Mellon are Mrs. Robert Young, vice chairman; Miss Jane Wilbur, secretary; Mrs. Robert Fletcher, treasurer. The committee has been divided into geographic districts to take in all sections of the hunt country and Washington. Members are, from Upperville, Mrs. Charles V. B. Cushman, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Glasscock, Mrs. C. J. Ryley, Mrs. Altemus Whitney; Middleburg, Mrs. Amory Perkins, chairman; Mrs. Barrington Hall, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. Holland Potter, Mrs. John T. Skinner; Warrenton, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, chairman; Mrs. William Murray Black, Mrs. Amory Carhart, Mrs. Raymond McGrath; Clarke and Warren Counties, Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin, chairman; Mrs. Raymond Guest, Mrs. Stacy Lloyd

B Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Lay education and personnel are more important than equipment in reducing the mortality rate among premature infants and nurses are more important than pediatricians, it was decided yesterday at the annual meeting of the Council for Mothers and Babies, held at the Washington Hotel. Mrs. Elwood Street, retiring chairman of the council, presided.

It was the first time such a session had ever been devoted to the problem of reducing the death rate among premature babies. One suggestion was that public spirited citizens be encouraged to "endow a nurse instead of a bed" in a hospital. There is great need for nurses to instruct mothers in the care of infants after they leave the hospital, or when the infants are born at home, it was pointed out. There is little advantage in providing incubators, if the mother does not know how to give the child proper care.

Mrs. Howard Armstrong, mother of Joyce, Jean and Julianne, sturdy 4-year-old Washington triplets, each of whom weighed just over 3 pounds at birth, told how she cared for them.

She wore a mask and gown and followed a nurse's rigid routine for two months in caring for them after they were taken home, she said. Her greatest problem was not the babies but the stream of people who wanted to see them, strangers as well as friends and acquaintances, she added.

Need for proper nutritions and for the good health of both parents to insure the health of the child were emphasized in the discussions. It was generally agreed that the premature child had an equal chance with others after the early years.

Dr. George F. McCleary, chairman of the National Council for Maternity and Child Welfare in London, addressed the council at the luncheon following the morning session. He helped draft regulations for the evacuation from cities of children under school age—one phase of war precaution for which England was well prepared, he said.

Dr. McCleary told of one woman who had billeted in her large country house, an entire primary school of 30 with their teachers and was delighted with the children. The evacuees from Gibraltar have also had to be cared for in England, he said.

Never in history has there been such mixing of social classes and such a national unity as there is today in England, he asserted.

He told of the maternal and child welfare services which have been carried on there since the last World War, with the assistance of funds from the Carnegie Corporation. There is a health insurance law, also, providing for a maternity grant of £2 to a mother if her husband is insured and an additional £2 if she too is insured.

Among other speakers were Dr. Fred L. Adair, of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the Chicago Lying-In Hospital; Dr. A. L. Carson, director of maternal and child health for the Virginia Health Department; Miss Hazel Corbin, of the New York Maternal Health Center; Dr. Paul D. Clark, who holds the same position in Vermont; Dr. Ethel C. Dunham, a pioneeri n the work of saving premature babies, who told of new-type incubators; Miss Elizabeth Christman, of the Women's Trade Union League; Dr. Lillian Smith, of the Michigan Health Department; Dr. Dorothy B. Ferbee, of Howard University.

Dr. John H. Mason Knox, jr., of Baltimore, director of maternal and child health for Maryland, was elected chairman of the council; Prof. Ernest W. Burgess, of the University of Chicago, vice chairman; Mrs. Nathan Straus, secretary; Miss Hazel Corbin, of New York, treasurer. Mrs. Gordon Waganet is executive secretary.

20th Century Club Holds Membership Fete; 300 Present

About 300 members of the Twentieth Century Club gathered at the Washington Club yesterday for the reception for the membership. The officers received in the drawing room of the clubhouse, headed by Mrs. Lawrence Martin, the president. Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke and Mrs. James C. Robertson made the introductions.

The club relations committee, of which Mrs. Sidney H. Thompson is chairman, was in charge of the arrangements. The past presidents who alternated at the tea tables decorated in fall flowers were Mrs. Renest P. Bicknell, Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Mrs. Frederic E. Farrington, Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. William Walter Husband, Mrs. Elwood P. Morey, Mrs. James K. McClintock and Mrs. Edward G. Montgomery. New members were present with their sponsors.

Discuss Defense Organization

Mrs. Robert O. Lord (left) chairman of the Washington Branch of the American Women's Voluntary Services, Mrs. Melville D. Church, public relations chairman with Lady Lewis, (right), guest of honor at the tea given by the A. W. V. S. yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel

A description of assembling 96,000 gas masks between 2:30 one afternoon and daylight the next morning was given members of the American Women's Voluntary Services and their guests yesterday by Mrs. Arthur Turner, an instructor in the New York headquarters.

Mrs. Turner, who is American-born but spent 20 years in England, said she had offered her services for defense. At 2:30 one day she was called. By 6 p. m. a canteen and first aid station had been set up and 500 volunteers were working. By sunrise, 96,000 masks were ready.

The A. W. V. S. is designed to train American women for similiar service in case of any emergency, she said.

Mrs. Turner came to the United States, bringing the group of children being cared for by Marshall Field. She remained to help organize the A. W. V. S. which follows the British plan. It will be a permanent peacé-time organization, Mrs. Robert O. Lord, the local chairman, said.

Sir Willmott Lewis also was a guest and spoke, commending the women's work in England and here. A picture showing the work in England was shown. About 100 attended.

Pedestrian Control Laws Advocated

Traffic Conference Urges Legislation To Curb Accidents

Describing pedestrian accident prevention as the country's most important traffic safety activity, the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators yesterday adopted plans to seek Nation-wide pedestrian control laws.

They concluded a two-day convention at the Hotel Willard.

It was the first time the administrators have actively entered the pedestrian protection picture and the report of a special committee was unanimously accepted. The report read in part:

"We urge all motor vehicle administrators to take the lead in promoting a program of pedestrian protection with due consideration to advocating legislation requiring pedestrians to walk in such a manner as to prevent accidents—particularly at locations controlled by lights or police officers."

The group suggested a widespread educational program among governmental agencies, private organizations, churches and schools as a means of reducing pedestrian casualties.

But pedestrians, the report pointed out, cannot be expected to carry the full burden of responsibility. Motorists, too, must cooperate in observing right of way regulations, it said.

In Washington, according to an address by Assistant Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge, motorists have failed in this necessary cooperation. He cited rapidly increasing instances where accidents have been caused by failure of drivers to yield the right of way to pedestrians at both controlled and uncontrolled intersections.

Motorists Blamed

From 1931 to 1939, Eldridge said, pedestrian deaths in Washington constituted from 63.5 to 76.3 per cent of all accident facilities. In 67 per cent of these fatal accidents, he added, the pedestrian was found at fault. Motorists were blamed in a large percentage of cases where pedestrians were injured, but not killed.

Before concluding their sessions with a banquet last night, the administrators elected the following officers:

Policeman Halts Traffic Experts

There was much discussion of pedestrian control regulations at yesterday's meeting of the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators in the Willard Hotel.

At the noon recess, Frederick Robie, president of the conference, and A. W. Bohlen, president of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, stepped out for a breath of air.

Promptly, the policeman on duty blew his whistle.

The incident was witnessed by several delegates to the convention. Robie and Bohlen failed to turn up for the afternoon meeting.

Corporal Held in Auto Death

Doyl H. Moore, 21-year-old lance corporal attached to Langley Field, Va., was held for the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury in the traffic death of Gloster Roberts, 58, of 4428 Farraday Place Northwest.

The jury deliberated 20 minutes before holding the soldier, who was charged with reckless driving.

Policeman John F. Ryan, of the accident prevention unit, testified that Roberts was struck at Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest last Saturday while crossing Wisconsin Avenue in the crosswalk.

Moore drove to the left of a north-bound streetcar which had stopped at the intersection to allow Roberts to alight. The pedestrian, Ryan stated, crossed in front of the streetcar and was knocked down by the automobile, which was on the wrong side of the street.

Roberts was hurled 60 feet from the point of impact, the policeman declared. He added that the injured man lay unconscious for 30 minutes before an ambulance arrived.

At this point, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, interrupted and asked the witness if he knew when an ambulance was called and why it did not respond.

Ryan said the police dispatcher broadcast for an Emergency Hospital ambulance at 4:22 p. m., five minutes after the accident. He added that at 4:50 p. m. a private ambulance arrived to take Roberts to the hospital.

"That was an ambulance from Sardo Co., was it not?" Dr. MacDonald asked.

When Ryan answered, "yes," the coroner said:

"Can you tell me why an ambulance was called from Fourth and H Streets Northeast to go all the way to Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest, in a case like this?"

The policeman said that an investigation after the accident showed that Emergency Hospital's ambulance was in service when called by the police radio station and that Sardo's ambulance was dispatched by the Central Admitting Bureau.

Hit-Run Killer Gets 15 Years

District Attorney Arthur B. Caldwell presented a score of witnesses who described Nestlerode's wild ride. The testimony showed that he crossed a red light, Twelfth and H Streets Northeast and ran down Mrs. Mitchell, injuring her fatally.

Without stopping, the witnesses said, Nestlerode speeded up and fled, pursued by two witnesses in another car. Weaving through the traffic at 65 miles an hour, trying to shake off his pursuers, Nestlerode struck Nappo and killed him almost instantly.

Nestlerode hit six other cars and a streetcar as he fled but did not stop until the last collision ripped the wheels off his automobile. He then fled on foot but was caught by Policeman Gordan W. Rowand, of the Third Precinct.

Shoppers Hear Miss Taylor

Miss Mary Taylor, editor of the Consumers' Guide, told the League of Women Shoppers yesterday that, as a consumers' group, it should work in connection with the defense program to keep consumer standards up.

The league met in Silver Spring at the home of Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Associate Justice Douglas, of the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, president of the group, outlined the program for the year which will include a study of housing, with several field trips by the living standards committee; a survey of conditions among household employes and an effort to encourage the standardizing of goods so the consumer will know the quality of articles he buys.

Mothers Inspect Vocational Home

Members of the department of government and education of the League of Women Voters and of the mothers' class of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday made a field trip to Chamberlain Vocational Home. Mrs. Benjamin R. Woods, leader of the mothers' class and who also is active in the education department of the league, led the group.

The 18 women in the party were conducted through the school by C. D. Reed, the principal. They had lunch in the tea room of the school prepared by the students of home economics. These included both boys and girls, the former being trained as chefs and bakers and the girls acting as waitresses.

The school's goal, Mr. Reed explained, is to train young people for jobs and their course is not completed until they are prepared to do practical work.

Newcomb Club Hears FBI Aide

There is an undeclared war on the United States so far as some totalitarian governments are concerned, Lee Pennington, jr., of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, told members of the Newcomb Club of Bethesda yesterday.

Addressing the club's November luncheon at the Kenesaw Apartments, he told of the work of the Government agents in the inspection of plants which have Government contracts, guarding docks and wharfs and eliminating hazards. Many catastrophes have been prevented, he said, through the alertness of the FBI and the cooperation of citizens who have reported to the bureau.

The FBI, he said, has handled as many as 2,800 calls in a day. Efforts of citizens to investigate on their own are dangerous and hamper effective work of officials, he added.

Millions of dollars are being poured into organizations in this country by the Nazi and Communist governments, said Mr. Pennington, in an effort to divide it into racial, religious and other antagonistic groups. Local troubles, no matter how minor in themselves, may indicate a general plan.

Mrs. William Ross Dellett, president of the club, presided.

A. S. Beck Social Club Hold Dance Tomorrow

The A. S. Beck Social Club will have its annual dinner and dance at the Casino Paree tomorrow at 8 p. m.

About 60 members of the club and their guests are expected to attend, including Mr. R. A. Des Roches, Dr. and Mrs. Leon Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Mendelson. Edward F. De Wolfe is president.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

THE LEAGUE OF COAST GUARD WOMEN will open its annual meeting today at the Shoreham Hotel with Mrs. Russell R. Waesche, wife of Admiral Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard, presiding. Mrs. Waesche is chairman of the board of directors and Mrs. William H. Shea of the Washington Unit.

Delegates from various units in Eastern States arrived yesterday and attended the dinner given in their honor last night at the Shoreham.

A luncheon will follow the business meeting today and will be addressed by Admiral Waesche. The organization is celebrating the 16th anniversary of its founding.

DANCE TONIGHT—The Washington Unit of Junior Hadassah will have its annual formal dance for its membership and their escorts tonight at the Woodmont Country Club.

Ruth Morgenstein, vice-president of the junior group and membership chairman, is in charge of arrangements. Assisting her are Cynthia Michaelson, Selma Simon and Maxine Friedman.

Guests of honor at a tea to be given by the Home Economics Association this afternoon, will be Miss Gladys A. Branegan, national president, and Miss Edna Van Horn, executive secretary. The tea will be from 4 to 6 o'clock at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Branegan is here for the meeting of the executive council of that association. She is from Montana State College, at Bozeman, where she has been dean of the division of household and industrial arts for the past ten years.

Miss Van Horn came here from Oregon State College in Corvallis.

MEMORIAL SERVICE — The National Mothers Memory Club on Thursday conducted a memorial service for the late Mrs. Hilda Ganard who was a first vice-president of the club, placing an inscribed plate in her honor at the Home for Aged Women, 1253 Wisconsin avenue.

Mrs. John Morrison Kerr was chairman of the committee which arranged the service.

The club was formed some years ago by a group of women who, in memory of their own mothers, desired to take the interest daughters would in residents of the home and other aged women.

Woman Robbed By Gunman At D. C. Store

Mrs. Edith Brodsky, who operates a dry goods store and agency for the American Express Co. at 4419 Sheriff Road Northwest, had never seen a pistol until yesterday.

Then she looked down the barrel of one. She counted her own loss at $54 from a pocketbook and $14.80 from the cash register. What the express company lost was not immediately determined.

The bandit was described as a "tall, fat, colored man."

Dabney of the Charlottesville Corporation Court to preside in the Arlington Circuit Court beginning December 2, in place of Judge Walter T. McCarthy, who is unable to preside at this time. Judge Lemuel F. Smith of the Eighth Circuit will preside for Judge McCarthy beginning November 19.

The Aumens Again Rule Town's Firemen

Special Dispatch to The Post

Gettysburg, Nov. 15.—It looks like the Gettysburg Fire Company is going to keep things in the Aumen family again this year. Last night at the annual nomination of officers James B. Aumen was proposed again for president and his only son, James A. Aumen, was renominated for chief. They have filled those positions for the last five years.

700 Guests Attend Pink and Black Ball in Spacious Mexican Embassy

Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera Receive at Dance Marked by Informality; Cuban Orchestra Plays Rhythmic Latin Tunes

By Carolyn Bell.

PINK WAS ELEVATED to dizzy heights in the diplomatic set last evening when more than 700 guests turned up at the Mexican Embassy wearing the color—if only in boutonnieres.

In a froth of pink lace and net, was the lively hostess, Erma Castillo Najera—who confessed she received the inspiration at a unique Pink and Black ball. It was the wee small of hours of the morning when the final guests took their departure from the Embassy in Sixteenth Street.

Around 10 o'clock a steady stream of guests climbed the massive stairway beside the mural-decked wall. For a short while, a semblance of a receiving line was to be found but the informality of the occasion soon broke it up.

With a fresh pink carnation pinned to his lapel—in deference to the color scheme—Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera received with his wife and daughter. Erma's frock, fashioned with a tight bodice and bouffant skirt was scattered with pink sequins. The gown was orchid-pink and she pinned a cluster of orchids at the shoulder.

Pink Blossoms And Pink Champagne

A host of pink flowers—gladioli, roses and chrysanthemums—was used throughout the spacious embassy. The gilt-decked ballroom reverberated with rhythmic Latin tunes—for a Cuban band had been brought here especially for the ball. Rumbas and tangos were popular all evening—not to mention the conga.

While many of the "oldsters" preferred a dignified black for their gowns, the youngsters, for the most part reveled in pink. Senora de Quintanilla, wife of the Minister-Counselor of the Embassy, wore a combination of the two colors. Over her simple black frock she wore a pink lace jacket. Their daughter, Senorita Jane Quintanilla, accompanied her mother down from their farm in Pennsylvania especially for the occasion. She wore a smart pink satin ensemble. Jane, who attends Gettysburg College, brought several of her classmates along with her for the ball. Included in the merry group were Miss Jane Allison and her brother William Allison.

Buffet Supper At Midnight

Long about midnight guests—who had been sipping pink champagne all evening—enjoyed a cold supper served in the long dining room. The bar was arranged in the patio. The long buffet table was centered with pink roses and tall pink candles were arranged at each end. Cold turkeys, hams and salads were laid out. Here again pink popped up in the icing on the cakes.

One of the most striking looking ladies at the party last evening was Senora de Sierra, wife of the Second Secretary of the Embassy. Her frock had a very bouffant black taffeta skirt and pink bodice embroidered in sequins. Her long black hair was arranged in a low knot at the nape of her neck and she wore dramatic earrings of diamonds and black pearls. Just to mention a few people there at random—Dr. and Mrs. Henry Beall Gwynn, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Senora de Duhart, wearing a pale pink gown, the Misses Mary and Peter Norris, Senora de Cordova, who wore a black frock with a full tulle skirt and Senora de Cuervo, smart in a pink and silver lame gown.

Ann Mitchell Is Among Guests

Among the guests from out of town were Miss Ann Mitchell and her mother, Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell, who came down yesterday from New York especially to attend the ball. They are staying at the Mayflower Hotel and will be here for a few days. Later in the season they expect to return to Washington to spend several weeks.

Holding the spotlight for a good deal of the time were members of the Mexican horseshow team, jaunty in their uniforms, down from New York for the occasion. Also in a snappy uniform was "Poncho" Castillo Najera, who is a lieutenant in the medical corps of the Mexican army.

Seen here and there were Mrs. A. A. Berle, in a pink faille frock; the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, smart in black velvet; the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun; pretty Lillian Somoza, gowned in pink and silver; the Commercial Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy and Senora de Hasslocher; Mrs. Thomas Burke, with her mother, Senora del Pulgar.

The dance floor was extremely popular. Mme. Fottich, wife of the Yugoslav Minister, danced the tango with the Minister of Portugal, Dr. Joao Antonio de Bianchi, Dr. Valdes Rodriguez, Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, whirled about with Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan Minister. Still others there were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grosner, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza; the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Munilla, and many more.

Mrs. Smith Has Party Honoring Mrs. Patterson

Mrs. Richard Patterson, of New York, who is spending a few days in Washington, was guest of honor at a small luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Bruce Smith at the 1925 F Street Club.

The company included Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Donald Nelson, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin and Mrs. James Newton of Denver.

Mrs. Smith will entertain at another luncheon next Friday, also at the 1925 F Street Club. Later, she will take her guests to the ballet at the National Theater. After that, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will leave for New Haven, Conn., where they will see the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday.

Diplomats Attend N. Y. Benefit Ball

The Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz and the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon were among those who attended the gala ball given in New York on Thursday night as a benefit for Refugees of England, Inc.

Many dinner parties preceded the ball. The diplomats and their wives were guests of the Countess of Abingdon, chairman of the fete. Also in her party were George Theunis, Belgian Ambassador at large; Mme. Theunis, Sir Charles and Lady Mendl, Lady Auckland, Baron and Baroness de Zuylen, Mrs. Vincent Sheean, Hamilton Fish Armstrong and George N. Richard.

The party was held in the St. Regis and was attended by some 600 members of society.

Eileen Loftus Engaged to Wed F. R. Tansill

Mrs. Nellie Stanley Conroy announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Eileen Loftus, to Frederick Riker Tansill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tansill, of Washington.

Miss Loftus is the daughter of the late Austin Loftus. She is a graduate of the Visitation Convent in Georgetown.

Mr. Tansill is an alumnus of Georgetown University and is now stationed there on active duty as a first lieutenant, Infantry Reserve, U. S. A. He is a member of the District of Columbia bar.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Luncheon Given For Latin Women

A luncheon will be given today at the Mayflower in honor of members of the Inter-American Commission of Women which has been meeting here. The hostesses are Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala; Senora de Castro, wife of the envoy from El Salvador; Senora de Caceres, wife of the Minister from Honduras, and Senora de De Bayle, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua.

The four ladies were named to represent their countries at meetings of the commission.

Latest addition to the Washington list of debutantes for the season is Miss Helen Kindler (above), daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hans Kindler. She will make her bow to society at a tea on Tuesday, November 26, at the 1925 F Street Club

Anita A. Nash To Make Debut

A New York debut of particular interest to Washington society will be that on December 20 of Miss Anita Auchincloss Nash. She is a niece of Hugh D. Auchincloss, of Newport and Fairfield, Conn. The latter will present her at a party in the St. Regis Hotel.

Miss Nash is among the New Yorkers interested in the British-American Ambulance Corps, and has been active in plans for a benefit tea dance and entertainment to be given December 2, from 5 to 7 p. m., by the Board of Governors of the York Club in Manhattan. Also working for its success is Miss Virginia Lewis, whose parents, Col. and Mrs. George Chase Lewis, formerly lived in Washington. She is chairman of the junior committee and Miss Nash heads the debutante committee for the affair.

Among the patrons for the party are Lady Lindsay, Mrs. Hamilton Kerr Lamar and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman.

Mrs. Wilbur Carr Will Entertain At Luncheon Today

Mrs. Wilbur Carr will entertain at a luncheon today in honor of her house guest, Mrs. Vinton Chapin.

Mrs. Chapin will arrive this morning for a brief stay. Her husband is with the United States Legation in Dublin. The Chapins were stationed in Prague when the former United States Minister and Mrs. Carr were there. Upon leaving Prague Mr. Chapin was transferred to London, thence to Ireland.

British Benefit Leaders Feted

Donald Brooks was host at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon for members of the committee for the Thanksgiving Ball. The ball will be held next Friday evening at Hotel 2400 to raise money for the British Save the Children Fund.

Among Mr. Brooks' guests were the Misses Mary Morris Wright, chairman of the ball; L. Kearsley Caldwell, Katherine Pearson, Suzanne Kappler, Betty Wright, Alice Jane Blair, Margaret Jane Abell, Jean Howard, and Mrs Wiley Buchanan, jr. Also Joseph Blair, Thomas Tighe, F. The prospective bridegroom is a first officer with American Airlines. He attended George Washington University, and is commissioned in the United States Army, Air Corps Reserve. The wedding will take place in this city early in December.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., And Wife Planning To Hunt in Virginia

MR. AND MRS. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., expect to come to Virginia for occasional fox hunts this season. Young Mr. Roosevelt, here last week-end with his wife, said that he has been much too busy to think of this sport, but now that elections are over hopes to take it up again. They are members of Farmington Hunt near Charlottesville and went out regularly for the three years Mr. Roosevelt was attending the University of Virginia.

The Roosevelts were among those at a house party given recently at Frostfield, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frost, by their sons, Henry Frost, jr., and Winston Frost. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Jane Fowler Bassett, of Camden, S. C.; Miss Peggy Wing, of Maryland, and Miss Jane Wilbur, of Warrenton.

THE MONTPELIER HUNT races, to be run today over Montpelier, the estate of Mrs. Marian du Pont Scott, near Orange, Va., will draw all fans in that direction. The first race will be called at 1:30

Much entertaining is revolving around the event. Mrs. Scott will be hostess at a luncheon for owners, jockeys and several friends today. Another large party will be given by Mrs. Gray Dunnington and her brother, Leslie Gray, at their home, Montebello. Mr. Gray is secretary of the race meeting.

The five events on the card are well filled. Feature race of the day will be the Noel Laing Steeplechase Handicap, about 2½ miles over brush. The third event on the program, it will be called at 2:30. Other races are the Madison Plate, about 1½ miles over hurdles; the Virginia Plate, 1 mile on the flat; the Monpelier Cup, about 2 miles over brush, and the Bellevue Plate, 1½ miles on the flat.

Committee for the race meeting includes Mrs. Scott, president; William du Pont, jr., vice president; G. Dudley Gray, secretary; Carroll K. Bassett, John W. McComb, Hugh B. Craig, F. Wallace Armstrong, Jack Skinner, Richard J. Wallach. Handicappers are Edward J. Brennan and Fred H. Parks.

THE ELKRIDGE Harford Hunt will meet today at Hope Hill in Maryland at 2 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne, of Long Island, who are spending the week-end in Maryland, will hunt today and will entertain the field afterwards at cocktails at the club. The Rathbornes were in Virginia this week to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Hugh Nelson, and her mother, Mrs. Prescott Huidekoper, at Long Branch in Clarke County. Mrs. Rathborne has been hunting with the Blue Ridge Hunt during her stay in Virginia and will return here later in the season.

A HUGE CROWD, including many out of town visitors here for Thanksgiving, is expected to attend the ball for the benefit of British War Relief next Saturday at the North Wales Club. Mrs. Paul Mellon is chairman of the committee, of which Lord Lothian heads the patrons.

Working with Mrs. Mellon are Mrs. Robert Young, vice chairman; Miss Jane Wilbur, secretary; Mrs. Robert Fletcher, treasurer. The committee has been divided into geographic districts to take in all sections of the hunt country and Washington. Members are, from Upperville, Mrs. Charles V. B. Cushman, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Glasscock, Mrs. C. J. Ryley, Mrs. Altemus Whitney; Middleburg, Mrs. Amory Perkins, chairman; Mrs. Barrington Hall, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. Holland Potter, Mrs. John T. Skinner; Warrenton, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, chairman; Mrs. William Murray Black, Mrs. Amory Carhart, Mrs. Raymond McGrath; Clarke and Warren Counties, Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin, chairman; Mrs. Raymond Guest, Mrs. Stacy Lloyd

Mrs. Borah May Winter In California

Reveals Plans at Mrs. La Gorce's Luncheon Yesterday

Some time soon Mrs. William E. Borah plans to store her collection of 600 toy elephants, sublet her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue, and leave for California to spend the remainder of the winter.

At a small luncheon yesterday, she said the date of her departure is not set and she is not yet sure just where she will go, but she expects to leave shortly and will be away until spring. That's bad news for a host of Washingtonians, and several guests at the luncheon tried to persuade her to change her mind.

Mrs. George Fitzmaurice, the honor guest, however, extolled the charms of a winter in California and advised Mrs. Borah to continue with her original plans. Mrs. Fitzmaurice hails from Beverley Hills, and while she came East to spend the winter, she says she frequently misses the California sunshine.

Looks Like Her Famous Sister

In Washington for a brief visit, she is the house guest of Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce who gave the luncheon for her yesterday. Widow of the well-known film director, Mrs. Fitzmaurice looks very much like her pretty sister, Lois Wilson, star of stage and screen. Both have the same quiet charm, the same disarming smile, and both are lovely additions to any gathering. Mrs. Fitzmaurice had on a woods brown crepe rock with a bronze-beaded narrow belt to match the dainty beaded shield on either shoulder. At the conclusion of her Washington stay, the visitor will return to Lancaster, Pa., where she is spending the season with her sister.

It seemed as if almost everybody at the table was either a visitor or expecting visitors this week-end. Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, for example, will have as guests for several days Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Guggenheim, of New York and Charleston, S. C., who will come to Washington today.

To Visit Richbergs Van Hasselts

Mrs. Donald Richberg will have visiting her for a couple of days Mr. and Mrs. H. de Van Hasselt. Mr. de Van Hasselt represents a Dutch oil company in Venezuela. The de Van Hasselts will arrive in Washington today and Mr. and Mrs. Richberg will entertain at a dinner for them this evening. Mrs. William D. Sullivan, still another guest at the luncheon, has as her house guest her mother, Mrs. Beulah Davis, of Hollywood, who is also spending some time during her Washington stay with her other daughter, Mrs. La Gorce. Mrs. Davis plans to be here for several weeks before leaving for the West. En route there, they may go down to Mexico for a brief stay. Mrs. William A. Morgan and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, who were also among the luncheon guests, advised her "not to miss Mexico for anything."

Loy Hendersons Entertain at Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson entertained at cocktails and tea yesterday afternoon. Among their guests were diplomats, State Department officials and a number of friends who were with them at Moscow during the four years that Mr. Henderson served as First Secretary and Charge d'Affaires at the United States Embassy there.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Cecil Grey, Mrs. Joseph Jacobs and Mrs. Clahr Huddle.

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope were among the guests, as were Minister Alfred Bilmanis, of Latvia, and Minister Povilas Zadeikis, of Latvia. The newly appointed Consul General to Cairo and Mrs. Joseph Jacobs, who will soon leave for their new post, were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. Norris Chipman. Mr. Chipman will leave on Sunday for Cairo.

Bishop O'Hara Guest of Honor At Walsh Tea

Led by Mrs. Raymond F. Metcalf and Mrs. Shelley U. Marietta, a number of Army officers' wives officiated at the tea table yesterday afternoon at the reception given by Chaplain William John Walsh in honor of Bishop John Francis O'Hara, of New York. The event was given at Sternberg Auditorium at Walter Reed Medical Center from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Bishop O'Hara is auxiliary bishop of the Army and Navy, is the former president of Notre Dame University and was one of the 12 delegates appointed by President Roosevelt to the eighth inter-American conference in Lima, Peru, in 1938.

Assisting in arrangements were Maj. and Mrs. Charles F. Baish, Mrs. C. D. Hartman and Mrs. R. G. Guyer. At the tea table were Mrs. Henry Gibbons, Mrs. George E. Kumpe, Mrs. Alice K. McDonough, Mrs. Paul English, Mrs. R. L. Randall, Mrs. Arthur J. Wehr, Mrs. Edwin J. O'Hara, Mrs. C. C. Carter, Mrs. Harry Bishop, Mrs. Thomas North, Mrs. J. E. McInerney, Mrs. A. D. Hopping, Mrs. A. A. de Lorimer, Mrs. E. A. Williams, Mrs. J. L. Collins and Mrs. E. M. Brannon.

Several small diplomatic parties featured the social calendar yesterday. The Crown Princess Marthe of Norway was honored at a dinner given by the Danish Minister and Mme. de Kauffmann at the legation on Massachusetts Avenue. The party was small, as the Princess wants to lead a very quiet life since settling in the Merle Thorpe house near Bethesda.

National officers of the English Speaking Union, who came here for the big dinner last night at the Willard, were among the guests at the informal tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the South African Minister.

During the winter Mrs. Close is following the pleasant practice of asking friends to drop in for a cup of tea on occasional Friday afternoons. The legation on Massachusetts Avenue is a perfect setting for a party. Two large living rooms open into one another, and the dining room is a spacious one.

Minister Assisted In Receiving

Yesterday bright fires crackled on the hearths, and many of the guests chose a comfortable sofa nearby to sit and chat. On either side of one fireplace were tall bronze vases filled with clusters of russet chrysanthemums. Smaller bowls of white mums were placed on the tables. The buffet was centered with pale lavender asters.

The Minister assisted his wife in receiving, and there were as many men as women at the party. Mrs. Close wore a street-length black frock of simple design with gold braid trimming the shoulders and bodice.

Mrs. Willem Naude, wife of the legation attache, was here, there and everywhere seeing that the guests had a good time. Robert Webster, secretary, was also assisting.

Mrs. Close showed friends a new photograph of her daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Mann, which she had just received from England. Mrs. Mann is there to be near her husband, who is in the Navy.

Mrs. Pott Among Those Calling

Tea, coffee, and such delicacies as paper thin sandwiches and tiny hot biscuits filled with ham were served during the afternoon. Among those who called was Mrs. Pott, wife of the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, who had with her Miss Ruth Ogden, a guest from New York. Mrs. Pott was in navy blue with a small turban trimmed in pink.

Mrs. Bruce Wallace, secretary of the English Speaking Union, introduced delegates here for the dinner. Ralph Totten, former United States Minister to South Africa, paused on his way into the dining room to chat with Mrs. Naude.

Debs Honored At Luncheon

Miss Phyllis Walke Richardson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dawson Richardson, of Fairfax, Va., entertained at a luncheon yesterday at Hotel 2400. Her guests included many debutantes of the season, among them Miss Mary McIntire Betts, Miss Laura Blair, Miss Katherine Claude, Miss Audrey Cowan, Miss Elaine Darlington, Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant Fish, and Miss Alice Ingersoll.

Still others there from the debutante set were Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, Miss Margaret Lansdowne, Miss Mary Lee, Miss Mary Lane Macatee, Miss Florence Magruder, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson and Miss Priscilla Watson.

Miss Richardson will make her formal bow to society at a ball to be given December 30 in Willard Hall, Fairfax.

Sulgrave Club Scene of Gay Supper Dance

Mme. Espil Gives Dinner at Embassy For Her Daughter

Mrs. Randall Hagner, who spent the day at her new home in Maryland, drove back again in time to entertain at dinner before the dance. The party took place at her home on S Street.

Dr. and Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, gave a buffet supper at their home in Georgetown in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schoettle, who are spending the week-end with them. Also host before the dance was Lieut. Victor Sutro, who entertained at his home on P Street for Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. William T. Mann, Miss Betty Beale, Miss Jean Conrad, Miss Nancy Woodward, Kenneth Peters, Frederick Nichols and Malcolm Burke.

Others seen whirling about the floor of the Sulgrave ballroom included Miss Nancy Leiter, Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCammon, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gray Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beach and many more.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope will entertain at a luncheon today in honor of Miss Therese Bonney, who is holding an exhibit of war photographs at the Library of Congress. Miss Bonney was the only woman photographer at the front during the Finnish-Soviet war.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenneth Jenkins have returned from their Bermuda honeymoon and are staying with her uncle, Edward Gardner, at his home before moving into their residence on Dent Place. Mrs. Jenkins is the former Miss Mary Louise Marsh.

Mrs. Mae Hamilton has cards out for the first in a series of small teas she has planned for this season. The party will take place on Tuesday, November 26, in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue.

Miss Patricia Uline Hill has cards out for a tea at the Sulgrave Club on Friday, November 22. Guests of honor will be the Misses Marion and Mary Theresa Norris, debutante daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris.

Mrs. John H. Powers will entertain at luncheon today at the Silver Bowl, followed by two tables of bridge.

Kauffmans Take Apartment Here

Capt. and Mrs. James Lawrence Kauffman, who have been spending the last two months in Annapolis, have taken an apartment at 2310 Connecticut avenue. They will occupy it on Friday.

Their debutante daughter, Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, will be honor guest at a dinner to be given next Monday by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter Woodson. Later the group will attend the Black and White Ball at the Mayflower.

Infant Mortality Rate Discussed by Council

B Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Lay education and personnel are more important than equipment in reducing the mortality rate among premature infants and nurses are more important than pediatricians, it was decided yesterday at the annual meeting of the Council for Mothers and Babies, held at the Washington Hotel. Mrs. Elwood Street, retiring chairman of the council, presided.

It was the first time such a session had ever been devoted to the problem of reducing the death rate among premature babies. One suggestion was that public spirited citizens be encouraged to "endow a nurse instead of a bed" in a hospital. There is great need for nurses to instruct mothers in the care of infants after they leave the hospital, or when the infants are born at home, it was pointed out. There is little advantage in providing incubators, if the mother does not know how to give the child proper care.

Mrs. Howard Armstrong, mother of Joyce, Jean and Julianne, sturdy 4-year-old Washington triplets, each of whom weighed just over 3 pounds at birth, told how she cared for them.

She wore a mask and gown and followed a nurse's rigid routine for two months in caring for them after they were taken home, she said. Her greatest problem was not the babies but the stream of people who wanted to see them, strangers as well as friends and acquaintances, she added.

Need for proper nutritions and for the good health of both parents to insure the health of the child were emphasized in the discussions. It was generally agreed that the premature child had an equal chance with others after the early years.

Dr. George F. McCleary, chairman of the National Council for Maternity and Child Welfare in London, addressed the council at the luncheon following the morning session. He helped draft regulations for the evacuation from cities of children under school age—one phase of war precaution for which England was well prepared, he said.

Dr. McCleary told of one woman who had billeted in her large country house, an entire primary school of 30 with their teachers and was delighted with the children. The evacuees from Gibraltar have also had to be cared for in England, he said.

Never in history has there been such mixing of social classes and such a national unity as there is today in England, he asserted.

He told of the maternal and child welfare services which have been carried on there since the last World War, with the assistance of funds from the Carnegie Corporation. There is a health insurance law, also, providing for a maternity grant of £2 to a mother if her husband is insured and an additional £2 if she too is insured.

Among other speakers were Dr. Fred L. Adair, of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the Chicago Lying-In Hospital; Dr. A. L. Carson, director of maternal and child health for the Virginia Health Department; Miss Hazel Corbin, of the New York Maternal Health Center; Dr. Paul D. Clark, who holds the same position in Vermont; Dr. Ethel C. Dunham, a pioneeri n the work of saving premature babies, who told of new-type incubators; Miss Elizabeth Christman, of the Women's Trade Union League; Dr. Lillian Smith, of the Michigan Health Department; Dr. Dorothy B. Ferbee, of Howard University.

Dr. John H. Mason Knox, jr., of Baltimore, director of maternal and child health for Maryland, was elected chairman of the council; Prof. Ernest W. Burgess, of the University of Chicago, vice chairman; Mrs. Nathan Straus, secretary; Miss Hazel Corbin, of New York, treasurer. Mrs. Gordon Waganet is executive secretary.

20th Century Club Holds Membership Fete; 300 Present

About 300 members of the Twentieth Century Club gathered at the Washington Club yesterday for the reception for the membership. The officers received in the drawing room of the clubhouse, headed by Mrs. Lawrence Martin, the president. Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke and Mrs. James C. Robertson made the introductions.

The club relations committee, of which Mrs. Sidney H. Thompson is chairman, was in charge of the arrangements. The past presidents who alternated at the tea tables decorated in fall flowers were Mrs. Renest P. Bicknell, Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Mrs. Frederic E. Farrington, Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. William Walter Husband, Mrs. Elwood P. Morey, Mrs. James K. McClintock and Mrs. Edward G. Montgomery. New members were present with their sponsors.

A description of assembling 96,000 gas masks between 2:30 one afternoon and daylight the next morning was given members of the American Women's Voluntary Services and their guests yesterday by Mrs. Arthur Turner, an instructor in the New York headquarters.

Mrs. Turner, who is American-born but spent 20 years in England, said she had offered her services for defense. At 2:30 one day she was called. By 6 p. m. a canteen and first aid station had been set up and 500 volunteers were working. By sunrise, 96,000 masks were ready.

The A. W. V. S. is designed to train American women for similiar service in case of any emergency, she said.

Mrs. Turner came to the United States, bringing the group of children being cared for by Marshall Field. She remained to help organize the A. W. V. S. which follows the British plan. It will be a permanent peace-time organization, Mrs. Robert O. Lord, the local chairman, said.

Sir Willmott Lewis also was a guest and spoke, commending the women's work in England and here. A picture showing the work in England was shown. About 100 attended.

Pedestrian Control Laws Advocated

Traffic Conference Urges Legislation To Curb Accidents

Describing pedestrian accident prevention as the country's most important traffic safety activity, the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators yesterday adopted plans to seek Nation-wide pedestrian control laws.

They concluded a two-day convention at the Hotel Willard.

It was the first time the administrators have actively entered the pedestrian protection picture and the report of a special committee was unanimously accepted. The report read in part:

"We urge all motor vehicle administrators to take the lead in promoting a program of pedestrian protection with due consideration to advocating legislation requiring pedestrians to walk in such a manner as to prevent accidents—particularly at locations controlled by lights or police officers."

The group suggested a widespread educational program among governmental agencies, private organizations, churches and schools as a means of reducing pedestrian casualties

But pedestrians, the report pointed out, cannot be expected to carry the full burden of responsibility. Motorists, too, must cooperate in observing right of way regulations, it said.

In Washington, according to an address by Assistant Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge, motorists have failed in this necessary cooperation. He cited rapidly increasing instances where accidents have been caused by failure of drivers to yield the right of way to pedestrians at both controlled and uncontrolled intersections.

Motorists Blamed

From 1931 to 1939, Eldridge said, pedestrian deaths in Washington constituted from 63.5 to 76.3 per cent of all accident facilities. In 67 per cent of these fatal accidents, he added, the pedestrian was found at fault. Motorists were blamed in a large percentage of cases where pedestrians were injured, but not killed.

Before concluding their sessions with a banquet last night, the administrators elected the following officers:

Policeman Halts Traffic Experts

There was much discussion of pedestrian control regulations at yesterday's meeting of the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators in the Willard Hotel.

At the noon recess, Frederick Robie, president of the conference, and A. W. Bohlen, president of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, stepped out for a breath of air.

The incident was witnessed by several delegates to the convention. Robie and Bohlen failed to turn up for the afternoon meeting.

District Attorney Arthur B. Caldwell presented a score of witnesses who described Nestlerode's wild ride. The testimony showed that he crossed a red light, Twelfth and H Streets Northeast and ran down Mrs. Mitchell, injuring her fatally.

Without stopping, the witnesses said, Nestlerode speeded up and fled, pursued by two witnesses in another car. Weaving through the traffic at 65 miles an hour, trying to shake off his pursuers, Nestlerode struck Nappo and killed him almost instantly.

Nestlerode hit six other cars and a streetcar as he fled but did not stop until the last collision ripped the wheels off his automobile. He then fled on foot but was caught by Policeman Gordan W. Rowand, of the Third Precinct.

Corporal Held in Auto Death

Doyl H. Moore, 21-year-old lance corporal attached to Langley Field, Va., was held for the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury in the traffic death of Gloster Roberts, 58, of 4428 Farraday Place Northwest.

The jury deliberated 20 minutes before holding the soldier, who was charged with reckless driving.

Policeman John F. Ryan, of the accident prevention unit, testified that Roberts was struck at Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest last Saturday while crossing Wisconsin Avenue in the crosswalk.

Moore drove to the left of a north-bound streetcar which had stopped at the intersection to allow Roberts to alight. The pedestrian, Ryan stated, crossed in front of the streetcar and was knocked down by the automobile, which was on the wrong side of the street.

Roberts was hurled 60 feet from the point of impact, the policeman declared. He added that the injured man lay unconscious for 30 minutes before an ambulance arrived.

At this point, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, interrupted and asked the witness if he knew when an ambulance was called and why it did not respond.

Ryan said the police dispatcher broadcast for an Emergency Hospital ambulance at 4:22 p. m., five minutes after the accident. He added that at 4:50 p. m. a private ambulance arrived to take Roberts to the hospital.

"That was an ambulance from Sardo Co., was it not?" Dr. MacDonald asked.

When Ryan answered, "yes," the coroner said:

"Can you tell me why an ambulance was called from Fourth and H Streets Northeast to go all the way to Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest, in a case like this?"

The policeman said that an investigation after the accident showed that Emergency Hospital's ambulance was in service when called by the police radio station and that Sardo's ambulance was dispatched by the Central Admitting Bureau.

Shoppers Hear Miss Taylor

Miss Mary Taylor, editor of the Consumers' Guide, told the League of Women Shoppers yesterday that, as a consumers' group, it should work in connection with the defense program to keep consumer standards up.

The league met in Silver Spring at the home of Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Associate Justice Douglas, of the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, president of the group, outlined the program for the year which will include a study of housing, with several field trips by the living standards committee; a survey of conditions among household employes and an effort to encourage the standardizing of goods so the consumer will know the quality of articles he buys.

Mothers Inspect Vocational Home

Members of the department of government and education of the League of Women Voters and of the mothers' class of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday made a field trip to Chamberlain Vocational Home. Mrs. Benjamin R. Woods, leader of the mothers' class and who also is active in the education department of the league, led the group.

The 18 women in the party were conducted through the school by C. D. Reed, the principal. They had lunch in the tea room of the school prepared by the students of home economics. These included both boys and girls, the former being trained as chefs and bakers and the girls acting as waitresses.

The school's goal, Mr. Reed explained, is to train young people for jobs and their course is not completed until they are prepared to do practical work.

Newcomb Club Hears FBI Aide

There is an undeclared war on the United States so far as some totalitarian governments are concerned, Lee Pennington, jr., of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, told members of the Newcomb Club of Bethesda yesterday.

Addressing the club's November luncheon at the Kenesaw Apartments, he told of the work of the Government agents in the inspection of plants which have Government contracts, guarding docks and wharfs and eliminating hazards. Many catastrophes have been prevented, he said, through the alertness of the FBI and the cooperation of citizens who have reported to the bureau.

The FBI, he said, has handled as many as 2,800 calls in a day. Efforts of citizens to investigate on their own are dangerous and hamper effective work of officials, he added.

Millions of dollars are being poured into organizations in this country by the Nazi and Communist governments, said Mr. Pennington, in an effort to divide it into racial, religious and other antagonistic groups. Local troubles, no matter how minor in themselves, may indicate a general plan.

Mrs. William Ross Dellett, president of the club, presided.

A. S. Beck Social Club Hold Dance Tomorrow

The A. S. Beck Social Club will have its annual dinner and dance at the Casino Paree tomorrow at 8 p. m.

About 60 members of the club and their guests are expected to attend, including Mr. R. A. Des Roches, Dr. and Mrs. Leon Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Mendelson. Edward F. De Wolfe is president.

THE LEAGUE OF COAST GUARD WOMEN will open its annual meeting today at the Shoreham Hotel with Mrs. Russell R. Waesche, wife of Admiral Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard, presiding. Mrs. Waesche is chairman of the board of directors and Mrs. William H. Shea of the Washington Unit.

Delegates from various units in Eastern States arrived yesterday and attended the dinner given in their honor last night at the Shoreham.

A luncheon will follow the business meeting today and will be addressed by Admiral Waesche. The organization is celebrating the 16th anniversary of its founding.

DANCE TONIGHT—The Washington Unit of Junior Hadassah will have its annual formal dance for its membership and their escorts tonight at the Woodmont Country Club.

Ruth Morgenstein, vice-president of the junior group and membership chairman, is in charge of arrangements. Assisting her are Cynthia Michaelson, Selma Simon and Maxine Friedman.

Guests of honor at a tea to be given by the Home Economics Association this afternoon, will be Miss Gladys A. Branegan, national president, and Miss Edna Van Horn, executive secretary. The tea will be from 4 to 6 o'clock at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Branegan is here for the meeting of the executive council of that association. She is from Montana State College, at Bozeman, where she has been dean of the division of household and industrial arts for the past ten years.

Miss Van Horn came here from Oregon State College in Corvallis.

MEMORIAL SERVICE — The National Mothers Memory Club on Thursday conducted a memorial service for the late Mrs. Hilda Ganard who was a first vice-president of the club, placing an inscribed plate in her honor at the Home for Aged Women, 1255 Wisconsin avenue.

Mrs. John Morrison Kerr was chairman of the committee which arranged the service.

The club was formed some years ago by a group of women who, in memory of their own mothers, desired to take the interest daughters would in residents of the home and other aged women.

Business 'in Stride' For Defense Rush

Volume Will Not Test U. S. Capacity, Says O'Leary

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Businessmen in Virginia and neighboring States attending a United States Chamber of Commerce regional business conference at Hotel Roanoke today heard a series of talks on the relationship of industry to national defense.

"Our principal hope for increased revenues is that we shall have largely increased incomes subject to tax," Henry B. Fernald, New York accountant and a member of the Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Federal Finance, said.

"For this," he declared, "we must remove tax or other deterrents to business progress and incentive. We must not pile up regulations, difficulties, doubts and uncertainties, which will scare men from new ventures or waste their time and energy which should go to the business itself."

Other speakers during the day included Dr. Malcolm McDermott, professor of law, Duke University; John W. O'Leary, of Washington, chairman of the United States Chamber of Commerce executive committee; Joyce O'Hara, one of its national representatives; and Hudson Huffard, of Bluefield, W. Va., a member of the Consultation Committee on Retailing, Consumer Division, National Defense Commission.

James S. Kemper, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Clem D. Johnston, Roanoke, a vice president, spoke at a banquet tonight.

Business is prepared to take defense orders "in our stride" O'Leary said at the opening session of the conference today.

"The volume of defense production at present in sight will not test the country's general industrial capacity," the chamber official told approximately 100 businessmen from five States. "It adds less than 10 per cent to the output of $60,000,000,000 in manufactures as measured by the census in the recent year of 1937.

"A large part of the volume calling on the metal-producing and working branches of industry can raise the $22,000,000,000 of 1937 output of those branches by less than 14 per cent."

O'Leary pointed out that the Nation is committed to a policy of defense, "quite a different thing" from any declared intention of going to war. That, he continued, "means we are going to continue as best we can, our normal activities, in ways to which we are accustomed."

U. S. Fines 29 For Defense Price-Fixing

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 14.—Fines totaling $74,000 were imposed on 29 corporate and individual defendants for alleged price-fixing in optical instrument and airplane fabric lines today after they pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) in Federal court.

The defendants were indicted in the Government's widespread investigation into alleged antitrust law violations by industries involved in the national defense program.

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum imposed the fines upon the recommendation of Samuel S. Isseks, special assistant to the Attorney General.

The indictments accused the optical concerns and the individuals of conspiracy to fix prices on eyeglass lenses and to fix uniform prices for the sale by optical wholesalers of individually ground lenses.

In the airplane fabric cases, the defendants were charged with price-fixing conspiracies in material which was "absolutely necessary in the construction of certain types of aircraft," although the cost of the material was extremely small in proportion to the cost of the finished airplane.

The following fines were assessed in the optical instrument cases:

The American Optical Co., of Southbridge, Mass., as a corporation, and its executives, Charles O. Cozzens, of Southbridge, and Charles N. Selden, of New York City, $5,000 each, and the companys' subsidiary of the same name, also of Southbridge, $3,500.

The Colonial Optical Co., Inc., of New York, and its president, Thomas J. Byrne, of Brooklyn, $5,000 each, and its secretary, Louis W. Jaeger, of Larchmont, N. Y., $1,000.

McIntire, Magee & Brown Co., of Philadelphia, and its president, Samuel A. Klein, of Elkins Park, Pa., $5,000 each.

Hilbert Optical Co., of Baltimore, $3,000.

Optical Wholesalers National Association, Inc., a Delaware corporation with New York City offices, $1,000; its president, Simon Edelstein, of Rochester, N. Y., and Roy Martin, of Horseheads, N. Y., treasurer, $2,000 each; William B. Jones, of Rochester, director, $1,500, and Guy A. Henry, of New York, secretary-manager, $1,000, whose fine was suspended.

Optical Wholesalers Association of New York, whose fine was suspended, and Arthur Frank, its president, $1,000 each.

Philadelphia Association of Wholesale Opticians, whose fine was suspended, $1,000.

Charles J. Brauch, of Rochester, chairman and secretary of a group of wholesalers known collectively as the Optical Wholesalers of Northern New York, $1,000.

In the airplane fabrics cases, the following fines were assessed:

Air Associates, Inc., of Garden City, N. Y., $2,500.

Wellington-Sears Co., of New York City, $5,000; its vice president, Weston Howland, of Milton, Mass., and its department managers, W. O. Hay, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Howard W. Brisham, of New York City, $1,000 each.

Suncook Mills, of Massachusetts, with offices at Suncook, N. H., and New York City, $5,000, and two of its executives, J. Linzee Weld, of Needham, Mass., and Val Dietz, jr., of Yonkers, N. Y., $1,000 each.

Thurston Cutting Corporation, of New York City, $5,000, and its president, W. Harris Thurston, of Greenwich, Conn., $1,000.

Hunting Licenses Issued to 3,700

Approximately 3,700 hunting licenses have been issued by the clerk of the Circuit Court at Rockville. Of these, about 3,100 were to residents of Montgomery County to hunt in the county only, 600 to residents of the county to hunt anywhere in the State, and the others to non-residents of the county for State-wide hunting.

Before the hunting season, which began Friday to continue through December 31, is very far advanced, probably 1,500 more permits will be issued, it was estimated by the license clerk, Robert A. Hughes. When the rush was at its height during the week, several clerks were kept busy issuing licenses.

Dies Group Plans 'White Paper' On Axis Diplomats

By the Associated Press

The Dies Committee, it was learned yesterday, has in preparation a "white paper," setting forth the material developed by its investigation of German and Italian consular officials in the United States.

The committee will meet here Monday to decide whether to issue the "white paper" instead of holding a series of hearings which would cover the same ground.

The results of the investigations have been kept secret thus far lest publication of the information impose any further strain on this country's diplomatic relations with Germany and Italy, Chairman Dies (Democrat), Texas, said.

Regardless of what decision may be reached Monday, informed persons said that the Dies findings would form a major part of the committee's third annual report to Congress. The committee's authority expires officially in January unless renewed. The House appropriated $110,000 for the present year and Dies said that $5,000,000 would be needed next year if the investigation was to be carried forward "as it should be."

Navy Office A Big Worry For Planners

Lack of Housing Predicted When Building Is Completed

Impending construction of a huge office building, housing 5,000 employes of the Navy Department, in nearby Arlington County has the National Capital Park and Planning Commission worried.

John Nolen, jr., the commission's city planner, reported at the monthly meeting yesterday that an intensive study is being made of the building's possible influence on housing in the community.

The structure, made necessary by the national defense program, is to be erected soon near Arlington Ridge Road and Columbia Pike, close to Arlington Cemetery. It will be the first Federal office building attached to Washington headquarters ever built outside the District.

Half-Hearted Approval

When the Public Buildings Administration, Federal Works Agency, proposed the location it was not approved by the planning body. Since the latter, however, does not have a veto power in cases like this, the site was adopted anyway, the Planning Commission subsequently giving a half-hearted approval.

Studies now being made under direction of Dr. Warren S. Thompson, nationally known authority on population trends, indicate that the new Navy building will invite many housing complications, Nolen said.

Arlington County, essentially a residential community, cannot easily digest the large percentage—perhaps the majority—of the 5,000 employes who will wish to live near their work, the commission was told.

Dwellings in the community are principally of the bungalow type and a serious shortage of rooming and boarding houses will face the unmarried employes seeking board and housing accommodations, Nolen pointed out.

What can be done about it? Nolen said he does not know the answer.

Approve Parkway Site

Concluding its monthly meeting, the Planning Commission approved another land purchase for the George Washington Memorial Parkway; approved a rezoning application on the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in Alexandria, and voted favorably on a recommended site for a new District junior high school and recreation center.

The parkway link which was ordered purchased for $7,000 is in Unit No. 2, on the Virginia side of the Potomac above Key Bridge.

Action on the rezoning application permits the construction of several storerooms near the intersection of Franklin and Washington Streets in Alexandria. Washington Street coincides with the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in the town.

Exact location of the new school and recreation center sites was not disclosed. They will be in the vicinity of Massachusetts Avenue and Macomb Streets Northwest.

'Dream Child' Materializes, A Foundling

Fourteen-year-old Ruth Benjamin, of 3616 Rock Creek Church Road, had a dream Thursday night.

"I dreamed there was a baby on our doorstep," she jubilantly told her parents when she awoke yesterday morning.

Last night Ruth's father, Joseph Benjamin, answered a knock at the front door. And there was a baby—a boy, about 2 years old, with blond hair, brown eyes, clad in overalls. He was barefooted.

Coleman Butt, a friend of the Benjamins, who appeared with the boy, said he found the child on the sidewalk nearby.

"I thought I'd better get him out of the cold," said Butt.

Benjamin notified police and learned to his surprise there had been no "lost boy" reports. Police notified the Receiving Home, and attendants were reported on their way to pick up the child.

At this prospect the Benjamin family was not pleased. Ruth, who said she heard the baby say something that sounded like "Ernie," said, "My dream's come true."

Materialism Doomed, Says Sir Willmott

War Burning Away Worship of Private Property, He Observes

Declaring that "Our time has been one of spiritual decadence," Sir Wilmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the Times, of London, told a dinner gathering of the English-Speaking Union last night that "Now if ever is the time when there should be burned away all the idolatry and hypocrisy of materialism."

He addressed nearly 300 persons at a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel which marked the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the union in this country. Sir Evelyn Wrench, founder of the organization, was the guest of honor.

Speaking on behalf of his fellow Englishmen, Sir Wilmott declared, "We have learned a great deal: We know this is a world in which realities press—life and death, good and evil. We know that good must be no less tough in fiber than evil. We have found that sacrifice is the true social virtue.

"We have found that it is not private property but public ends that make a people, just as no nation can be stronger than the spirit of its great working classes."

Sir Willmott praised the "heart and instinct of the American people." The administration of individual rights in the recent Presidential election he termed a "barrier to fascism."

Of Britain's present struggle he said, "The mainstay of the defense are the incomparable youth of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, wing to wing with the English, the Scots and the Welsh, and with an American squadron whose volunteers have become a part of the Royal Air Force."

"The absolute concentration of every individual" is the only means of defeating totalitarianism, Sir Evelyn Wrench told the audience. He emphasized the existing unity among the English-speaking peoples.

"This is not just a war against Hitler and Mussolini," he declared. "It is a real testing time . . . England in the future will have no more evils."

Dr. James Rowland Angell, former President of Yale and national president of the English-speaking unit, presided. Archduke Otto of Austria was among those attending.

Guests of honor at the speaker's table, besides Sir Evelyn and Lady Wrench and Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis, included:

Neville Butler, Charge d'Affaires of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Butler; Mr. and Mrs. Alonson B. Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. Lanngdon Marvin, Mrs. Louis Slade, Mrs. Samuel Seabury, Frank S. Coan, Charles Marburg, jr., Mrs. Charles Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hecht, Benjamin Hoffman, Mrs. Frederick Campbell, Dr. and Mrs. A. K. Potter, Gen. and Mrs. Cartney Little and Capt. and Mrs. W. W. F. Baylis.

Canadian Air Head Tells of England

Britain's precautions are complete and her people "literally pray for invasion," Air Marshal William A. Bishop, of Canada, last night declared in a lecture before the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall.

The British at heart, "are the kindliest people in the world," Marshal Bishop said, "but today they are coldly resolute in their desire to get at close grips with the enemy himself. This long-distance war does not please them. They each and every one want their crack at the Hun."

Life in London, said the marshal, who recently returned from a flying trip to England, goes on almost as in normal times, despite the bombings. As an example of the matter-of-fact British attitude toward bombs, Bishop recalled seeing in a newspaper this official instruction:

"If your house goes, give the post-office your new address."

Doctors Examine First of 260 Facing Army Call From Here

Lines Form at 4 Hospitals to See If Registrants Will Shoulder Guns Or Be Rejected as Physically Unfit

"Burns . . . Shattuck . . . Monroe," a nurse called at Emergency Hospital last night.

Three men stepped forward and followed her along a corridor to a room marked "Eyes."

A line of 100 or more moved past a desk where another nurse wrote down their answers to questions preliminary to their own examinations — examinations that would stamp them as Class 1-A, the physical caliber required by the United States Army, or return them to civil life as unfit to bear arms.

At Providence, Garfield and Freedmen's Hospitals, others among the 260 who had volunteered for service or who held early order numbers were undergoing the same careful scrutiny of batteries of nine specialists.

It was the last stage in selective service before the induction of 51 of their number in the first Washington increment of the draft. Of those that passed the examinations last night 32 will join the colors November 27, 19 more on the 28th.

The prospect of being called for service brought little emotion from those who stood in the hospital lines. Most of them waited in silence, without expression; a few joked idly with doctors and nurses.

"Won't Do Any Harm"

The majority subscribed to the philosophy of one of the first to be examined John Campbell, 28, musician of Alban Towers Apartments:

"If I'm hooked? . . . well, okay," Campbell shrugged after hearing an oculist declare that his vision was 20-20 (perfect).

"I guess it won't do me any harm. I haven't been working lately, anyway."

"Dependents? Well, my wife will be all right. She has a job and can get along when I'm gone. It would have been different a couple of months ago. I was playing the drums out on the Coast, making $175 a week. Now, that $30 a month will look a whole lot better than nothing."

Ahead of Campbell in line was Marshall Clagett, 24, of 1954 Columbia Road Northwest, the first man to get the draft examiners' stamp of approval.

One Changes His Mind

A former honor student at George Washington, California Tech and Catholic Universities, Clagett had laid aside his books at Columbia University in New York City, where he had been working for a Ph.D. degree, to fulfill the final stage in the selective service routine.

The class 1-A man had registered here, but was notified of his early order number—the forty-third in Board Area No. 8—too late to take the examination in New York. He boarded a train in Manhattan yesterday morning in time to be examined last night.

Less anxious to face physicians was a youth who phoned Selective Service officials at Emergency that "I'm busy . . . don't think I can make it." He changed his mind when advised the maximum penalty for noncompliance with the draft is five years in jail and $10,000 fine.

Then, "Otherwise all right," the physician declared. "It looks like you may shoulder a gun, young man."

Law Degree Must Wait

"Well, that's all right," Burgess returned. "As a matter of fact, I kind of look forward to it. It'll get me in shape," he laughed.

"The law? Oh, well, I guess that will wait," and he passed on to another room, where a doctor listened carefully to a registrant's breathing through a stethoscope.

Meanwhile, Capt. R. M. Peak, U. S. A., acting recruiting officer for the District, was put in command of the induction center, Fifth Battalion Marine Reserve Headquarters, 458 Indiana Avenue Northwest, where the 51 District men will be sworn in November 27-28.

Other administrative officers at the center are to be Lieut. Robert B. Furman, acting quartermaster in charge of transportation, subsistence, and shelter for selectives, and Lieut. Frederick G. Rogers, assistant induction officer.

By 1941 between 150 and 200 men are expected to clear the induction station daily.

Ballou Sees A Shortage Of Teachers

A shortage of teachers such as that the District experienced in 1918 is expected to result eventually from the national defense program, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools last night told members of the Takoma Park Citizens Association.

Washington schools are now aiding in the local defense program by furnishing facilities for vocational training courses for key industries on a nearly-24-hours-a-day basis, Dr. Ballou added. No shortage of teachers has been felt yet, although that is expected after the selective service program gets well under way, he explained.

Members of the association resolved to petition the Public Utilities Commission and the Capital Transit Co. for extension of regular express bus service on the Fifth, Third, and Thirteenth Street lines to include Sundays and holidays.

Burt Andrews was appointed chairman of the organization's public utilities committee.

Va. Will Lose Gas Tax at New D. C. Airport

Airlines serving the National Capital stand to save about $3,000 a month while the State of Virginia loses an equal amount, when the Washington National Airport opens early next year.

Col. Sumpter Smith, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, disclosed that the gasoline pumps will be located on the District portion of the flying field, that is, on the aprons. Most of the concessions, however, will be on the Virginia side of the line, which runs directly through the airport.

The threatened loss of revenues from gasoline taxes was one of the principal reasons why Virginia officials recently opposed the Nichols amendment to the District-Virginia boundary bill, which is designed to settle a century-old jurisdictional dispute.

Because of the controversial character of the Nichols amendment, which is frowned upon by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and indorsed by the CAA, the boundary bill was referred to the House District Committee without recommendation by a subcommittee.

As Congress is expected to adjourn next week, the issue doubtless will go over to the Seventy-seventh Congress.

16th Street Heights Citizens Seek Better Transportation

Organized in 1917, when jackrabbits outnumbered residents of the upper Sixteenth Street Northwest sector, the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association has been concentrating ever since on improvement of transportation, school and church facilities in the area north of Walter Reed Hospital.

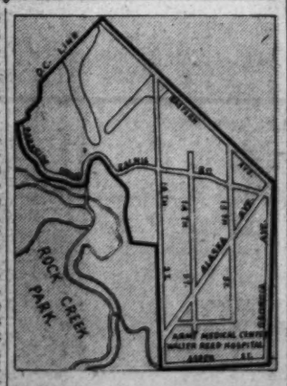
Probably unique in District citizens' activities has been the association's efforts to promote churches in its territory. It recently advanced funds for the erection of the Northminster Church at Alaska Avenue and Kalmia Road Northwest, and has cooperated in sponsoring church activities.

Highlighting its past accomplishments have been the citizens' association's successful efforts to have upper Sixteenth Street paved, bus service extended to the District Line, the Shepherd School built and the intersection of Georgia and Alaska Avenues rearranged, according to President Michael Cairns.

A primary interest of the body is to keep its area as it is now zoned, a class "A" restricted, single family residence section. It has opposed the erection of apartment houses and has been successful in having the number of liquor stores limited.

As in the past, the unit this fall will continue to advocate suffrage in the District, revision of the tax setup and will continue its fight for improved transportation, Secretary G. Mallet Prevost said yesterday.

Next meeting of the Sixteenth Street Heights citizens will be held in the Shepherd School, Fourteenth Street and Kalmia Road Northwest, Monday. The program will be devoted largely to the association's campaign for improved express bus service to and from its section, with invitations sent to more than 1,000 residents of the area.



Regular meetings usually are confined to business and discussions of community problems, and are held on the third Monday of each month.

Members of the association's standing committees, together with their chairmen, will be announced at Monday's meeting. Current officers include: Michael J. Cairnes, president; Harry C. Hensley, vice president; G. Mallet Prevost, secretary; Robert E. Barry, financial secretary, and Joseph H. Wilson, treasurer.

Executive committeemen are Oliver E. Sweet, Earle W. Sapp and J. Preston Swecker. Delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations are Mrs. H. M. Phillips and L. D. O'Flaherty.

42,000 Fans to See Hoyas Battle Eagles Today

DryGrid Seen For Struggle At Boston

Two Unbeaten Rivals Ready for Big Game; Bowl Bid Expected To Go to the Winner

By Jack Munhall
Post Staff Writer

Boston, Nov. 15.—The age-old physics theory of the irresistible force (alias Boston College) meeting with the immovable object (alias Georgetown) will be tested once again tomorrow at Fenway Park and unless at the first collision both parties dissolve into gaseous vapor, the Nation's undefeated football ranks should be bereft of still another championship contender.

Before a crowd of 42,000 fans in the bailiwick of the Red Sox, undefeated, untied Georgetown clashes with equally unsullied Boston College in what the experts call the game of the day, and in a battle that may ultimately decide the champion of the East and the identity of one of the Sugar Bowl participants on New Year's Day.

Assured tonight of a dry field and good footing by the ceasing of an almost steady rain since early last Tuesday morning, and the weatherman's welcome forecast of "cloudy and cooler tomorrow," both camps were predicting a close victory. Fenway Park has been snuggling under tarpaulin all week.

Promises to Be a Corker

In the eyes of most discreet observers tomorrow's duel of the second and third ranking teams of the Atlantic Seaboard will be one of the greatest games of the season, opposing as it does Boston College, the country's highest-scoring major eleven, and Georgetown, possessor of the best defensive record among the Nation's big-time teams.

But lest it seem that the game will be the prize-ring counterpart of slugger vs. boxer, it should be mentioned that the Georgetown Hoyas are no offensive weaklings themselves, and that the Boston College Eagles own a defensive record second only to Georgetown's.

So in every way this attraction stacks up as a No. 1 and likely to be decided by the breaks. Judging from past performances, both the Hoyas and Eagles are fast starters and it is quite probable that the team that gets away the quickest tomorrow will be the eventual victor. The home town eleven, with its dazzling backfield aray of Henry (The Hammer) Toczylowski, Maziniki, Charley O'Rourke and Walter Halovak, has rung up two touchdowns in the first quarter of every game it has started as a unit. Only against Boston University last week was Boston College restricted to less than its two-touchdown quota, and in that one the first-string backs did not operate together.

Hoyas Strike Early

Likewise Georgetown is wont to pile up a comfortable lead without wasted time or motion. In routing N. Y. U., Jack Hagerty's pets made a pair of scores in about three minutes, and in mangling a good Syracuse eleven, they tallied on their first scrimmage play of the game, and added a second six-pointer inside of six minutes.

So strikingly similar are the comparative records of the two Catholic powerhouses, which are renewing for the first time since 1933 a series begun in 1919—showing five victories for the Eagles, three for the Hoyas and one tie—that the betting here in Boston, even in Washington, is 5-6 and take your choice.

Each team has won seven straight games against about the same caliber of opposition, although the Eagles' feat of swamping Tulane, 27-7, in the Green Wave's own stronghold in the unaccustomed heat of New Orleans is deemed a more impressive accomplishment than any of the Hoyas'.

About Evenly Matched

Boston College has amassed 261 points, the highest single output being 60 against Idaho, and Georgetown has rolled up 241, including a top total of 66 against Roanoke. The Eagles meantime have limited their opponents to 27 points—20 of them by Temple—while Georgetown has given 22, or five less. Certainly there is little to choose between these statistical records. Temple, a common foe, was beaten, 14-0, by G. U., and 33-20 by B. C.

Individual stars will be as numerous as the heaven's sattelites tomorrow, the most prominent, perhaps, being B. C.'s O'Rourke, Toczylowski, Goodreault, Kerr and Gladchuk, and G. U.'s Lio, Blozis, Koshlap, Kopcik, Ghecas and Doolan. All are being mentioned in authoritative quarters as of All-America potentialities, and their performances tomorrow before an audience including many of the Nation's leading football experts may make or break them.

With a dry field guaranteed, unless the weather man is spoofing, offensive fireworks should really crackle with such explosion makers as O'Rourke and Koshlap, the passers, and Mazinicki, Doolan, Ghecas and others on both sides to touch them off.

Although the rival lines are unquestionably of the Nation's finest—both averaging more than 205 pounds a man and three deep in every position—chances are it will be a high-scoring affair. There seems to be too many backs around for all to be shackled.

But if you are looking for trick bets, take the proper odds and wager that "Mush" Dubofsky's line, which has held previous opponents to an average of about 3 points per

Loser Wild After Fight Is Stopped

Near-Riot Follows Referee's Action; Champ Injured by Many Foul Blows

By Jack Cuddy.
United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 15.—In New York's most riotous ring brawl in years, Young Al Davis was disqualified for repeated fouling tonight in the second round of his scheduled ten-round nontitle bout with Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic.

When Referee Billy Cavanaugh pulled the gladiators apart, after beserk Davis had landed seven or eight palpably low blows, and motioned Davis to his corner, the Brooklyn blond became almost insane with rage at the disqualification.

He tore after pain-wracked Zivic, and despite the referee's warding arms, started to beat Zivic about the head and body—with Fritzie desperately trying to fight back. Zivic's manager, Luke Carney, rushed out of the corner and joined in the fray, and then two uniformed policemen leaped into the ring, as newspapers, magazines and peanut bags showered into the ring.

Fans Near Riot

It seemed for a moment that there would be a general riot at the ringside, but the disturbance was quelled quickly although the booing of the 15,000 angry spectators continued for more than ten minutes.

Chairman John J. Phelan, of the New York Boxing Commission, announced that Davis' purse will be held up until after a commission meeting Tuesday.

The disqualification came at 2:34 of the turbulent second round—a session in which Davis, Brooklyn's "bad boy" desperately was shooting the works after Zivic had given him a terrific beating in the first round.

In the opening session Zivic, of Pittsburgh—who wrested the 147-pound crown from Henry Armstrong on October 4—battered the floundering Davis about the ring and hit him so hard with a right to the chin that Davis half sank to the canvas, supporting himself on his gloves, with one knee also touching the canvas. Davis was up without a count.

Davis Warned Repeatedly

In the second round, Referee Cavanagh warned Davis at least four times that he would disqualify him if he continued fouling. But Blond Al just kept pegging away with his steaming left hook at the champion's groin. Again and again, Zivic was doubled up in agony. The fans were screaming, "Foul! Foul! Throw him out." and that's what Cavanagh finally did.

Davis' fouling was so flagrant that Bill Brown, member of the boxing commission, declared, "I can't talk about rules now because Davis threw them out of the window. We don't need Al Davis any more in New York.

Commissioner Brown was referring to the New York State rule which prevents a boxer from winning a fight on a foul. Of course this rule did not apply to tonight's bout because the perpetrator of the foul was disqualified.

Davis Faces Life Ban

Brown declared, "You can say for me that Davis will be barred from New York State for life, and I mean it."

Brown further explained the difference between the no-foul rule and the possibility of a boxer losing on a disqualification. He said, "our law prevents a man from winning a fight on a foul. That is, if he is struck so badly that he cannot continue, before the fouling opponent has been disqualified, the fouled man must lose on a technical knockout. Or for one foul, the perpetrator can lose a round. But when a boxer repeatedly fouls and is warned twice for so doing by the referee, he immediately becomes liable to disqualification at the discretion of the referee."

Farkas and Edwards To Miss Bear Game

Redskins Dealt Two Severe Blows As Important Battle Nears; Krause Also Out of Action at Stadium Tomorrow

Double trouble struck the Redskin camp yesterday as it developed (one) that Andy Farkas definitely will not play in the game with the Chicago Bears tomorrow at Griffith stadium, and (two) that Capt. Turk Edwards, 270-pound tackle, also will miss the game.

This turn of events may shove the Redskins down into the underdog's role in the wagering, for the Bears, with all their power intact, are going to be at top strength for the game, according to word from Chicago.

Farkas, who still feels a twinge of pain in the knee he had operated upon in September when he runs at full speed, will not be used unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

Andy May Don Uniform

The powerful little fullback may don his uniform and be on the Redskin bench for the first time this season, however.

If Coach Ray Flaherty decides to put Farkas on the active playing line, it'll mean the end of Edwards' playing career for the remainder of this season.

The big lineman, who showed a flash of his old form in Friday's workout at Griffith Stadium, aggravated his old leg injury in doing so. He is suffering from a torn muscle fiber in his left leg and only inactivity will give it chance to heal, Dr. Pete Moran, club physician, said after another check of Edwards' injury.

Krause to Miss Action

Another blow to Redskin stock Sunday was revealed last night when it was decided to withhold Max Krause, veteran blocking back, from the Bears game also.

Krause, whose blocking and defense work has been a potent factor in Redskin success all year, injured the ligaments and cartilage in his right knee two weeks ago and still is unable to make the top speed changes of direction necessary in a game. Like Farkas, he will be held out unless the Redskins get in a tight spot.

From the Bears' camp yesterday came the reports that George Musso, 270-pound right guard, and Bill Osmanski, 215-pound fullback, are back in uniform and ready to gallop here Sunday.

SecondHelping Finishes First In Bowie 'Cap

Pimlico Race Taken By Long Shot; Belair's Dusky Fox Is Second

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 15.—First money went to Second Helping, a 3-year-old daughter of Swift and Sure, and Featherweight, in the twenty-eighth running of the $10,000 added Bowie Handicap, closing day feature at this track. An invader from New England, Second Helping staggered home under punishment from Jockey Herb Lindberg's whip in going as tough as ever seen at this track. The filly won by three lengths over the Belair Stud's Dusky Fox, with Mrs. Marie Evans' favored Shot Put third and the same margin from second money.

The race was over the grueling route of one mile and five furlongs, and there was little life in any of the horses in the stretch run. Second Helping is owned by Connie Smythe, owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team, and she was helped by the modest weight assignment of 105 pounds. However, Jockey Lindberg made no mistakes with her, saving her real energy to get her to the front, and, although she was all out, so were the others.

Second Helping was an outsider in the betting and paid a $40.70 mutuel, while being clocked in 3:02, the slowest time since the stake has been at this distance. Owner Smythe collecs $10,200 for the victory.

True Call and Rollo were first to show in front as Starter Milton sent the field of nine on its way. Rollo drew out to a length and a half lead over her rival in the opening quarter, while Second Helping, Shot Put and Dusky Fox were being allowed to race easily. True Call finally made Rollo stop to get to

'Feeler' Sent Cornell Eleven By Rose Bowl

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 15.—An unofficial "feeler" has been dispatched to undefeated and untied Cornell University to determine whether it would be receptive to an official invitation to represent the East in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena, it was learned tonight.

The representative of the Pacific Coast Conference, elected by vote of the conference members at the conclusion of the regular season, is scheduled to do the actual inviting of its foe.

But with Stanford's undefeated and untied team apparently galloping into the Tournament of Roses epic, a movement has been started in Pasadena, it was learned, to pave the way for the first "Ivy Bowl since Harvard beat Oregon, 7-6, in 1920.

Following a couple of telephone conversations to prominent Cornell officials and alumni, an "unofficial ambassador" of the Tournament of Roses committee left today for the East to conduct a first-hand attempt to campaign Cornell into a receptive mood to come West.

Last year Cornell was likewise undefeated and untied but after its final game issued a flat statement that it was not available for any Bowl bids.

With two tough games against Oregeon State tomorrow and against California on November 30 coming up, Stanford officials have gone on record as refusing to discuss Rose Bowl possibilities.

Penn Revises Its Line-up For Army

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Nov. 15.—A revised Pennsylvania line-up will face Army tomorrow in the first football contest between the two institutions in more than a quarter of a century.

Tony Chizmadia, veteran fullback, will get his first starting assignment in almost two years as the replacement for Ed Allen. Bob Hunt will supplant Al Brecha at right guard, Jim Chandler replaces Gene Davis at quarterback and Jack Cohen starts at left tackle in place of Cliff Engler. Jack Welsh, fleet 147-pound sophomore, will start at right halfback in place of John Dutcher, who broke a bone in his left foot during scrimmage Tuesday.

A battalion of 500 cadets, all athletes representing the Academy in 17 sports, will be among the expected crowd of 50,000. Penn, boasting four victories and a tie against only one defeat, rules a heavy favorite over the Cadets, whose record shows one victory, one tie and four defeats.

G. U. Physician Says Save Illness Until After Game

"It would be greatly appreciated if anyone anticipating a broken leg or a sudden illness would delay the attack until after the Boston College-Georgetown game Saturday."

So a "physician of Georgetown Hospital" told The Post yesterday. He wouldn't divulge his name, but his spirit was unmistakable.

"And if Boston College wins, it would be better if anyone who is sick doesn't come to the hospital at all," the voice on the wire concluded, "as we will be sick."

Four Teams Pace Six-Day Bike Race

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Four teams continued to pace the forty-third international six-day bike race at the stadium at 9 o'clock (C. S. T.) tonight. The competition concludes at midnight tomorrow.

Cecil Yates, Chicago, and Torchy Peden, Victorian, B. C., were the technical leaders on a point basis, but were tied in mileage with three other teams.

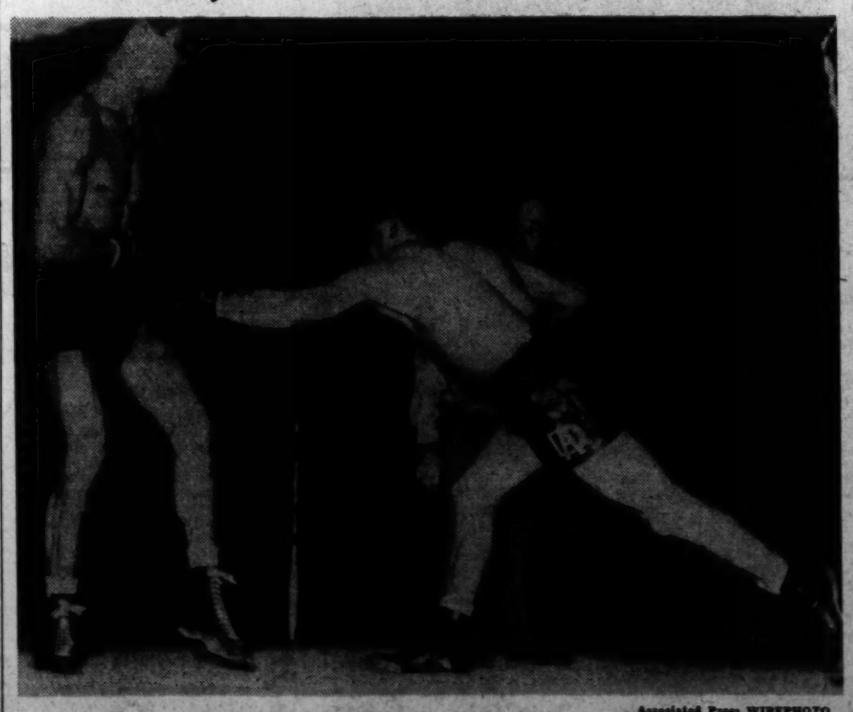
'Bummy' Davis Didn't Aim to Please Here



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—We dislike to introduce a crass note at the moment when college football is about to unfold itself in such a glorious blooming as the Georgetown-Boston College game; but figures with dollar signs have always intrigued us. There'll be a little matter of $80,000 teetering in the balance tomorrow afternoon when the inspired young men of Georgetown and B. C. take the field for glory of alma mater. They'll get none of it, but their institutions will have more than a rooting interest in the result. Victory will be sweet.

POVICH

It's the heavy sugar that Sugar Bowl officials are ready to deliver to the Eastern team that is invited to the New Year's Day game, and the New Orleans sugar daddies will consider the loser of tomorrow's game as quite unsocial. The winner, however, is almost certain to be extended the formal invitation to meet with Tennessee in the New Orleans football spectacle on January 1.

The list of Eastern teams eligible and acceptable to the New Orleans sugar pappies has virtually narrowed down to Boston College and Georgetown. Cornell, the other major team in the East unbeaten and untied, has made it known that it feels slightly above post-season parties. And, as we were saying, the team that loses here tomorrow, won't be wanted at New Orleans. The winner, however, will barge right into favor with the Sugar Bowl people.

In its attempt to outstrip the Rose Bowl New Year's Day clash, the Sugar Bowl folks have been helped by none other than the people on the Coast. A newly announced division of the gate receipts of the Rose Bowl game will limit the "take" of the competing teams to $70,000 in contrast to guarantees as high as $120,000 in the past. New Orleans, with its increased seating capacity, can stir up as much as $80,000 for each competing college.

Staid old Boston is in something of a football dither as tomorrow's game approaches. Not since an unbeaten Harvard took the field against Yale nine years ago has the Hub been the football capital of the Nation, even for a day. The people are properly excited about what has suddenly shaped up as a dream game between unbeaten B. C. and unbeaten Georgetown.

Sports page columnists are warning their readers to stay away from Fenway Park unless they came into possession of tickets 10 days ago. It has been a sellout that long. They'll cram 40,000 fans into the Fenway for the occasion and Boston has not been party to such a tremendous betting event in decades.

Boston is a bit bewildered about it all, incidentally. In the year that Boston College has come up with a seemingly-unbeatable team, along comes an interloping Georgetown team that has a middlin' chance to beat 'em. At least the betting odds rate B. C. as no more than a 4-to-5 favorite, and when the bets are not posted with professional bookies they are being made on a friendly even-money basis.

The Eagles have engineered something of a transformation in Boston football fandom. For a half century, Harvard's teams were the big noise in college football in the Hub, with B. C. distinctly second rate. But with Harvard in eclipse, and B. C. in the ascendancy, it is strictly a Boston College town.

Up here they don't quite know what to make of this Georgetown team that is rated so highly. There was a tendency to minimize the Hoyas because of a seemingly weak schedule but all of a sudden G. U. has come to be regarded as a menace. The superlatives anent Georgetown have been pouring into Boston for the past two weeks from coaches whose teams were licked by the G. U. machine.

Not the least reason why Boston College is such a huge favorite with Boston folks is its debonair way of playing the game. It is a gambling team that reflects the football philosophy of Charley O'Rourke, the splinter of a lad who does most of the ball-handling and mixes up his kicking, running and passing at a pace that keeps even his own coaches worried.

Frank Leahy, the old Notre Damer and former assistant coach at Fordham, has the B. C. team in charge and has scrapped the old Gil Dobie conservatism. Dobie, according to his critics here, thought the forward pass was a mere passing fad, and dwelt purely on power. But Leahy gives O'Rourke almost carte blanche to throw the ball.

In the line, it will be a contest of fierce young giants. Al Blozis, Georgetown's tackle and shot put record holder, will fling his 240 pounds at the Boston forwards, but he won't be the biggest man on the field. Joe Yauckoes, the tackle who will be staring at him across the scrimmage line, will outweigh Blozis by nine pounds.

The impression is that neither Georgetown or B. C. has been tested to the peak of its power. It appears to be a battle between a slick-article B. C. team and a solid, heavily-fortified Georgetown club. We've strung along with what we think is the power—Georgetown.

Three Major Elevens Are on Spot Today

Minnesota, Stanford and Texas A. and M. Face Acid Tests; Hoyas And Eagles Hold Eastern Spotlight

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 15.—Minnesota, Stanford and Texas A. and M., whose football teams so ably met the challenges hurled at them a week ago, again will be on the spot tomorrow when they square off in conference battles against Purdue, Oregon State and Rice.

Together with Cornell, meeting an old Ivy League foe in Dartmouth, they each are two games away from a perfect season, in the homestretch where even the most momentary lapse may be costly. But inevitably, off their records, they have been made pronounced favorites.

Such is not the case in the Boston College-Georgetown and Michigan-Northwestern games, however.

This is the season's high spot for B. C. and the Hoyas. Both have been highly touted for their 200-pound lines and their able backs, and neither has been beaten or tied. Nor has either one been tested since early in the season. That's why a capacity crowd of 30,000 will be on hand at Boston to find out which of the two really deserves to be ranked with the best.

For Michigan and Northwestern there will be a two-fold stake. With 85,000 watching from the Ann Arbor stands these two, each beaten only by a Minnesota extra point, will fight it out for runner-up spot in the Western Conference and a chance to tie the Gophers for the lead if by any chance they should slip.

Outlook for Today

To get down to cases, here's how they look from this corner (home teams first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Boston College-Georgetown (39,500)—The lines look about even. Taking Boston College on backfield versatility, for we're told the Hoya passers can't run and the runners can't pass, which may simplify B. C.'s defensive task.

Michigan-Northwestern (85,000)—This vote for Northwestern also is based on the backfields—the fact that the Wildcats, to match Michigan's Harmon, can call on Decorrevont, Clawson, Habenstein, Soper and Chambers, all of them better than average.

Stanford-Oregon State (40,000—Next to last step into the Rose Bowl for Stanford.

Rice-Texas A. and M. (27,000)—Too much experience, power and poise on the Aggies' side.

Dartmouth-Cornell (12,000—The same applies to Cornell, only more.

Minnesota-Purdue (30,000)—Minnesota.

Princeton-Yale (50,000)—Princeton to make it three straight over the Elis for the first time in football's longest unbroken rivalry, de-

Eagles Open Ice Season With Victory

By a Staff Correspondent

Boston, Nov. 15.—Held scoreless for two periods and outplayed for most of those 40 minutes, the Washington Eagles suddenly came to life in the final session here tonight to open their Eastern amateur hockey league season with a 2-to-1 victory over the Boston Olympics, newcomer this year to the Eastern circuit.

Two sudden scoring thrusts, sandwiched between a brief but hectic fight which resulted in the temporary banishment of one player on each side—the thirteenth and fourteenth of 18 penalties meted out during the rough match—gave the Eagles a somewhat luck-tainted triumph over the former Provincial League club. The Olympics finished second last season in New England competition.

This was the second Eastern League match for the Beantowners, who surprised the Baltimore Orioles, 1940 Eastern League champions, with a 1-1 tie last week in its opener.

A pair of rookies, Centers Norm Burns and "Russ" Rosignol, scored the tying and winning goals for Washington which only sporadically flashed the smooth form that carried it into second place in the league last year. Burns' point was a spectacular play on which he stole the puck from Boston's Dan Sullivan in Washington territory and then on two nicely executed feints, got by Olympics defenseman Cliff Thompson and Goalie Polich. The score, coming at 8-14, nullified the game's first tally made at 8:25 of the second period by Bob Jeremiah.

Scarcely three minutes later, Rosignol, a recruit from the Canadian senior hockey ranks, dismayed the crowd of 12,000 rammed in a quickie which came so suddenly and so fast that even he probably did not realize what had happened. Rosignol, standing at about the Boston blue line with his back to the nets, took a pass from Mike Germann on his back hand and without even looking for direction whizzed it into the goal.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

George Washington University's patched-up eleven will strive to keep its record above the .500 mark today at Griffith Stadium against a down-trodden opponent from the Big Six Conference, the University of Kansas.

Kick-off in the next-to-last game on the G. W. schedule is at 2 p. m. A crowd of 7,000 is expected.

The Colonials haven't scored a touchdown since October 25, and needless to say haven't won a game since then, while the Kansans are without a victory since the Drake game, second on the Jayhawker schedule. G. W. played Bucknell to a scoreless tie last week.

With a dozen assorted injuries to regulars and reserves alike still a nightmare to him, Head Coach Bill Reinhart will send six Colonial sophomores into the starting lineup today, four juniors and a lone senior, Ken Batson.

Weather Hampers Drills

Both teams have been hampered by weather conditions in practice this week, the Kansans by a near zero-cold in the Midwest and G. W. by four days of continuous rain that stopped yesterday in time for a lengthy but muddy workout on the Polo Field.

The Jayhawks stopped in Martinsburg, W. Va., yesterday afternoon and went through the usual traveling signal drill on the high school field. The team arrived here at 8:30 and was quartered at the Willard Hotel.

Deane W. Malott, chancellor of Kansas University and an arden football fan, accompanied the team in its third visit to Washington since 1934, and will occupy a sideline box this afternoon.

For the favored Colonials Harry Ledford, a soph quarterback, will start in place of the injured Sam Babich, who will probably be missing for the entire game again today. The signal calling will be left to Batson, the only senior in the starting lineup who will take his place at left-half.

Siebert Starts at Center

Al Romasco will start at right-halfback in place of the dependable Murphy Booth, while Stanley Ziobro will start at guard in place of John Kokoski, Don Siebert at center instead of Mike Monchlovich, the kick-off artist, Ellis Hall at the other guard post for Henry Agusiewicz and Konizewski at tackle for Tony Barauskas.

Only at end is G. W. fortified in the usual manner, but even them Johnny Picco and Frank August are playing under a roll of tape.

Kansas boasts Chet Gibbens, a drop-kick specialist who is sure death for the point after touchdown or a field goal attempt but the Jayhawk offense has given Giddens few chances this season as touchdowns have been scarce.

Played Best Game

The visitors played their best game of the season last week, losing to Oklahoma only by two last-quarter touchdowns, and after being bothered by injuries they are rounding into full shape and appear to be rising to a new peak for the closing games on their schedule.

Jake Fry, Ed Hall, Don Pollom and Ed Suagee will start for the Kansans in the backfield.

The game is the fourth and last in the intersectional series, G. W. having won two out of three thus far.

The famous Kansas band was unable to make the trip but the G. W music makers will perform at the half.

Probable starting line-up:

G. W. U.	Position.	Kansas.
(34) August	L.E.	Ulrich (28)
(79) Konizewski	L.T.	Reiph (49)

Airport Confusion Discloses Marriage Of 'Chubby' Dean

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 15.—Lovill (Chubby) Dean, southpaw pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, was an hour late arriving at LaGuardia Airport today to meet Jean Edinger, hostess on an incoming (T. W. A.) airliner from Chicago.

In the confusion of trying to reach each other afterward, disclosure was made that they were married 13 days ago at his home in Mount Airy, N. C.

The bride, an attractive brunette, who, like her husband, is 24 years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Edinger, of Riverside, N. J. She has been a hostess for 16 months and met the ball player through mutual friends six months ago in Chicago.

"Neither Chubby nor I approve of week-end marriages, so I'm going to resign," Mrs. Dean said. This also will comply with a company regulation.

A. U. Bids Good-by to 'Jabby'

One of the three senior gridmen playing their last game for American University against Juniata today will be Capt. John (Jabby) Jablonsky, tackle. He has been a mainstay of the Eagles for four years

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 15.—There are four pots of gold, and a satchel of at least silver, at stake tomorrow on the so-called simon pure front of football. For the day will do much to clear up the identities of the ten parties to the Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange and Sun Bowl games.

CONSIDINE

Stanford has just about won its place into the Rose Bowl picture, but it must hurdle an in-and-out Oregon State team tomorrow to remain eligible for a 33 1-3 slice of the Rose Bowl booty. Texas A. and M., which tackles a strong Rice eleven, while searching for its nineteenth straight victory, probably will become Stanford's bowl opponent, if it wins. It is said that the Aggies have been told that if they get a Rose Bowl bid they can go to Pasadena. If not they'll have to play in the Cotton Bowl—which won't pay them as much as the Sugar Bowl would.

We think the Boston College-Georgetown game tomorrow will decide at least one party to the Sugar Bowl gravy. We suspect that Tennessee will be the other half of the Sugar Bowl game. Boston College went to the Cotton Bowl last year, and lost to Clemson, 6-3. Georgetown, unbeaten since 1937, has at last come into its own as a national football power. A victory for it tomorrow should certainly clinch that university its first bowl assignment.

If Texas A. and M. goes to the Rose Bowl, that will probably put S. M. U. into the Cotton Bowl, for the Methodists have beaten Texas and gave the Aggies a scare. S. M. U. has Arkansas to worry about tomorrow. Duke or Alabama might well supply the opposition. Both have been beaten but once, and then by Tennessee. Tennessee, incidentally, has only Virginia to bother it tomorrow. Duke has a bruising assignment in North Carolina and Alabama plays a disappointing Georgia Tech eleven. A loss either by the Blue Devils or the Tide would strike at the gizzard of their Bowl dreams.

The Orange Bowl will get Duke or Alabama, plus something hot. As usual, you can count out the Western Conference headliners, the boys from the Big Six, the Ivy League winner and Notre Dame. That deprives the Bowls of, we'll say, Minnesota, Nebraska, Cornell and the Irish, but the Bowl people never count on them anyway. Speaking of Minnesota, its last two late, lamenting opponents, Michigan and Northwestern, both beaten by a single point, go at each other tomorrow in the Midwest's outstanding game. We like Michigan, especially if the track is dry. Notre Dame plays an Iowa team that has lost its last four starts. Cornell plays a club named Dartmouth.

You have to go back a long time (and even then you won't find it) to a Boston College-Georgetown game that has captured the public's imagination as has the one tomorrow. It is definitely the game of the East. It brings together two man-sized ball clubs in what promises to be a blistering duel. Boston is talking of nothing else, and Fenway Park has been sold out for days. The rival lines are so mighty that it is a case of the immovable object meeting the immovable object.

Boston College has a little more class in the backfield, chiefly because of a skinny streak named Charley O'Rourke and a tremendous bucker named Mike Holovak, a soph. It has a 235-pound center in Gladchuk, who nonetheless is very fast, a great blocker in Toczylowski, and an end of All-America timber in Goodreault, who is particularly good on the defense. The club is coached by Frank Leahy, who fashioned the famed Seven Blocks of Granite when he was an obscure understudy at Fordham.

Georgetown will start Al Blozis, national shot-put champion, at tackle. He weighs slightly more than 240 pounds. Another chance in the Hoyas, which will be noticeable shortly after the start of the game, will be Sophomore Frank Dornfeld in the backfield. He is a streak. Jack Hagerty told us just before leaving for Boston that his club, which has been pointing for Boston College for weeks, isn't too tense over the impending battle. Boston College has complained of its injuries. Georgetown says it is in its best shape of the year.

So blow that whistle, Mr. Referee. And duck!

Shoeless Runner Awaits Gun For College Cross-Country Race

By the Associated Press

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 15.—"Shoeless" Joe Coffin's naked horny-soled feet, which have paddled unashamed to scoring position in every college cross-country race he has run for two years, await the gun starting Monday's I. C. 4A championships in New York City.

Coach Tom Keane, the shoeless one's mentor at Syracuse University, has abandoned efforts to confine Joe's tootsies to regulation spiked footwear.

"I just can't run with shoes on," Joe explains.

"That's right," agrees Keane, scratching his gray-thatched head. "I still don't believe it's possible Joe does it."

Coffin, a sophomore, has been indifferent toward the advantages of footgear since, barefooted, he first plodded behind the plow on his father's farm near Schuylerville, N.Y.

The gravel paths, harsh concrete highways and rocky hills over which Coffin lopes his steady way in cross-country races offer not the slightest hindrance to him.

He wears only a 6½-size shoe when in mufti.

"Now and then I pick up something like a thumbtack," Joe explains, "but I don't notice it until after the race."

Keane once hoped Joe would put on shoes at least for the Van Courtland Park run Monday.

Finally abandoning hope, the coach has made a vow.

If Shoeless Joe comes through in early scoring position, he promises he will recite, out loud:

"Blessings on thee, little man, barefoot boy with cheeks of tan . . ."

American U. Meets Juniata In Last Game

Jablonsky, Schulze, Norford Complete Careers Today

Still seeking a victory after 11 winless starts, American University gridders come to grips with Juniata College, of Huntingdon, Pa., today in their last game of the season at the A. U. field. Starting time will be 2:15.

An added incentive toward victory for the Eagles is the fact that three of its stellar players will be seeing their last action for the Nebraska Avenue eleven. Four years of service are behind Capt. John Jablonsky, tackle, and Wingman Hugo Schulze, and two seasons are behind Halfback Archie Norford.

A single point of comparison between the teams is the game each played against Susquehanna. The Eagles were able to score, but dropped a 33-13 decision, while Juniata eked out a scoreless draw.

The invaders have three victories to their credit so far, one tie and one loss. In three games A. U. has had one deadlock and lost twice.

Navy Is Slight Choice Today Over Columbia

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15.—After half an hour of limbering-up work on a muddy field, Navy's football squad of 43 players, accompanied by the staff of coaches, jumped aboard a special train that left here at 4:10 this afternoon for New York and the game with the Columbia Lions to be staged in Baker Stadium tomorrow afternoon. The game will end Navy's preliminary season and the climactic contest will be with the rival West Point Cadets in the Municipal Stadium, Philadelphia, November 30.

Tomorrow's fracas will be the tenth renewal of the series with Columbia, and the New Yorkers are out in front, 5 to 4. The teams first met in 1900 and Columbia won. 11 to 0. They clashed again the following year and the Lions repeated, but by the close count of 6 to 5. Then there was a hiatus until 1932. and the New Yorkers won, 7 to 6. The teams have met regularly since then, with the exception of 1936. Last year Columbia came from behind with a fine passing attack to down the Tars, 19 to 13.

Looks Like Navy

This year it looks like Navy, for although the Lions have practically the same team as last season, the Middies are regarded as twice as powerful as the 1939 outfit, owing to greater reserve strength. The Middies were given a rousing send-off by their comrades of the regiment as they left the reservation to take train. Billy the Eighth, official goat mascot, went along on the players' special, with his official Middy attendants, "Frenchy" Durette and Jack Sweeny.

The Fourth Battalion of the regiment numbering nearly 650 Middies, who will comprise the main rooting section at the game, will leave on a special train at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. With them will be the bugle and drum corps and the academy band of 75 pieces. The Middies will parade into Baker Field at 1:15.

The Middies are in fine fettle for the battle, but it is considered unlikely that Wes Gebert, back, star of the Notre Dame game, out with a bad ankle, and Howie Clark, another back, also injured in that contest, will get into action. But the starting team will have the services of Cliff Lenz, powerful bucking back, as well as a good pass receiver.

The Middy "rooters" will entrain for Annapolis soon after the end of the game but the gridders will remain overnight in Gotham, starting for home at 11 Sunday morning.

Navy's starting team will have a decided edge over its rival in point of weight. Its line will average slightly over 193. the backfield 187. or a team average of a little more than 191. compared to Columbia's line, 184, backfield 175½, and team 181.

Probable line-ups:

Dodgers May Beckon Hartnett

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Add the Brooklyn Dodgers to the list of clubs where Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett might find employment now that he has been deposed as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Larry MacPhail, president of the Dodgers, says he has the highest regard for Hartnett both as a player and as a teacher of players.

"There might be room for him with our club as a coach," MacPhail said, "but that's up to (Manager Leo) Durocher. I would be glad to get him, for my part."

Seven Virginia Elevens See Action Today

V. M. I. Meets Md. In Lynchburg; W.-L. Plays Sewanee

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15.—Virginia Military Institute will seek to extend its successive victories over the Maryland Terrapins to three games in Lynchburg tomorrow, while Roanoke College entertains Catawba in the Maroons' final tilt of the year and the only other college gridiron attraction of the day on Virginia soil.

The Fighting Squadron will be favored to repeat its 1938 and 1939 triumphs over the Maryland eleven. The whole Cadet squad was expected to be in shape for the contest with the exception of Guard Ray Ruett.

Washington and Lee, hampered by injuries, will meet Sewanee at Chattahooga; Virginia Tech's rebounding Gobblers will play Centre in Kentucky, and the University of Virginia, thrice beaten, will take on unbeaten Tennessee on the Volunteers' field.

Hampden-Sydney journeys to Davidson for a tussle with the Wildcats, and Randolph-Macon goes to Windsor, Md., to play Blue Ridge.

Slippery Rock Slips And Loses at Soccer

Slippery Rock, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP).—Skidding on their own slippery and frosty field today, the Slippery Rock Teachers soccer team lost their first game after 11 straight victories to the visting Frostburg Teachers, champions of Maryland The score was 2 to 1.

C. U. Host to Favored Hardin-Simmons

Colorful Cowboys of Texas Boast Unbeaten Record, Superior Weight For Clash at Brookland Stadium

One of the most colorful and dangerous football teams in the country furnishes opposition for the Flying Cardinals of Catholic University today, as they celebrate Homecoming Day at Brookland Bowl at 2 p. m.

Hardin-Simmons College gridmen, of Abilene, Tex., will be their foes, and from all indications the Cards have a full day ahead of them. Upward of 12,000 fans are expected to witness the battle.

Six straight triumphs lie behind the invaders, accounting for odds that will favor them by several touchdowns. And one of the few undefeated, untied records in the Nation belongs to the Cowboys, who rank among the leading scoring elevens of the Southwest.

To date Daniel Baker, Centenary, Arizona State, Texas Mines, West Texas State and Loyola University, of Los Angeles, have bowed before the burly Cowboys. They are confident that C. U. will be no more than a light workout as they romp to their seventh straight triumph this season and their eleventh over the last two years.

The Cardinals also hope for victory, but know a C. U. victory will be a distinct upset. Beaten by the Tulsa Oilers in their last outing, the Cards can depend on neither a ground nor an aerial attack to beat the Cowboys. In both departments the invaders are past masters.

In the air the Cowboys claim a brilliant passer in Owen Goodnight and an even more brilliant pass-snagger in Harry Burrus. The latter is the team's leading scorer, with six trips across the goal to his credit.

Along the ground the Cowboys may look to their heavy line and a backfield with speed, deception and power. Catholic U. players will be outweighed approximately 15 pounds to the man, a fact which

Hagerty Expects A Close Battle Today at Boston

A Staff Correspondent

Boston, Nov. 15.—On the eve of the most important game of his college football coaching career, Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown, was his usual frank self tonight when asked his opinion of the outcome of tomorrow's test with Boston College.

"It should be a close-fought affair, with the breaks deciding," he said. "I believe the score will be about 7-0, either way."

Yesterday in Washington Hagerty had said that he thought Georgetown might win decisively if it got the jump. Apparently the uncertain weather that prevailed here tonight affected his first judgment. Though the forecast for the morrow was "cloudy and cold," the threat of additional rain was heavy.

In most betting quarters here the odds on the game were even, or 5-6, and take your choice. More enthusiastic Boston College rooters were laying 10-7, however, and finding plenty of takers.

Sammy Snead, Dick Chapman Tied for Lead

Two Leaders Score 143 at Pinehurst; Leo Walper Has 145

By the Associated Press

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 15—Richard Chapman, of New York, National Amateur champion, and Slammin' Sammy Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., tied today for first place in the 36-hole meet to determine the individual winner of the annual Mid-South golf tournament.

Snead and Chapman had 70, 73—143 each. Sammy collected $350 in prize money and a trophy went to Chapman.

Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, and Jack Patroni, of Manchester, Vt., came in with 145s and thereby won $125 each.

Others finishing in the money included Leo Walper, of Washington, who shot 145 and collected $65 and Perry DeVecchio, of Pittsburgh; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Art Clark, of Summit, Pa., who were paid $30 each for their 149s.

THE BOSTON COL.—GEORGETOWN GAME LOOKS TO SHIRLEY POVICH

SHIRLEY POVICH

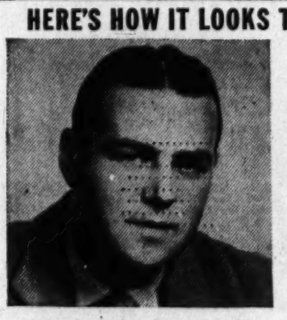
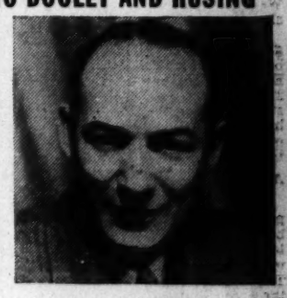
HERE'S HOW IT LOOKS TO DOOLEY AND HUSING



Eddie Dooley, Ace Football Predictor, says: "Two long winning streaks meet in this one. The Eagles have the edge in finesse and power."



Ted Husing, Dean of Sports Broadcasters, says: "Boston College's huge manpower will roll up more scores than Georgetown's squad to win."

Even the script writers could not have plotted a more exciting state of football affairs than today's Boston College-Georgetown clash. It's unbeaten team vs. unbeaten team, and neither tied. It's the Nation's No. One score team (Boston College) vs. another major team that is second in scoring, and unbeaten since 1937.

What will happen after the opening whistle? Can Boston College stop Georgetown's well-balanced running and passing attack? Is Georgetown capable of winning in faster company than it has been meeting?

It is a game to tax the imagination. Both teams have won all of their games this season with ease. For several weeks they have been pointing, particularly, for this clash, withholding their regulars from long duty in other games.

On the theory that Georgetown will reach its greatest peak at Boston, one resolute vote for Georgetown.

$5,000 Race to Feature Opening Day Card at Bowie Today

T. K. Lynch Memorial Draws Nine

Roman to Carry 122 Pounds, Top Weight of Field; $1,200 Race Purses

By Walter Haight

Without as much as changing stride, thoroughbred horse racing moves into Prince Georges County today for the start of the 13-day stand at the Bowie track. Bowie and mud, familiar to turf fans, will be served up this afternoon with a seven-race program that promises to bring plenty of action. This is the final phase of the Maryland season to be followed by Charles Town's 18-day session and then curtains for 1940 on the sport hereabouts.

Coming on the heels of five days of big-time features at Pimlico, Bowie offers an interesting race today in the Thomas K. Lynch Memorial, a test of a mile and a sixteenth, named for a newspaperman who rose to heights as a track official without changing the size of his hat band. The turf writers, as usual, will present the winning horse with a floral horseshoe.

Roman Topweight of Field

The Lynch, with $5,000 added, has drawn only nine starters, but the field is fairly oozing with speed. Joseph E. Widener's Roman will carry top weight of 122 pounds and is the likely favorite. George D. Widener has a formidable entry in Birch Rod and Rosetown, while the Shenandoah Farm will depend on Burning Star, Dollar Bay, Sir Marlboro, Dolly Val and the greatly improved Red Wrack are probable starters. Mrs. Dion K. Kerr's True Call has been named, but raced yesterday at Pimlico and is unlikely to compete.

The Lynch, located on the program, is supported by two lesser purse events. The Jock Purse, named for the old E. B. McLean campaigner is for 2-year-olds at 6 furlongs and has drawn a good lineup while the Leonardtown Purse, for 3-year-olds and up and also at the three quarter sprint distance, should provide keen competition.

Offer $1,200 Purses

The daily double is on the first and second races and limit fields are assured. The first event is for maiden juveniles at 5½ furlongs, while the second is a sprint of 6 furlongs for older platers. A pair of popular long distance races furnish the sixth and seventh spots on the card, the finale being at a mile and three-sixteenths.

Bowie is the first track in Maryland to have a minimum purse of $1,200. With an exclusive grip on the eastern racing business, Bowie always draws a high grade of horses in the fall and the increase in purses has lured some of the top performers in claiming ranks.

As usual, General Manager Joseph A. Farrell is offering the Bahr starting gate, the Jones camera and the American tote. J. Donald Hay who has supervised Bowie's increased betting at recent meetings, again will be in charge of the mutuel department. Post time for the first race today is 1:30 p. m. The daily double windows close 15 minutes earlier.

Aerial Stars to Vie In Oklahoma Game

Norman, Okla., Nov. 15 (AP).—Oklahoma and Missouri, strung out behind Nebraska in the Big Six gridiron race, argue over second place tomorrow and all the folks for miles around are looking forward to an exhibition of fancy passing that will be more than just a passing fancy.

With Paul Christman chucking for the Tigers and Jack Jacobs for the Sooners, the homecoming throng of 25,000 will be afforded the treat of watching two of the Nation's four best passers hook up in a pitching duel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLACER INN, $10.70, $5.50, $3.70; NICK, $6.90, $4.40; ARISTOCRACY, $3.10.

PLACER INN worked way to contention early, assumed command entering stretch, drew clear of NICK and won easily. NICK was in first flight from start, went to front boldly and weakened through stretch run. ARISTOCRACY raced wide and tired badly after being forward factor. HAREBELL had speed to get to front early and weakened gradually after being displaced. IMPSHI was off in tangle and failed to rally.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 1:55. Off 1:56. Winner, I. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SNOBBY SCAMP, $3.90, $2.30, $2.60; GREENWICH TIME, $2.70, $2.90; EURUS, $3.30.

SNOBBY SCAMP set good pace, was steadied when GREENWICH TIME took command under hustling tactics, came again when placed to hard drive and won going away on final flat run. GREENWICH TIME went to lead boldly and tired in closing test. EURUS was prominent until bad landing at twelfth fence. SUSPECT was well placed early and stopped.

BARRYMORE	(Wright)	115	5	5	3½	3½	11	11		10.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DAWN ATTACK, $40.40, $16.80, $9.70; PIRATE, $4.50, $3.30; POINDEXTER, $3.70.

DAWN ATTACK, showing a keen liking for the going, sprinted into good lead at once and was tiring while lasting ahead of PIRATE. The latter improved position between horses and lugged in from whip and James was unable to do him justice approaching finish. POINDEXTER came wide to improve position and hung in final drive. BLUESTRING saved ground and showed good effort.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Liberty Heights. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:22. Off 3:23. Winner, J. W. Y. Martin's ch. g. (3), by Canter—Regency. Trained by F. A. Bonsal, jr. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:18⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ABRASION, $5.80, $3.60, $2.50; LIBERTY FRANC, $4.90, $3.30; VINTAGE PORT, $2.60.

ABRASION, kept on outside and close up from start, responded to urging to take command and held on gamely under strong handling through stretch. LIBERTY FRANC was within striking distance throughout, came willingly in closing drive, but hung at end. VINTAGE PORT was off very slowly and ran winning race. DUDIE was not serious factor.

SIXTH RACE—One and five-eighths miles. Purse, $10,000 added. The Bowie Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:52. Off 3:53. Winner, C. Smythe's br. f. (3), by Swift and Sure—Featherweight. Trained by M. E. Nichols. Net value to winner, $10,200; second, $1,500; third, $1,000; fourth, $800. Time, 3:02

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SECOND HELPING, $40.70, $13.80, $7.50; DUSKY FOX, $6.90, $4.20; SHOT PUT, $2.70.

SECOND HELPING, forwardly placed and allowed to race on own courage early, came to inside to improve position approaching stretch and responded to punishment to draw clear in final stages. DUSKY FOX was not hurried in early stages, came wide for racing room to take good lead, but faltered through stretch. SHOT PUT could not keep up early and hung after improving position after a mile. YALE O' NINE closed some ground.

SEVENTH RACE—One and five-eighths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:21. Off 4:21½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARGO G., $32.80, $9.80, $7.10; MISS L. P., $3.70, $2.60; TWO ACES, $6.10.

MARGO G., within striking distance from start, went to front with bold rush, lugged into rail and closed with good energy under drive. MISS L. P. made several moves along rail, was shut off after mile and blocked again by winner in stretch run. Berg's foul claim against winner was not allowed. TWO ACES raced wide, moved up menacingly and hung in closing test.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,300. The Old Hilltop Handicap. Grade C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place easily. Went to post 4:58. Off 4:58½. Winner, Circle M Ranch's br. c. (4), by American Flag—On Her Toes. Trained by W. B. Finnegan. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51⅖.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GET OFF, $10.80, $5.80, $3.90; THIRD COVEY, $3.40, $2.70; BRIGHT VIEW, $4.40.

GET OFF, showing startling improvement, was steadied to far turn, went to front with good energy when asked and won with speed in reserve. THIRD COVEY was hard ridden to force pace of BRIGHT VIEW and was no match for winner, but held others safe. BRIGHT VIEW was hustled to front, set pace and weakened in closing drive. MOSCOW II closed with good energy.

Game Little Mare Buried With Full Military Honors

Chilena, beloved horse that died after a spill while being schooled over one of the jumps at the recent National Horse Show in New York's Madison Square Garden, was buried near Fort Wadsworth. The grave, over which the United States Army will erect a monument, was surrounded by the entire Fort Wadsworth Garrison, headed by Post Commander Lieut. Col. H. E. Dager. Left to right are Maj. Eduardo Yanez, who guided Chilena to most of her triumphs; Capt. Pelays Izurieta, Capt. Armando Fernandez, Capt Armando Aborzua, A. Kenny Palmer, president of the Chile-American Association, and Lieut. Col. Dager

1940 Championship Game Moved Up to Thanksgiving; Walsh Is Big Star Again

By Bill Burnett

A more than worthy foe for Western High, defending champion, in the 1940 intersectional championship game of the interhigh series emerged from the mud at Tech Stadium yesterday when the host club, once more behind young Jackie Walsh, ground out a 26-0 triumph over Anacostia.

With the Eastern Division title thus clinched, the Manual Trainers have only their meeting with Western on Thanksgiving Day between them and their first title since 1936. The original date of the cross-city clash was set for November 23, but it was moved up by officials yesterday because of a conflict with the Georgetown-G. W. game.

As might be expected after three days of rain, there was mud aplenty on the Tech gridiron yesterday. It was bitterly cold, too, limiting the turnout to an estimated 1,500 hardy fans. Nothing could stop Walsh & Co., however, as the Manual Trainers wound up their regular interhigh schedule unbeaten.

Walsh Scores in First

One touchdown was registered in each quarter. Walsh dashing to scores in the first and last and passing to Vern Hollidge for the second-period tally. In the third quarter it was a blocked kick which Bill Dellastatious scooped up on the Anacostia 40 which accounted for 6 points.

Carleton Smallwood, burly fullback, saw Dellastatious about to retrieve the ball and almost single-handedly made it possible for him to race 40 yards down the sidelines to score. Three potential tackles were piled rudely in a heap with a perfect block, and it was a simple matter for Dellastatious to reach the goal. Walsh's attempted placement for the point was wide.

Though Tech was never better, Anacostia's mishandling of the slippery ball accounted for much of its trouble. A fumble by Bob Nolte after the Indians had withstood a first-period drive set up Tech's first touchdown, the ball rolling back to Anacostia's 5 as Nolte attempted to kick on fourth down. Walsh went over on the first try, but was caught back of the line as he attempted to pass to the extra point.

Pass Nets Touchdown

On the first play of the second quarter Tech struck again. From back of the 20-yard stripe Walsh hurled to Hollidge on the 8 for a touchdown. Joe Bryan kicked a perfect placement.

Finally, as the game was nearing its end and chilly fans prepared to leave, Walsh turned in the longest run of the day. From his own 36, where Sonny Morrisette had given the Trainers the ball on a pass interception, Walsh broke through center. He was standing straight up, and was neither slowed up nor touched as he went 64 yards down the middle of the field. Morrisette's placekick was straight as an arrow.

The Trainers threatened to score late in the second stanza when Morrisette tried a field goal from the 12, but it was very wide. A touchdown pass, Dellastatious to Walsh, was also called back in the second quarter.

Despite their shellacking the Indians took credit for several brilliant plays. And to Nolte and George Abshur went major honors. They played winning ball, but couldn't carry the whole burden.

42,000 to See Hoya-B. C. Game

game will hold the powerful Eagles scoreless.

As to our personal guess about the outcome, we'll take G. U. by at least one touchdown.

Game Goes on Air

Today both teams enjoyed their longest and most satisfactory outdoor workouts of the week as the rain stopped shortly after noon and permitted Georgetown to hold an hour's drill at Fenway Park, and Boston College a practice of similar length at the field of the working boys' home.

Both squads are at near full strength. The only key player of either team likely to miss the game is Adolph Kissell, the Eagles' second-string fullback, who is suffering from an elbow injury.

The game will be broadcast locally in Boston, and in Washington by Ray Michael, who will be there Beantown to give a play-by-play account to Washington fans over station WMAL, starting at 2 p. m.

Carrying Tech's First '6' . . .

Eckrich Leads Little Hoyas In 13-0 Victory

Loyola Prep Bows As Eckrich, Ghecas Pace Attack

One of his especially brilliant performances was turned in by Big Bud Eckrich, Georgetown Prep fullback, as he led his team to a 13-to-0 victory over Loyola Prep, of Baltimore, yesterday on the Garrett Park gridiron.

Ignoring the heavy footing, Eckrich tallied both the Little Hoyas' touchdowns as they chalked up their third straight triumph.

A 1-foot plunge by the big ball-carrier paid off in the first quarter, and a 15-yard slant off tackle rang the bell in the second stanza.

George Ghecas, newcomer to the Little Hoyas, set up the first touchdown when he raced 20 yards to bring the ball within striking distance. Eckrich rushed it to the 1-foot line and then went over on the first try. His plunge for the seventh point was stopped.

Ghecas again helped out in the game's final score, getting off runs of 15 and 25 yards to bring the ball to the 15, from which point Eckrich went over. Murray McDonnell plowed through the center of the line for the final point.

Loyola was never able to threaten its old rival. It profited by 150 yards in penalties on the Little Hoyas, but still failed to make a serious bid.

land, will be back for the first time since that game last month, while Osmanski will be returning after a two-weeks' layoff. He injured a knee in the Bears' 16-7 count over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Bears, coming to Washington for the first time in National Pro League history, will play before a full house. Scalpers, active in town early in the week, have folded their tents and silently stolen away, according to yesterday's reports.

The game, in addition to stacking up as a preview of the playoff for the National League's world championship December 8, will be the District debut of Bob Nowaskey in professional football. Nowaskey, George Washington University's little All-American end of last year, has been playing regularly with the Bears and will see plenty of action Sunday.

Wilson Holds Central Eleven To 7 to 7 Tie

2,000 Shivering Fans Witness Interhigh Game at Wilson

For the second time in two weeks an underrated Woodrow Wilson eleven pulled a surprise upset in the current interhigh series yesterday when it held a prohibitive favorite Central High eleven to a 7-7 deadlock at Wilson's new stadium before a shivering crowd of 2,000 spectators.

The tie, however, clinched the runner up spot for the Vikings in the western division with 1 win, 2 losses and 2 ties. Wilson concluded its most successful season in the history of the school with one victory, two efeats an a deadlock.

Central scored its lone tally in the latter part of the opening period on a pass from Fullback Steve Valanos to Leftend Sam Di Blasi. The play was good for 30 yards, coming after a drive which netted 52 yards. After Quarterback Harry Martin ran a Wilson punt back 15 yards to Central's 48-yard stripe, Halfback Olin Hartman and Martin ran the pigskin to Wilson 30-yard line. On a fake reverse Valanos faded back to his 40-yard stripe, threw the ball diagonally across the field, where Di Blasi grabbed it on the 15 and ran untouched for the score. Coach Hardy Pierce sent in Jack Samperton, who kicked a perfect placement.

Quarterback Harold Hickson set up Wilson's touchdown with a 40-yard run back of an intercepted pass which was thrown by Martin in the second period. He brought the ball up to Central 30-yard line. Hickson then threw a pass to Carl Saine, who was downed on the 8. On the next play Halfback Charlie Voigt took a bad pass from center, but skirted right end for the score. Voigt tied up the game when he kicked the extra point.

Central completely outplayed the Green and White by gathering 11 first downs to Wilson's 2. Frequent pass interceptions by Wilson hurt the Viking chances considerably, however. Wilson's kicking, handled by Voigt, also meant trouble to the Mount Pleasanters.

Hartmen was easily the offensive star of the game by gaining 70 yards in 19 tries through the Wilson line. For Wilson, Cliff Haack, stellar guard, played a fine defensive game.

Vols Hold Drill On Windswept Field for Virginia

By the Associated Press

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 15.—Maj. Bob Neyland, hands jammed in pockets and coat turned up around his ears, sent the sweat-shirted Tennessee Volunteers through their final drill on wind-swept Shields-Watkins Field today in preparation for tomorrow's game with Virginia.

Clear skies and sub-freezing weather at game time, 2 p. m. (C. S. T.), was forecast.

The Vols, triumphant in seven straight games, were rated three touchdowns better than the Cavaliers, who have split their season. The Dominion team, with its blue chips on All-America Prospect Bill Dudley, was expected to rely chiefly on a well-planned passing attack.

Boxing Magazine RanksRed Burman As Top Challenger

New York, Nov. 15.—Red Burman, Baltimore, Jack Dempsey's heavyweight protege, has been voted the worthiest title opponent for Champion Joe Louis in a poll conducted by The Ring magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer announced today that this poll of 65 Ring correspondents throughout the United States resulted in more than 80 per cent of the ballots being cast for Burman.

Former Champion Maxie Baer ranked second; Arturo Godoy, of Chile, third, and Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn fourth. It was the consensus of these writers that Promoter Mike Jacobs should toss Conn into the ring with Burman instead of trying to maneuver Conn into a title bout with Louis.

Westvaco Keeps Bi-State Franchise

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 15.—The Bi-State Baseball League closed its business for the 1940 season at a meeting at the American Legion Home here. Westvaco's franchise fee of $50 was forfeited to the league for failure to complete its schedule in the championship play-off, but it retained its franchise in the league. The other franchise fees were returned to the teams which closed out the season.

Big Boy Takes Lead in Trials

Florence, Ala., Nov. 15.—A home-owned fox hound, Big Boy, led the way today as the record field began the second cast of the all-age trials of the National Foxhunters Association in clear, cold weather.

Big Boy, by Showing Cloud out of Kate, and owned by H. L. Rice, of Florence, had 105 points when judges completed their tallies of the first cast.

In second place was White Rose Eula Stride, owned by Jeter Brothers, Santuck, S. C., with 90 points, and third was Be There, owned by Miss Pansy Ireland, Harrodsburg, Ky., with 85 points.

Ebony Alexander, owned by Mrs. Pearl Polk Chapleau, Memphis, and Dyna May, owned by William Carl Hunt, Washington, D. C., were tied for fourth at 70 points.

Texans 'Fear' Jess Neely's Tricky Eleven

Rice Shooting for Upset, but Must Stop Kimbrough

By the Associated Press

College Station, Tex., Nov. 15.—Cold, calculating Texas A. and M., winner of 18 straight football games and now on a dead "point" for the Rose Bowl, tomorrow plays Rice Institute—and cagey Jess Neely.

Rice is in that feared "nothing to lose" position. The Owls started the season with everything brand new. Jess Neely came over from Clemson, where he could have settled for life, and rejuvenated a very sick Owl. The five victories and one loss record compiled to date represents a terrific season—more than expected.

Tomorrow the Owls, a precision team with a fine running game, become the eighth challenger of the season to an Aggie team now quite accustomed to one and all seeking their scalps. Rice ranks second only to the Cadets in rushing yardage—and they have played one less game. The Aggies have powered for 1,056 yards; Rice, 1,048.

But the Aggies have shown time and again that only passes can dent their hides. The massive line has held for an average enemy gain of 23.3 yards by rushing. Rice has gained only 340 yards on passes.

Jarrin' John Kimbrough, the All-America Aggie fullback who crushed Southern Methodist's mighty team last week, was ready for a Rice line that has been effective against rushing. Rice had its own fullbacking noise in Bob Brumley, a stout boy who has been spearheading their attack.

No Option Out For Yank Club, Officials State

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 15.—The executors of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert estate, including the far-flung New York Yankee baseball organization, tonight denied that "anyone has any option for the purchase of Yankee properties."

A statement, issued through Byron Clark, jr., an executor and attorney for the estate, said the heirs also wished to reiterate that "there is no compulsion of any kind upon them to sell the property."

"But," the statement continued, "their official duty requires that if a favorable proposition on favorable terms is made to them, they must accept it."

The statement was made, it was learned, to correct an erroneous story that former Postmaster General James A. Farley has an option until March to buy the Yanks.

Farley is heading a syndicate attempting to purchase the club. At present he is on a Nation-wide tour ostensibly to interest some wealthy sportsmen and financiers in the proposition.

In Kansas City today he was quoted as saying that he "expects to conclude arrangements for the purchase of the Yanks by a syndicate within a few weeks at the most."

Farley and Landis Discuss Purchase

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—James A. Farley, former Postmaster General who heads a syndicate which plans to purchase the New York Yankees baseball club, visited Chicago today and conferred with Commissioner of Baseball Kenesaw Landis.

Farley came here from Kansas City and it was understood the trip is one of the final steps in raising the $1,500,000 down payments necessary to complete the transaction.

It was reported that transfer of the club will be made formally upon Farley's return to New York. Farley was accompanied by Smith Davis, Cleveland broker, who recently predicted the deal would be consummated by the end of the month.

V.M.I. Polishes Attack for Md. Game Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lexington, Va., Nov. 15.—Emerging from the Washington University game at St. Louis with no more than the usual bruises, V. M. I.'s fighting squadron has been polishing its attack for the Maryland game at Lynchburg tomorrow. The Cadets, with Son Shelby and Joe Muha setting the pace, rang up three touchdowns against the Bears, but Coach Allison "Pooley" Hubert wants still more drive and precision.

Last year the Cadets underestimated Maryland at Norfolk, and the result was that the Terps badly outgained a strong V. M. I. team, though the Cadets won the ball game, 13 to 0, on long runs by "Bosh" Pritchard and one short sustained power drive. Ray Reutt, dynamic guard who cleared the way, is still in the V. M. I. hospital as the only regular who is due to miss the Maryland game.

V. M. I.'s versatile triple-threat, "Bosh" Pritchard, will be ready for the Terps, though a "charley horse" that he drew in the scoreless tie with William and Mary was aggravated in the mud battle at St. Louis. While Pritchard was on the bench, his understudy, "Son" Shelby, turned in the best game of his career at tailback. Noted as a passer, Shelby crossed up the Bears with a dazzling series of runs, one of which was a 23-yard scoring dash.

V. M. I.'s other two touchdowns were scored by Joe Muha, sophomore back, who started the season at 196 pounds but now weighs 205. The Bears could not stop Muha, but on the other hand the Cadet second stringers did not stop the passes of Bud Schwenk, Washington's talented aerial artist.

Pass Defense Stressed

Defense against passes has been stressed in workouts this week on Alumni Field, because Joe Murphy, Maryland's 147-pound Southern Conference spring champion, is not only a climax runner but a fine passer and better-than-average punter. V. M. I.'s husky line, with standouts like Luther Sexton and Billy Nugent at end; Harold Tipton, 270-pounder, at tackle, and Billy Walker and Tom Thrasher at guard, is likely to force the Terps to play a wide-open game.

More than 300 Cadets and a majority of the faculty will leave Lexington at 12:30 Saturday in time for the Cadets to march on the field in review at the Lynchburg Municipal Stadium. Game time is 2:15 p. m.

V. M. I.'s "Big Six" cross-country team champions will also meet opposition from a strong Maryland crew next Monday. The Terps will be hosts to Southern Conference harriers, with Duke and North Carolina among the strongest entries. V. M. I.'s Jimmy Dale, Rudolph Tauskey and Charlie Chewning have ben leading the undefeated Cadet squad.

Jimmy Bivins Defeats Anton Christoforidis

Cleveland, Nov. 15 (AP).—Jimmy Bivins, dusky Cleveland middleweight, won his twentieth straight ring victory tonight with a ten-round decision over the formidable Anton Christoforidis, of Greece.

While Bivins failed to extend his string of nine knockouts, he won seven rounds and drew in another. It was Christoforidis' first defeat in the United States. The fight drew a crowd of about 7,000 fans.

Wayne Wright, Rider, Suspended At Pimlico Oval

By a Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 15.—Jockey Wayne Wright, one of America's leading riders, was suspended, and his case was referred to the Maryland Racing Commission for foul riding in the seventh race. Wright, who had the mount on Sammie, was alleged to have knocked Jockey Mannie Berg, aboard Miss L. P., into the fence at the far turn. Berg, whose mount was second to Margo G., claimed a foul against the winner, which was not allowed.

Simon's 424 Set Is High In Pin Meet

Effort Just Short Of Mark at Clarendon; Pharmacy Best

The Clarendon Major League was led last night by Irwin Simon, of Sunkist, with a game of 163 followed by a tremendous set of 424, just 2 pins short of the league all-time record. The Boyer's Pharmacy lads took team highs with 631-1,771.

PENN

In the General Land Office loop's rolling Helen Schall, Browns, took highs for her division with 110-308, with the Blues garnering team highs of 485-1,368. In the men's section, Bullion, of Patents, rolled high game of 136 with Police, Administrative, getting the high count for set with 350. Exchanges grabbed all team highs, taking 535 for game and 1,574 on the set.

QUEEN PIN

Thurston, Foundry No. 1, was the big pounder at the Navy Yard. Thurston got a pinfall of 157 for game and 387 for set, taking individual honors for the night and pacing his quintet to team highs of 634 and 1,686. Foundry No. 3 took all three tilts from Locomotive.

PETWORTH

In the Petworth loop's meet Mendelsohn, Brotman's Market, was the hero with individual highs of 154 for game and 399 for set. The Soller's boys took the team highs, rolling 618 and 1,838 and then went on to take all its games from Trojan Display.

COLUMBIA

Bureau of Engraving lasses discovered after their rolling that Julia Young, Section 6, No. 1, was high for individuals with 146-360, pacing her five to a tie with Section 9, No. 2 for team set with 1,547.

ARCADIA

Lucile Young, Arcade Pontiac, took a nice 140 for high game in the Ladies Independent meet while Edith Burns, Charles Grill, took the set with 344. The Greyhounds took team set with 1,524, and won the odd game from the DDW's. Butler-Flynn Paint and Little Tavern took all three games from opponents.

BROOKLAND

In the Brookland Ladies meet Helen Fechtman, Brookland Garage, rolled high game of 135 and led her team into a tie for set with Gulf Service with 1,445. Margaret O'Brien, Michigan Park Market, bowled high set of 344. Brookland Garage took high team game with 508.

ICE PALACE

In the Chevy Chase Commercial meet Wetzel, Royal Tavern, and Mike Avon, Ramblers, took the highs for game and set with 150 and 394, respectively. The Ramblers took the high team game with 662, as Royal Tavern rolled 1,831 for set, taking three from American Valet while doing so. City Motors beat Daily News in all their tilts.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—R. B. Payne of Charlestown, W. Va., hunting with a party at Hickory Lodge Camp in Bath County, bagged a six-point 200-pound buck today. It was the first kill reported at the beginning of Bath County's five-day deer season.

G. W. High Loses, 20 to 0, To Hopewell

Presidents Outplayed By League Rivals; Breaks Aid Winners

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Nov. 15.—George Washington High School's first test in the mud turned out to be a decided flop tonight, as an underrated but alert Hopewell High School eleven seized upon three important breaks to score as many touchdowns and defeat the Presidents, 20-0, before 3,500 fans. It was George Washington's fifth Virginia Class A Conference defeat in six starts, and Hopewell's second league triumph in five tries. The Blue Devils, outweighed by ten pounds per man, outplayed the Presidents throughout. Most of the game was played in G. W. territory but breaks actually paved the way for the visitors' scores. Two fumbles and a blocked kick led to the Hopewell touchdowns.

Midway of the first quarter the Blue Devils were handed their first touchdown when Leon Chisholm fumbled Doug Pritchard's punt in the end zone, and Al Nemetz recovered. George Washington's line blocked the try for the extra point.

In the second period the Blue Devils recovered a G. W. fumble on the Presidents' 31-yard line, and marched to their second score. Their drive was climaxed when George Boges, on an end run, skirted his own right end and crossed the goal line standing up. Hobbs converted on a perfect placement.

George Washington stalled off a third touchdown in the third quarter, holding for four downs after the Blue Devils gained a first down on their 2-yard line, but in the final period the visitors blocked a kick and converted on the 26 to set up the final score.

George Washington, a slight pregame favorite, never showed any offensive punch until the last quarter, when the Presidents clocked off three straight first downs and marched to the visitors' 25-yard line. At this point, however, the final gun halted hostilities. Hopewell's line outcharged the heavier G. W. forwards from start to finish, while the visitors' blocking and tackling was superior to that of their opponents.

The defeat left the Presidents with a record of three victories against five defeats for the season.

'Fowl' Weather Cuts Turkey Total

There will be approximately 4 per cent fewer turkeys available for Thanksgiving boards throughout the country as a result of severe storms which swept the Middle West this week, the Agricultural Marketing Service reported yesterday.

Snow-blocked roads may delay the journey of many birds from roost to market, it was pointed out. Losses among turkeys in the heaviest hit areas of Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa may go as high as 15 per cent, the service said.

Owen B. Winters Buried in New York

Funeral services for Owen B. Winters, husband of Mrs. Louise Harrison Gwynn Turnure Winters, formerly of Washington, who died at his home in Nassau, British West Indies, last Monday night, were held yesterday in New York City.

Mr. Winters, who was executive vice president of the Erwin, Wassey & Co. advertising agency in New York, was married to the former Mrs. Turnure last May. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn, of Georgetown.

American Auto Ass'n Pledges Aid in Defense

Henry Is Renamed Carmody Addresses Concluding Session

By Howard F. Wentworth

All facilities and resources of the American Automobile Association were pledged to national defense efforts yesterday as the Nation-wide motoring group concluded its thirty-eighth annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

Thomas R. Henry, of Detroit, re-elected to his eighteenth term as president, said the A. A. A. stands ready to throw the weight of its 725 affiliated clubs behind defense activities. In particular, he said, the association is anxious to cooperate in providing highway information, formulating driver-training programs and educating civilians in the proper use of highways in time of emergency.

Henry also urged Federal and State governments to exert every effort toward building up the country's highway system to standards demanded by modern military requirements, including construction of express roads into and through congested metropolitan areas.

Need of Good Roads Stressed

Adoption of the A. A. A. defense program followed an address by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody in which he stressed access roads to military camps and industrial plants as the "immediate need." He estimated that 2,900 miles of new roads will be necessary to link Army and Navy centers with the main thoroughfares.

The cost of these roads, Carmody said, will be approximately $194,000,000 and long-pending plans for a system of superhighways across the country must wait until the present "emergency" program is completed.

"New defense industries, and old ones which are expanding, are in crying need of road improvements," said Carmody. "Our Public Roads Administration recently completed the collection of data on the condition of the strategic road system. It revealed weaknesses in the 75,000 miles of principal highways which must be corrected."

The defense road program, he added, will include widening of some 4,000 miles; resurfacing 14,000 miles and strengthening 2,400 bridges.

"Under normal conditions," Carmody pointed out, "this work of modernizing the road network designated by the War Department as strategically important would be done gradually during the next several years. Now, however, these improvements will have to be rushed to completion in a much shorter time."

Senor Luis Montes de Oca, president of the Mexican Motor Club and head of the A. A. A.'s Latin-American division, urged that work on the Pan-American highway be expedited as a defense measure for the entire hemisphere.

His proposal was taken up by the convention delegates in advocating early completion of the so-called "All-American Highway"—comprising the Alaskan International Highway and the Pan-American route. This, the A. A. A. pointed out, would provide a road connection for all the American nations, vitally important to defense of this hemisphere.

Beautification Urged

It was voted to conduct an intensive program in the interest of safeguarding and beautifying the country's roadsides.

In addition to Thomas Henry, other officers named were John W. Wright, Jamestown, N. Y., first vice president; John R. Bently, Cleveland, second vice president; Howard W. Hughes, Washington, Pa., third vice president; D. H. Lewis, Buffalo, N. Y., fourth vice president; Sam W. Burchiel, Providence, R. I., fifth vice president; Arthur H. Breed, Oakland, Calif., sixth vice president, and Senator Robert E. Reynolds, North Carolina, seventh vice president.

John L. Young, Cleveland, and Corcoran Thom, of Washington, were named secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Threatener Of President Gets 2 Years

Edward DeRoulhac Blount, 30, yachtsman who twice threatened to kill President Roosevelt, yesterday was sent to prison for from two to six years "as an example to others who might be inclined to abuse the rights of citizenship."

"These are difficult times," said Justice F. Dickinson Letts when Blount faced him in the District Court, "and they make the offense more grievous than in peace time. The defendant must have substantial punishment."

Blount pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with uttering two threats. He must serve one to three years for each.

Respect for Authority

Remarking that he had weighed Defense Counsel James F. Reilly's plea for leniency so that Blount might rehabilitate himself, Justice Letts remarked that he had this in mind, but "there are other considerations. This offense was a threat against the life of the President. The elements of good citizenship would require a good citizen to conduct himself with respect to constituted authority."

Before pronouncing sentence, the justice heard the views of a number of citizens and studied the report of the Secret Service agents who arrested Blount.

Secret Service Agents Mandeville C. Frost and John A. White were assigned to investigate Blount some weeks ago.

Pleaded Guilty

Witnesses told the agents that Blount made obscene and abusive remarks about President Roosevelt. One said Blount told him that if the President led the Nation into war or won a third term Blount would shoot his way into the White House and kill him.

Arrested October 9 aboard his own yacht, the Habana, Blount pleaded guilty October 11 before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. When indicted, he first pleaded not guilty, but later acknowledged his guilt.

Dugan, a Stuffed Dress Shirt Now, Greets an Old Friend

Emperor Penguin, Back From Taxidermist, Seems to Wag His Tail—Honest—When His Old Keeper Visits Him at the Museum

Dugan had a caller yesterday and it seemed as if he actually wagged his tail in recognition, stuffed bird though Dugan is.

The visitor was Malcolm Davis, keeper of the Zoo's birdhouse. The place was the foyer of the National Museum. And Dugan himself is—or was—a handsome specimen of emperor penguin which was Davis' pal.

A member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, the birdhouse keeper captured the penguin destined to be known as Dugan on a floe last winter. He arrived at the Zoo early in March but Dugan was not meant for captivity. On May 25, he died, his head in the hands of Davis, the one person he had learned to love.

Yesterday the big bird—mounted—was on exhibition at the National Museum. Sharing the case with him are three other Antarctic birds which Davis also had a hand in collecting.

One is a skua, which Davis trapped. Another, an Antarctic tern, which he skinned. Third, an adelie penquin trapped by the birdhouse keeper. To him, though, the other three were just animals. Dugan was a friend.

Most unusual bird of the four, however, is the skua. A fierce little killer, this creature subsists largely upon penquin eggs and chicks. According to the Smithsonian Institution, little skuas come out of their eggs fighting. There are generally two in a nest and in a short time the weaker of the two is devoured by its brother or sister.

Like the penquins, the Antarctic tern is a peaceful bird which sometimes falls victim to the skua.

British Gesture To Soviet Held Futile So Far

By James B. Reston.

Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 15.—The foreign office announced tonight that Great Britain recently had made a new and so far unsuccessful attempt to improve her relations with Soviet Russia.

Eager to end the long range diplomatic squabbling that has been going on between Moscow and London ever since the conclusion of the Russo-German pact of August, 1939, Great Britain laid the following three-point declaration before the Kremlin October 22.

2—Britain guarantees that Russia will be a participant in any peace settlement at the end of this war.

3—Britain is willing to grant defacto recognition of the incorporation of the Baltic States of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania within the Soviet Union.

In return for this declaration the British ambassador to Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, who presented his government's note to Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs Andrey Y. Vishinski, asked merely for "a more benevolent attitude" on the part of the Soviet Union toward His Majesty's Government. So far the declaration has not even been answered, and Josef Stalin's first diplomatic action after receiving the note was to send Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff M. Molotoff to Berlin.

In spite of Moscow's attitude, however, the foreign office is being very "correct" here tonight. Their reaction was that the Russians always take a long time to answer everything.

Laval Seeks To Avert Split Over Lorraine

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Nov. 15.—Inhabitants of Lorraine expelled by the occupying authorities continued to arrive in the unoccupied zone of France today.

They are being assembled at Lyons whence after identity verifications and brief sojourn they are being routed to centers in the south and southwest of France. There they will be temporarily housed as were, only a few months ago, refugees from Paris and the north.

The influx is expected to continue for, although the question has been raised by the French government as to whether or not the expulsions are in agreement with the armistice pact, there is little prospect of a revocation of the orders.

Returns to Paris

After yesterday's cabinet council decided to appeal to the armistice commission, Vice Premier Laval returned to Paris to resume negotiations with German authorities.

[The Associated Press reported from Vichy that Laval's return to Paris was an attempt to stave off a definite break with Germany over French protests against the expulsions.]

Meanwhile, the line of demarcation between the occupied and unoccupied zones in France tends to become more impassable each day. The occupying authorities have announced that they will grant no more permits for passages from one zone to another and that applications must be addressed to the French prefect of the Seine.

He will be allowed to grant only urgent cases and persons will no longer be permitted to travel between the two zones for purely personal reasons.

Engineer Held for Murder In Swisher Stabbing

A formal charge of murder was placed against Joseph H. Henderson, 47-year-old engineer, of 617 Rock Creek Church Road Northwest, last night after the coroner's jury held him responsible for the fatal stabbing of Jerry Swisher, 29, of the 1200 block M Street Northwest.

Denied bail, Henderson was committed to the District Jail to await trial.

Swisher was stabbed in the abdomen November 8 in front of a tavern in the 800 block Fourteenth Street Northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he died Wednesday, refusing to reveal the name of his assailant.

Sergt. Charles S. Dwyer, First Precinct, told the jury he talked to Swisher immediately after the stabbing and asked him who had cut him.

"Well, sergeant, I realize how you look at these things," Dwyer quoted the injured man, "but the man's from out of town and I just don't know him."

Doctors also said Swisher refused them any information.

An eyewitness, John M. Chuvard, of 305 Seaton Place Northeast, who claimed to know both the defendant and the dead man, said both men had been drinking in the tavern.

"I asked Henderson to step outside," he stated, "and on the way passed Swisher's table. He asked me to have a drink, but I said I was in a hurry and would be back.

"Swisher followed us outside and asked me what was the matter, that I had refused to drink with him. He then asked me in profane language who Henderson was.

"I told him to ask him himself and then Swisher called Henderson a name and made a 'pass' at him. The next thing I knew Swisher was bent over and Henderson was walking away."

Henderson took the stand in his own defense and testified that Swisher started an argument with him and attempted to cut him with a knife. Henderson said he struck back in self-defense.

Three Scholastic Games Postponed

The sloppy playing surfaces of all local gridirons forced postponement of two scholastic games yesterday, and cancellation of another.

Realtors Urge U.S. to Create Housing Post

Ask Cabinet Appointment to Aid City Dwellers

By Thomas M. Cahill

Real Estate Editor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 15.—Wholehearted support of the national defense program was pledged tonight by the National Association of Real Estate Boards at the closing session of its convention. In view of the program's heavy financial burden on the Nation, however, utmost economy and retrenchment in all other governmental expenditures were urged. Hope for victory of Britain was expressed and cooperation with President Roosevelt in the working out of a foreign policy and mobilization of natural resources was announced by the organization.

Establishment of a U. S. Department of Land and Housing, equally comparable with the Department of Agriculture and with secretarial representation in the President's Cabinet, was advocated by Harry Grant Atkinson, Chicago, the association's director of education. This department would reorganize existing governmental agencies in urban real estate; aid in establishment of experimental stations and colleges, doing for 105,000,000 urban dwellers what the Department of Agriculture does for 35,000,000 farm dwellers.

Dealing with housing in relation to national defense, the assemblage stated that wherever exigencies of the program create a shortage of shelter, private enterprise and capital should have first opportunity to fill as much of the need as practicable. Commendation and support of the Department of Justice in elimination of racketeering and monopolistic practices in construction was offered.

Recognizing that present advantages enjoyed by new construction by reason of more favorable treatment under the FHA mortgage insurance plan are disadvantageous to existing homes, tending to accentuate urban decentralization and spread blight, the meeting recommended that Congress amend the National Housing Act to permit treatment in application of the plan to existing homes.

It also recommended the modernization loan feature of the act be extended beyond July 1, 1941.

A resolution covering this was amended to continue beyond this date FHA Title 1 in its present form, thus providing loans for small houses as well as modernization.

One resolution opposed further extension of the United States Housing Authority. Admitting certain areas of older cities have become blighted beyond rehabilitation through ordinary means, it stated instrumentalities should be formed by cooperation of municipal, State and Federal Governments with private enterprise whereby such areas can be acquired under eminent domain for replanning and rebuilding them, through redevelopment organizations. A remodeled Federal agency to assist in accomplishing this "without Government becoming landlord to its citizens," was termed desirable.

Another resolution stated that unsightly billboards and temporary roadside structures are detrimental to real estate values in residential areas tend to destroy public enjoyment of vast investment in rural highways and advocated regulation through municipal, county and State-wide zoning enactments.

This resolution was adopted.

The convention, attended by 2,408 registrants, was the largest since that in Detroit, in 1925, which registered more than 4,000. The latter city, Cleveland and St. Louis seek the 1941 meeting.

Army May Call R.O.T.C. Units After June

Lieut. Col. Edward L. White, head of the Reserve Officers Association, yesterday told 135 delegates to the Scabbard and Blade convention here from R. O. T. C. colleges throughout the country that they face a "decided probability" of being called into service for one, two or three-year terms upon graduation this June.

Earlier in the day, Brig. Gen. John H. Hester, Army executive in charge of reserve forces, had mentioned a "possibility" that the 8,000 R. O. T. C. graduates would be asked to serve in the Army after June.

The delegates, who had previously expressed their willingness to serve if asked, represent 79 colleges scattered over the country. Delegates had driven here from Oregon, and two parties flew here from California and Arizona.

All attended a convention ball given last night in the Raleigh Hotel, the convention headquarters.

An election of officers will open the concluding session of the three-day convention today. Capt. John H. Coffman, U. S. M. C., will deliver the luncheon address. This afternoon will be devoted to sightseeing tours.

Cilamxing the R. O. T. C. fraternity convention tonight will be a banquet, with Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, delivering a broadcast address at 7:45 p. m. over Station WJSV. Toastmaster at the dinner will be Charles A. Taylor, a founder of Scabbard and Blade.

National officers will be installed and trophies presented to winners of pistol and rifle contests, conducted during the spring and summer, at tonight's banquet in the Raleigh.

Bombers Make Third Raid on Taranto Base

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Nov. 15.—The air ministry announced today that on the night of November 13-14, long-range bombers had made a third air attack on Taranto, starting seven fires and causing a great explosion.

Naval oil tanks and destroyer quays in the inner harbor were given a strenuous pummeling, pilots on their return reported, and the whole dockyard had been plastered with bombs and fires that were visible for more than 50 miles.

Life Insurance Sales Spurt in Old Dominion

Neighboring State Shows 25% Gain: D. C. Sales Down

Life insurance sales in Virginia showed one of the sharpest gains in the country during October, rising to $6,329,000 or a gain of 25 per cent over the same month last year.

Other figures released yesterday by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn., showed an unfavorable trend in Washington. Local sales in October totaled $5,024,000, a 10 per cent decline as compared with the same month last year.

For the Nation ordinary ordinary insurance sales were reported 5 per cent improved in October and 2 per cent better for the first ten months. In Maryland, October and ten-month sales were 4 per cent improved.

Three Receive Promotions

Fred A. Smith has been named executive vice president of the Washington real estate firm of Floyd E. Davis Co., it was announced last night. Mr. Smith, who started with the company in 1914 as an office boy, formerly was secretary-treasurer.

F. A. SMITH

J. Hawley Smith, formerly assistant treasurer, has been made treasurer, and Richard J. Carr, formerly assistant secretary, was made secretary. Other officers are Floyd E. Davis, president, and Walter G. Davis, vice president.

Mr. Smith recently retired as president of the Washington Real Estate Board and is first vice president of the Washington Board of Trade. Mr. Carr has been connected with the Davis company since 1920 and Hawley Smith has been with the firm since 1922.

New Profits Tax Is Topic

The new excess profits tax from a bank's point of view was discussed Thursday night by Frederick L. Pearce at a session in the Lee Sheraton Hotel of the auditors section of the District Bankers' Association. J. O. Brott, assistant general counsel of the American Bankers' Association, was among the guests. William B. Mehler, section chairman, presided.

Air Express Continues Gain

Air express shipments of Railway Express Agency for the first nine months of 1940 totaled 751,747, an increase of 23½ per cent over the corresponding period of 1939, the division reported yesterday. Gross revenue for the nine-month span was up 26 per cent, and the net revenue to the 17 airlines over which the agency operates increased 26½ per cent.

Amsterdam Halts U. S. Bond Trade

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Nov. 15 (AP).—A ban on dealings in the bonds of the Young and Dawes loans was expected today to be announced by the Netherlands secretary general of finance.

Quotations stopped today in the Amsterdam stock exchange.

Well-informed sources estimated that Netherlands holdings of these bonds totaled 100,000,000 guilders. Yesterday's quotations for the Young loan were 29 per cent and for the Dawes 14 per cent.

(The Netherlands share of the Dawes loan was £2,500,000 floated in 1924; the Young loan share of 73,000,000 florins was issued in 1930. The loans were designed primarily to rehabilitate post-war Germany.)

Stock Leaders Retreat Fractions to $2 On More Pessimistic Tone in War News

New York, Nov. 15.—Pressure on steels was communicated to other departments in today's stock market and leaders generally turned in losses of fractions to more than 2 points. There were isolated declines of 4 or so.

The list was no more than irregular until shortly after midday, when selling became somewhat insistent. Prices touched lows of the day in the final hour and little come-back was in evidence at the close. A few oils, rubbers and specialties managed to keep above water.

While dealings were well under those of yesterday, they topped the million-share mark for the ninth consecutive session. Transfers totaled 1,050,080 shares compared with 1,384,290 Thursday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .04 of a point at 45.7, the fourth day in a row wherein the composite has been unable to register progress.

The approach of a week-end and the more pessimistic tone of the European war news was blamed partly for liquidation. At that, hopeful business items were believed to have kept offerings within bounds.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible and Republic were soft throughout, although near-capacity production in this industry was expected to be maintained next week. The thought that heavy forward buying might result in a sharp letdown later clouded this picture.

In arrears were General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, du Pont, Westinghouse, American Can, Anaconda, Kennecott, Consolidated Edison, Western Union, North American, Sears Roebuck and Great Northern.

The $3 dividend by J. I. Case aided this stock to hold a gain of 3⅛ at 63. It was the first payment since 1938, when $5 was disbursed. General Electric announced an 80-cent dividend and its shares were up ¾ at 35. Up moderately were United States Rubber preferred, Worthington Pump, Zenith Radio and Texas Corporation.

Motors failed to respond to this week's automotive output which was estimated the largest for any week in three years.

Setbacks of as much as 2 in the Curb were posted for Aluminum of America, Bell Aircraft, American Cynamid "B", Brewster Aero, Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal and New Jersey Zink. Modest advances were retained by Celluloid, Gulf Oil and Carrier Corporation. Sales here were around 172,000 shares against 241,000 yesterday.

Soft spots were fairly numerous in the bond market and traders attributed them to a dip in stocks.

Some issues, even speculative, countered the downward trend but, as a rule, traders seemed willing to lighten commitments for the week-end recess, many being influenced apparently by the furious German bombing raids on Coventry.

Gains ran from 1 to around 3 points in Alleghany Corporation stamped 5s of 1950 at 59¾, Laclede Gas 6s of 1942 at 57, Louisville & Nashville Southern Joint Motion 4s at 22 and Warren Brothers 6s at 52½.

Low yield corporates were firm but most United States Governments slipped back a little. An exception was the Treasury issue of 2½s of 1948 the price of which closed more than a point higher on the transfer of a single bond. The Associated Press utility and industrial averages reached new 1940 highs.

There was an uneven shift in the foreign list with Japanese and German issues retreating for losses of fractions to around a point and some British flag obligations registering gains running to around 2 points.

Gold Imports Off Slightly in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports totaled $73,270,991 in the week ended November 6. The Commerce Department, reporting this figure yesterday, said it was slightly under the preceding week, but about on a par with recent periods.

Canada, as usual, shipped the largest quantity, $66,610,323. Other large consignments included 1,136,886 from Portugal and $3,051,009 from Japan.

United Air Lines Sells Los Angeles Terminal

Building Equipment Makers Net 6.7%

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission reported yesterday that 18 corporations engaged primarily in the manufacture of building equipment had a combined net profit last year of $20,000,000, equal to 6.7 per cent of sales. The combined net profit in 1938 was $5,500,000.

The total volume of business for the 18 companies was $299,000,000 last year, an increase of $19,000,000 over 1938. Two companies American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation and Crane Co., accounted for more than 55 per cent of the 1939 volume of business.

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 15 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—Demand for domestic wools in Boston continued very quiet today. Occasional inquiries were being received for the finer grades of western-grown wools, but these inquiries usually did not result in sales unless the wools were urgently needed to complete existing contracts. Mill buyers and topmakers were reported to be showing greater interest in offerings of Australian and South American wools.

Referendum Called On Tobacco Quota

The Agriculture Department has proclaimed a national marketing quota for the burley tobacco for the 1941 crop and set November 23 as the date for its submission to a grower referendum.

Growers will vote on two proposals, the establishment of marketing quotas for the 1941 crop only or for three crops beginning with that of 1941. Approval by two-thirds of those voting is required to put a quota into effect.

B. & O. Loadings Dip

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported today it handled 52,138 cars of freight during the week ended November 9, compared with 55,433 handled the previous week and 55,171 during the corresponding period of last year.

Rubber Use Expands To Near Record High

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—October crude rubber consumption in the United States rose to 56,477 long tons, next to the highest on record reached in October, 1939, when 57,155 tons were consumed, the Rubber Manufacturers Association said today.

This represented a gain of 12.5 per cent over September consumption of 50,206 tons.

Domestic stocks at the end of October expanded to 259,140 tons, up 7.4 per cent from 241,358 a month earlier and the largest since September, 1938. A year ago stocks totaled 119,404 long tons. (These figures included barter and Government reserve supplies.)

Reclaimed rubber consumption was figured at 16,528 tons, production at 19,358 and stocks at 32,118.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—The free foreign money market was almost a stalemate today so far as price changes were concerned.

The Shanghai dollar moved up 1/20 cent to 6.12 United States cents, but other major rates, including the "free" British pound sterling, were unchanged.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian control board rates for United States dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 13 per cent discount or 87.00 United States cents.

Patman Claims Banks Fail in Credit Duties

Government Forced To Enter Loan Field, League Parley Told

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, asserted today that "commercial banks for several years have been abandoning their own function—depriving business of legitimate financing—to enter the long-term investment field where they do not belong and where for the safety of their depositors' funds they cannot be allowed to remain."

The Congressman made the assertion in an address before the United States Savings and Loan League convention.

"Because of the failure of commercial banks to meet the credit needs of industry and commerce," he asserted, "the RFC has been forced to grant thousands of loans to small business enterprises.

"Because of the inactivity of commercial banks, Congress was forced to authorize the Federal Reserve banks to extend direct credit to business for working capital. Because of the failure of commercial banks to meet short-term credit needs of farmers, production credit associations were established under the Farm Credit Act of 1933. Because of the failure of commercial banks to provide credit facilities for foreign commerce, the Export-Import Bank was created."

Paul Endicott of Pomona, Calif., was elected president of the league, succeeding George W. West of Atlanta, Ga. Fermor S. Cannon of Indianapolis was elevated from second to first vice president, and Ralph H. Cake of Portland, Ore., was elected second vice president.

Washington Area Store Sales Climb 6% During Week

The Federal Reserve Board estimated yesterday that department store sales in the week ended November 9 averaged 6 per cent more than in the corresponding week last year.

This compared with a decrease of 5 per cent from last year in the week ended November 2. In the four weeks ended November 9, the average gain over last year was 3 per cent.

By Federal Reserve districts, comparisons with a year ago for the week ended November 9 were:

Increases—Boston, 10; Cleveland, 5; Richmond (including Washington), 6; Atlanta, 6; Chicago, 10; St. Louis, 10; Kansas City, 14; Dallas, 27; San Francisco, 7 per cent.

Gen. Electric Votes 80-Cent Dividend

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Directors of General Electric Co. declared today a dividend of 80 cents a share, payable December 20 to holders of record November 22. This brings payments for the year to $1.85 a share compared with $1.40 in 1939.

Directors of the Budd Wheel Co. today declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1.75, plus a participating dividend of 25 cents on preferred stock, both payable December 31 to stock of record December 17.

Pan American Airways Seeks Singapore Base

By the Associated Press

Pan American Airways petitioned the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday for authority to add Singapore, straits settlement, as an additional terminal for its route to the Far East.

The company said it desired authority to extend service west of Manila so as to serve both Singapore and Hong Kong.

Small Exchanges Weigh Problems

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—Representatives of ten leading securities exchanges outside New York met here today to discuss conditions which have restricted the volume of business in these markets.

Marshall R. Barbour, president of the Pittsburgh Exchange, who was instrumental in calling the meeting, said the securities men discussed all general problems relating to their business but declined to amplify on this statement. Representatives from Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco also were present.

Smaller stock exchanges recently have been concerned not only with improving their own business but also with activities in securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The New York board adopted a rule prohibiting its members from dealing in dually listed stocks on other exchanges but the Securities and Exchange Commission has requested that this be suspended.

Week's Auto Output Sets 3-Year Peak

Assembly of 121,943 Units Is Heaviest Since July, 1937

Detroit, Nov. 15—Ward's Reports, Inc., estimated today that automobile and truck production this week would total 121,943 units. The total compared with 120,948 last week and with 86,700 vehicles this week a year ago.

The current week's production is the highest output volume since mid-July, 1937, when 122,890 vehicles were assembled in one week.

Ward's said the holiday next week would reduce operations almost a fifth at most plants. It added that production would rebound strongly in the final November week, but would not come up to the current level.

Buick Sales Up Sharply

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—Buick division of General Motors Corporation today reported its retail sales during the period from January 1 to November 10 totaled 247,702 units, compared with 177,075 during the corresponding period of 1939 and 222,312 for the entire year of 1939.

Sales during the first 10-day period of November numbered 9,455 cars. In the preceding 10-day period they totaled 12,735 units.

Pontiac division of General Motors reported new car sales for the first 10 days of the current month as 8,521. For the first 10 months of 1940 Pontiac's retail sales numbered 185,788. For the entire year of 1939 they totaled 164,830 units.

London Stocks Continue Rise; Textiles Strong

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—Stock market gains continued unabated today. Recoveries in equities since the lowest point was reached after France collapsed has brought a substantial reduction in the difference in yields between bonds and equities.

Since the June 26 low, the Financial Times' industrial index has risen 33 per cent and there is an acute shortage of stocks. With imposition of 100 per cent excess profits tax and other limiting factors, common dividends now are practically stabilized and yields will fluctuate with the stock price.

Textiles were in strong demand today, Tobacco and heavy industry issues also gained. Provincial buying caused a further rise in domestic rails. Cape Town demand for dividend payers continued in the Kaffir market.

U. S. Gold Imports Total $325,980,578

By the Associated Press

Gold imports in October totalled $325,980,578. September imports were $334,112,636.

The Commerce Department said yesterday that principal October shipments were $222,730,000 from Canada, $14,770,000 from Australia, $6,678,000 from South America, $19,983,000 from Argentina, $24,212,000 from Portugal, $14,106,000 from Russia, and $11,815,000 from Japan.

Private Offerings Largest in 2 Months

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities continued at a low level this week but the amount of new money raised by private corporations was the largest in over two months, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today.

New issues during the week ended yesterday, totaling only $25,976,248, included more than $12,000,000 of new capital for business.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 15.—Cotton futures shot up 12 to 18 points today to the highest levels since last may. All deliveries except July and October crossed the 10-cents-a-pound line.

Vigorous demand came from trade interests, Bombay and Wall Street, but brokers said an equally important factor was comparatively limited hedging pressure from the South.

Back of the buying, dealers said, was the expectation a shortage of supplies of free cotton might develop. Large amounts of the staple have gone into the Government loan and when domestic mill demand (now estimated at a record-breaking rate) becomes more insistent, traders feel the price would be forced up.

This theory was emphasized by producers in many sections of the South being optimistically inclined pricewise and holding cotton in hopes of a higher price. Buying of futures by trade and mill interests was believed to reflect recognition of this attitude.

Exports Thursday, 4,600 bales; season so far, 418,144. Port receipts, 62,345. Port stocks, 3,140,542.

Cotton Jumps To New Highs For Season

Gains Range From 60 To 90 Cents a Bale On N. Y. Market

By the Associated Press

Cotton slashed across a descending price curve in the major futures market with gains of nearly $1 a bale yesterday.

At New York the staple rose 60 to 90 cents a bale to the season's highest prices as most deliveries broke through the 10-cent a pound market. Buying was based on indications of a record-breaking domestic mill consumption and the fear free supplies might be curtailed because of the Government loan.

A wave of profit taking shook the Chicago wheat pit after prices climbed about a cent a bushel to the highest levels of the past 6 months. Final quotations were ½ to ¼ cents lower. Corn dipped ⅛ to ¼.

Declines, some ranging to more than 1/10 cent a pound, also came for copper, hides, rubber,

Experts Urge Defense Work Be Spread Out

Unhealthy Condition Seen in Concentration In Northeast Plants

A hundred or more of the Nation's leading management experts, in and out of Government, settled in Washington yesterday to talk shop about what they think is America's No. 1 job, the national defense program. In the group were several who had come to Washington 23 years ago, for a similar purpose, shortly after America entered the World War.

Through a morning and afternoon on shop talk, this thesis was developed as a defense "must":

Among management's biggest jobs at the moment is to spread out their defense production in a way that will bring into use all the available machines and manpower.

Half a dozen speakers contributed to this picture.

Concentrated in Northeast

John D. Biggers, chief aide to Defense Production Commissioner Knudsen, said that in placing $10,084,000,000 in contracts out of the current $16,000,000,000 defense fund, most of the work assignments had been made wisely, from the standpoint of the Government and the public.

He said, however, that these contracts already placed had resulted in a greater concentration of business than is in the national interest.

This concentration mostly in the northeast, he suggested, was because officials favor that centers be placed with already known firms.

But now, said Biggers, the National Defense Commission is working to find ways for some of this production volume to be fanned out to utilize the latent facilities and manpower of the Western States and the agricultural sections.

Many of these States, he said, need the economic impetus of defense manufacturing. What they lack in labor, the Government is seeking to overcome by training workers, and the Commission is also hoping to see contractors sublet contracts to plants in these areas, he said.

Nazis Farmed Out Work

The example of this subcontracting scheme was drawn by earlier speakers.

Percy S. Brown, president of Consumer Distributors, Inc., said that Germany has done something hitherto believed impossible, making submarines by mass production. An explanation for this feat was given by Horace B. Drury, who described methods of farming out manufacturing jobs in Germany and England.

In Germany, said Drury, several months before the war started, a rural electrification drive was launched, and at the same time, farmers were given large crates. They were told the crates contained machinery for making toys, to help revive the German toy-making industry. They were asked not to open the crates until a government representative came around to explain operation of the machines. After the war started, the farmers were given word to open the crates, and in each was a machine for making one part to be used in arms manufacture. This method, Drury said, had become the foundation for mass, assembly-line production of such intricate machines as submarines.

Col. George Babcock, management engineer for the Public Works Administration, said that America's World War experience had shown that, with skilled engineering and planning, it is possible to produce highly intricate machines on a subcontracting basis.

Method Used in Britain

Drury pointed out that England had used this method to boost plane production. Between 1935 and the early part of this year, Drury said, Britain had boosted the number of workers in the aviation industry from 15,000 to 60,000. In four months after the Battle of Flanders, they had put 108,000 more persons to work building planes through subcontracting.

Biggers described the moves already taken to encourage to the utmost use of private capital and private initiative in the defense program. The next objective, he said, is to superimpose the defense program on the normal domestic production of the United States—to increase employment and national income and reduce to a minimum the defense program's disruption to normal life.

This last objective would have to be sacrificed if "we are driven into conflict," he said.

Miss Mary V. Robinson, of the Women's Bureau in the Labor Department, with other speakers, described ways that women in the last war took over men's work, and reported that Sidney Hillman, labor and training defense commissioner, is planning to bring a woman into his staff to help plan ways for women to help the present defense program.

Suggestions Offered

Among suggestions for speeding up the defense program, offered by a panel of four speakers, were these:

Appointment of a defense commission chairman.

Coordination of defense deliveries to eliminate World War errors.

A program for ferreting out idle machine tool facilities, by urging their owners to report to the defense agencies about their equipment.

Maj. Gen. William Crozier, U. S. A. (retired), discussed the similarities and differences between national defense in the World War and at the present time at a dinner gathering at the Carlton last night. Nearly 100 persons attended.

The Army's concept of the importance of management was discussed by Brig. Gen. Harry K. Rutherford. Other speakers included: Walter P. Schwartz, president of Proctor & Schwartz, a Philadelphia manufacturing concern, who spoke on the point of view of industrialists; Marion B. Hedges, of the American Federation of Labor, who was spokesman for organized labor, and Joseph W. Roe, a management engineer, who spoke on behalf of his profession.

L. P. Alford, of New York University, discussed the subject, "Management's Continuing Responsibility."

The oldest network sustaining program in radio begins its nineteenth year over WJSV and the Columbia network tomorrow. In case you don't already know, it's "Major Bowes' Family," which will have been heard close to 1,000 times and have entertained for more than 56,000 minutes on the air in that 18 years of Sundays.

Time was when the popular program—I guess it's relatively safe to call it popular after all these years—was heard on only one New York station. Now it is not only broadcast over all of Columbia's 122 stations throughout the United States and Canada, not to mention Hawaii and Puerto Rico (all right, to mention them, then), but throughout the entire world.

In fact, Ambassador Kennedy on returning to the United States from London a couple of weeks ago reported that listening to "Major Bowes' Family" with his own rather populous family every Sunday in war-torn London brought them all a familiar touch of home.

Some of the nation's greatest song hits have been introduced without much fanfare on the program, and for many presently well known artists it has provided the first rung in their climb to fame.

There's still nothing very elaborate or formal about it. Sometimes the Major's in the studio; other times he casually does the emceeing by telephone from his Rumson, N. J., home. There's a fairly prominent guest each time.

The Post Radio Time Table

FOOTBALL GAMES: 2 p. m., WMAL—Georgetown University-Boston College, announced by Ray Michael; 2, WJSV—Yale-Princeton, described by Ted Husing; 2, WRC—Michigan-Northwestern, Fort Pearson at the mike; 3:15, WOL—Purdue-Minnesota, Bill Gibson, announcer.

9:15 a. m., WJSV—Mary Haworth's mailed tongue answer her mail—male and female.

12 noon, WMAL—"Proposals for Making Education Effective for Defense" is the subject of the American Education Forum. Dr. George Zook, president of the American Council on Education; Dr. Willard Givens, director of the National Education Association, and Dr. Floyd Reeves, of the Committee on National Defense, are the speakers.

1:30 p. m., WJSV—Students of Central High School appear in a salute to our southern neighbors with Dr. L. S. Rowe, of the Pan-American Union. This program, "Heroes of Democracy," is under the joint auspices of The Post and station WJSV.

6:30, WMAL—For the Listener's Playhouse, "Roger Dirk Is Dead" dramatizes the plight of a man declared legally dead and his efforts to reestablish his identity.

7, WJSV—Another group of educators gathers in New York's historic Fraunces' Tavern to discuss methods of instructing the Nation in matters of common defense for the People's Platform: Homer Caillaux, Mary D. Barnes, Dr. Thomas H. Briggs and George A. Walton.

7:45, WJSV—Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, addresses the twenty-second convention banquet of National Scabbard and Blade fraternity on "The Value of R. O. T. C. Training for Citizenship As Well As for National Defense."

9, WMAL—Archbishop Samuel Alphonsus Stritch, of Chicago, speaks to the National Council of Roman Catholic Charities on "The Significance of Meeting at this Time."

9:35, WMAL—Adolf Busch's Three Etudes for Orchestra, Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" and the Brahms Symphony No. 2 in D major are programmed for the NBC Symphony, Hans Wilhelm Steinberg conducting.

10:15, WJSV—Carlos Saladrigas y Zayas, Premiere of Cuba, addresses this country in English, telling of the changes in the form of Cuban government since President Batista took office in a trial system of half-Parliament government."

Contract Bridge

F. W. G. says: "I would greatly appreciate your comments as to the merits of the bidding by North and South as outlined on the inclosed illustration. I had the South hand and my partner claims that I made more mistakes in the bidding than he did. He says that he gave me two suits to choose from, and instead of passing his four-heart bid I should have bid four spades. I can't see it that way because I did not have spade support and at no time did he rebid them. In my opinion his three-diamond bid was absolutely wrong and at that stage of the game his proper bid would have been two spades. I think the hand should have been played at either three no trump or four spades, and without a rebid of hearts by me, he should not have raised my heart bid."

North	South
♠ A K J 10 5	♠ 8 6 4
♡ 10 6 4	♡ A K 8 7
◇ None	◇ K 9 8 7
♣ K J 9 7 6	♣ 8 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	1 ♠	Pass	1 NT
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	3 ◇	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

North, it seems to us, was trying to tell his partner about his two-suited hand, and although he did it somewhat awkwardly, the three-diamond bid should have made things clear.

It certainly looked at this time as if he held five clubs, five spades and no diamonds, and since South chose to go three no trump, instead of taking a preference in either spades or clubs, it was not unnatural for North to try for game at hearts.

As for South's bidding, it is not a very good idea to show a four-card suit when partner himself has named two suits, for it is unlikely that he will have sufficient trump support to make it a payable contract. Thus, South's two-heart bid is open to question and the three no trump call indicated a misunderstanding of North's bids. The best contract for the hand is four spades, and South did not do so well with the bidding as he could have done.

Commerce Legion Post Installs New Staff of Officers

In the presence of many Government officials and before a colorful backdrop of flags and emblems, the Department of Commerce Post of the American Legion Thursday night installed its new officers.

The official guests included Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Interstate Commerce commissioner; Dr. Louis R. Beardsley, superintendent of Mount Alto Hospital; Malcolm Kerlin, administrative assistant to the Secretary of Commerce; E. W. Libbey, chief clerk of the Commerce Department; William Hargraves, commander of the District Department of the Legion, and S. T. Porter, chief engineer of the Fire Department.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — On and Under the Fence — BY MILTON CANIFF

MAYBE IT WASN'T SUCH A GOOD IDEA TO WAIT TILL WE GOT NEAR THE HOUSE TO JOIN UP WITH THE GUERILLAS... LISTEN... SHOOTING!
WE GOT OFF THE ROAD JUST IN TIME! IT'S A SKIRMISH BETWEEN CHINESE AND INVADERS!
OHHHH... MEBBE OL' INVLADER GENTS FIND OUT MISSY DLAGON LADY AT RANSOM HOUSE!
THEY MAY HAVE INTERCEPTED ONE OF HER NOTES! ...AND WE'LL HAVE TO WAIT FOR THE MAIN BODY OF GUERILLAS TO ARRIVE!
...IF INVLADER FELLERS GET TO HOUSE FIRST — THEN WE BEHIND BALL NUMBER EIGHT!
I DON'T KNOW, CONNIE! MAYBE IT WOULD BE WELL TO FORCE THEM TO GET THERE FIRST! I HAVE A PLAN!...

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, BILL! THE TRAMP AT MOTHER'S HOUSE IS MARCO LASH, THE MURAL PAINTER! AND HE STOLE THOSE BONDS WHILE HIS SCAFFOLD WAS SWUNG OVER MY CAGE AT THE BANK!
WELL, ALL WE GOT TO DO IS OPEN UP HIS SAFETY DEPOSIT BOX, GIT TH' BONDS, AN' SEND POLICE T'NAB HIM!
IT'S NOT THAT SIMPLE!
IN THE FIRST PLACE, WE CAN'T LEGALLY BREAK INTO HIS DEPOSIT BOX, BESIDES, WE HAVEN'T A SHRED OF PROOF YET THAT HE STOLE THE BONDS!
I'VE GOT JUST TWO DAYS TO PRODUCE THE BONDS, OR FACE ARREST.. I DON'T KNOW WHICH WAY TO TURN!
THAT'S EASY, SLIM! TH' WAY TO TURN IS TOWARD YOUR MOTHER!.. AN' I'M PHONIN' HER RIGHT NOW!
